

Fashion World Mourns Coco's Death

The fashion world, and indeed every woman whose mode of dress has been affected by Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel's designs, mourned her death Sunday evening. She died in her suite at the Ritz in Paris. Called the most influential designer of the 20th century, Miss Chanel at the age of 87 was still responsible for every dart and button that were part of her creations. Saturday she approved 85 models for her show which is scheduled to open Jan. 26.

Her most famous perfume — Chanel No. 5 and her classic suite with its braided jacket, four small pockets, little gold buttons and quilted living — will probably live on through years to come.

Chanel will be remembered, too, not accepting the mini-skirt or getting involved in the maxi-midi controversy. Her hemlines hovered just around the knee, a length she considered most becoming.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe shared a laugh with Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew Tuesday as he was introduced as keynoter for the National Forum on Traffic Safety Alcohol Counter Measures. Mrs. Agnew was a forum speaker and hostess.

What's Your Spouse Rating? Great?

NEW YORK (NAPS) — Are you great as a mate — or a "louse as a spouse"? Test yourself for the answers. Though sometimes your best friends won't tell you, these 20 questions from Houbigant should help you to arrive at the answer — how do you rate as a mate?

1 Do you sometimes give in to avoid an argument, even if you know that your one and only is dead wrong? (Unless, of course, it's a matter of principle.)

No statistician has ever calculated the number of marriages that have cracked on the rock of unwillingness to give in on unimportant questions, but the number must be large. You won't deepen your spouse's stubborn streak just by conceding a point, quite the opposite. People are at their most conciliatory after winning a round.

2 Do you show loyalty by building him or her up in public and keep your spouse's secrets?

Fidelity is more than a matter of staying monogamous. You're being disloyal every time you recite "cute" anecdotes that make your better half look small, or publicly correct his (her) grammar, or tell your friends and relatives things they have no right to know.

3 Do you maintain friendly relations with your in-laws?

It's one of the soundest married life insurance policies, experts say. By showing your mate that you like his or her family, you're showing approval of a very important part of himself or herself.

4 Do you try persistently to change him (her)?

Hard on the vocal chords and the marriage ties, and futile besides. The only person who can change your mate is friend spouse himself. You married for what he or she is — or did you?

5 Do you ever try to correct your own flaws if they distress your mate?

All right, so your mate shouldn't try to change you. But maybe that one cherished weakness isn't worth the contention it causes, and correcting the habit might make your spouse vow to be more punctual, less over-weight or whatever you've been striving to make him.

6 Do you watch your appearance as carefully now as you did before?

You should — but if you do, you're rather uncommon. Surveys among people generally show that a surprising percentage of the wives and husbands polled, thought their mates were not as particular about grooming as before marriage.

7 Do you try the same flattery you used in courtship days?

Even if you didn't in bi-rney, you showed a flattering everything your partner said or did again. One good home remedy for domestic headaches and other complications: really listen when your mate speaks.

8 Do you have a hobby or other strong interest which is not shared by your mate?

According to many psychologists, you should! Too much togetherness can be stifling and ultimately become stale. A separate interest gives you breadth as well as a breather.

To make your time together more valuable: Always have some joint project in the works, occasionally turn off the TV and just talk — or walk, plan a night out for just the two of you at least once a month — more often if you can manage it.

MEN ONLY

1 Do you take her out dining and dancing (or even to a movie) now and then, just because you know she likes it?

2 Do you help her with her coat, open doors for her?

Inexpensive and infallible methods of making a woman feel more like a woman.

3 Do you ask her advice — and take it if it's good?

There's no higher compliment. A noted marriage counselor reports that one of the primary grievances voiced by wives is that preoccupied husbands make them feel "invisible."

4 Do you compliment her when she does something special for you?

When she does something special for you, compliment her. It's a simple thing, but it's one of the most important things you can do for her.

Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller shows his son, Winthrop Paul, and Miss Deborah Chuet Sage a verse of scripture implanted in a stone at the Rockefeller farm near Morrilton after the couple's engagement was announced Sunday.

The scripture, Micah 6:8, reads, "And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God."

Mattli Says 'Spring' With Riots of Color

BY JULIE FLINT
LONDON (AP) — Mattli, the London couturier who presented his spring 1971 collection Thursday, has fallen for the exotic, spicing his exquisite materials with Egyptian designs and fiery Gauguin prints.

Although his models wore modest, made-in-USA, appearance, Mattli concentrated on tougher textured materials—oyster and tapestry weaves, raw and woven silk tweeds and patchwork or organza—all in screaming colors.

Unlike Hardy Amies who plumped Wednesday for palest pastels, Mattli was lavish with his paint brush, daubing his canvas liberally with scarlet pink, citrus and peppermint.

Refusing to play name games, he did not define his length Mini, demi, Chanel or longuette — call them what you will. Mattli hems hit just below the knee.

Coats were cut close to the body, with amorphous collars and wide belted under big-brimmed, raffia-weave hats.

Most coats, however, were the designer's dress and jacket outfits, where interest centered on pleat detail and seam stitching.

He covered a plain navy wool dress, snort in the sleeve and slit at the neck, with a 'cut short jacket, its butterfly collar plunging almost to the waist.

Equally unusual was a citrus wool outfit, its flared skirt knifed into white pleats at the front, seams below a slender jacket just grazing the hips. And copping the lot, a cheeky white cliche hat spangled with stars and caught up at the brim.

Mattli, a traditionalist kept his dresses simple. But with their tight silk tops, body-conscious cutting and slender sleeves they were enchanting in their

Color and cloth ran riot for evening as the designer displayed gossamer-fine silk jerseys, bold giselle prints and patterned crepe georgettes seamed into circular skirts and billowing capes.

Also in silk jersey, a stunning turquoise evening dress, slashed open at the back and plummeting in a halter neck to the waist at the front. Less revealing was its tiered skirt, dropping into deep folds at the hem from a tiny waist.

And finally a Gauguin print organza extravaganza plunging deeply from the nape, cinched with a bold blood-red belt and contained by a matching shawl.

1. Is your wife so neat that your husband feels like a bull in a china shop?

2. If you have the space, set aside a den or workshop where he can scatter ashes and wood shavings to his heart's content.

3. Do you read the newspaper every day?

Many women who complain that their husbands don't talk to them haven't time to say.

4. Do you in a sentimental mood?

If not, try being a sentimental woman. That's new to the world. You can be sure when you use a sentimental woman to enhance romance.

5. If you have children, do you make him feel he's at least as important to you as the "kids"?

The counterpart of the wife who feels "invisible" is the husband who thinks he's valued only as a provider and "the father of her children." Both types are frequently found in counseling sessions and divorce courts.

6. Do you avoid reciting the trials and tribulations of your day as soon as he steps in the door?

Remember, he's probably been listening to such troubles all day long at business. So let him feel at home by first providing him with pleasure and leisure that he will treasure.

It's Now in Progress . . .

Teen-Age Girls Seek Advice From Books

Teen-age girls are more conscious than boys of their own dress, grooming and etiquette. They're also more apt to turn to grownups for advice, which accounts for the fact that there are more newspaper advice columns geared to teen-age girls than boys.

This is the opinion of Dr. Lloyd Mellis, professor of special education at Carthage College, Kenosha, whose job it is to teach future teachers how to teach and to deal with young people.

"One thing a parent should understand is that girls at this age are reluctant to discuss their desires, dreams, and problems with parents for fear they'll be laughed at," Dr. Mellis said.

"But these girls will accept advice from well-known authorities, many of whom have written good books to guide teen-agers."

As consultant to Hertzberg-New Method, Inc., Jacksonville, Ill., manufacturer and distributor of Perma-Bound Books, Dr. Mellis recently compiled a series of authoritative paperback books. "Especially For Girls," aimed directly at the teen-age girl.

Included in the series are: "Glamour Guide For Teens," "Taffy's Tips to Teens," "Fannie Farmer Junior Cookbook," "The Book of Dating," "The Secretary's Manual," "What Girls Want to Know About Boys," "Amy Vanderbilt's Everyday Etiquette," "At Home With Your Hairdo," and "Your Wedding."

Soft Ties are for soft fashions. Cream and brown are combined in a woven tool tie worn with a jacket of green and white slubbed in yellow and green. A rust and ochre pure wool tie (inset) is woven into a figured-jacquard effect for a melanged look. It is worn with a classic suit in pure wool grey and cream windowpane tweed. The art-deco shirt is wool knit in shades of rust, ochre and pink. A handsome tie of pure pale blue wool is stitch-striped in cream (top right). It is worn with pure wool worsted crepe suit in dusty pink. A wool design in hounds-tooth effect, boldly colored in rust, turquoise, cream and ochre (bottom left) goes with a blazer of pure wool tie cloth. The ochre hopsack ground is patterned with chenille stripes. Finally a pure wool challis tie is circle printed from the palest to the darkest of blues. It is a perfect accent for a pure wool double knit blazer in taupe.

Men's Ties Never Die; They Change With Fashion

By AP Newsfeatures

Currently the mood in fashion favors soft ties, in woven or printed wool.

The tie, or more classically, the necktie, has had earth flung on its coffin time and time again by fashion pundits. It's always just about to disappear in favor of ergonomically designed shirt collars, but instead changes to mesh with the mood and requirements of the fashion times.

The tie originated with that greatest of English dandies, Beau Brummel, who drove Regency England mad by the pristine perfection of such creations as the 'Trone d'amour' or, more sportily, the 'Belcher Neckkerchief' for watching prize fights and the like.

In those days ties were cravats—long thin strips of fine muslin which could be knotted according to the wearer's fancy or ability. They creased very easily, and if a mistake was made while tying, had to be discarded in favor of a fresh one.

It has been recorded that Beau Brummel could get through three dozen such strips before achieving the right sort of casual elegance.

Basically, there are two cloths—printed or figured silk, and printed or woven wool. Although printed silks have dominated fashion for many years, the printed and woven wool ties are now enjoying a fashion supremacy. This mainly because men's fashion generally is assuming a new soft, draped ambience, both in cut and choice of fabric.

Scotland is just one of the homes of woven wool tie cloths. Traditional Scottish tartans are beginning to be popular on the tie fashion front again too—a spin-off from the ethnic feeling which abounds in menswear generally.

Currently, the style story majors on surface interest, allied to particularly deep, rather than naturalistic colorings. There are whole spectrums of wool tie cloths in rich navy, rust and green, with tiny points of light colors interwoven, to complement suit and coat color stories.

Got to be Soft

This softer mood in fashion doesn't rule out the printed tie, but it's got to be soft. The misty melange effect, plus all-important texture and soft bulk, can be achieved by printed wool.

With soft surfaced cloths in style for men, printed silk is an uneasy accessory. When pure wool tie cloth in woven effects is teamed with a textured jacket, and with a printed shirt in the new minimal prints, an interplay of visual effects takes place. It is this interplay of surface textures which will be a major story for next year—tied up with soft, textured pure wool ties.

Housewives Discuss New Freedoms

"Freedom is a continual growth in awareness and acceptance of what is real," the Rev. Kurt Gessner told a group of women gathered Tuesday morning at Monte Alverno Center for the first of three coffee talks. "It depends upon our understanding of what is in our physical world and our psychological awareness of what is good and beautiful. Once we begin to grow in awareness in these areas, we are capable of responding freely and become free people," he said.

Teaming with Father Gessner at this first of three weekly sessions scheduled from 9 to 11 a.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays, is the Rev. Samuel Jackson. He told the women, "The degree of our freedom depends upon our self-image, the breakdown of fear in our lives and an honest and open communication with husbands, children and associates."

Noting that the women's liberation movement has caused a new sense of freedom in women's lives, Father Gessner asked the housewives what four concerns are keeping them from freedom.

Mentioned were fear of new situations, lack of experience in handling new freedoms, family upbringing and environment, and lack of communication with husbands and children.

When asked by Father Jackson, "Where are you headed, what are your goals in life as a wife?" the women said, to help their children develop full potential and to be happy in their chosen fields; to make Jesus Christ the center of our lives; to feel useful, important and needed after children are grown, and to continue to enrich themselves as women.

Lecturer during Tuesday sessions next week will be Richard Reichert, director of the Appleton Catholic Education Council. His topic will revolve around how a housewife should be free in her role as a Christian and a mother.

Interested women are asked to contact Monte Alverno.

Bathrooms Can be Made Neat, Tidy

Most bathrooms suffer from one or more of 10 common maladies that can easily be remedied.

Here's the list of faults, as compiled by Norwood Mills, Inc., Janesville.

Stockings and unmentionables drying on the shower curtain rod.

Shower curtain dripping on floor (should be tucked inside tub).

Towel used as bath mat.

Clutter on top of sink and tank top — including squished toothpaste tube.

Puddle of condensed moisture under toilet tank.

Dangling shaver and toothbrush cords.

Many of these deficiencies can be cleared up by changing family habits. Another way to give your bathroom an improved look is by decorating it with practical rugs and accessories that add bright color.

Choose accessories that resist soil and launder easily. That way, it'll be easier to keep your bathroom looking sharp all the time.

Former Suitor of Princess Margaret

Peter Townsend Back in News as Author

By DONALD M. McNICOLL
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Peter Townsend, whose romance with Princess Margaret made news in the '50s, is back in the headlines as a best-selling author.

His 455-page "Duel of Eagles" depicts the conflict between British and German airmen in World War II. The book first appeared in France, where it sold well. The London edition, published at $6.60, is in its third printing. Next week Townsend will be in New York when Simon & Schuster bring out an American edition. Americans will find Townsend at 55 still much like the slim and personable fellow who once captivated Margaret. The queen's sister called off her romance with Group Capt. Townsend in 1956, and in 1960 became the bride of Anthony Armstrong-Jones, now Lord Snowdon. "Duel of Eagles" says nothing about Margaret, but it's not hard to read between the lines and see the dash, the verve, the personality impressed her.

Marries Heiress
Townsend married Marie-Luce Jamagne, an attractive Belgian tobacco heiress, in 1959, when she was 19. In a preface to his book, he wrote:

"During the seven months I spent writing, my wife lived with a phantom husband who showed up only at meals and crept into bed in the small hours of the morning. She showed rare courage in seeing me through to the last line."

He took two years to gather material for the book, traveling widely to talk to the Germans who had fought against the Allies, so he could balance the picture obtained from British pilots and official sources on both sides. He plowed through a host of books and reports.

Townsend distilled the whole into a semidocumentary record that is part memoir, part battle story and part history of the rival air forces.

Peter Townsend, Whose Romance with Princess Margaret of England once made headlines, is back in the news as a best-selling author. His 455-page "Duel of Eagles," depicts the conflict between British and German airmen in World War II. (AP Wire-photo)

Unquestionably, however, it captured the spirit of what Winston Churchill named "the few" — the outnumbered British fighter pilots who beat off 1,800 Luftwaffe planes in the 1940 Battle of Britain.

Downs 11 Planes
Townsend shot down the first German bomber to be brought down on British soil in World War II, and was credited with shooting down 11 German planes in all.

He writes with generosity of the German airmen, readily acknowledging that not all the heroism was on the British side.

"I thought of writing it 10 years ago, but never got around to it until my Paris publisher Robert Laffont asked me to write it," Townsend says.

"I wrote 200,000 words, and nearly died in the attempt. I was almost a question of who would be finished first—me or the book."

An earlier Townsend book, "Earth My Friend," told of his trip around the world in a Land Rover.

Now he plans another book—"about people this time." He gives no details.

Not so long ago, Townsend was saying that he flies no more except as a passenger in airliners, but apparently he had a flight on a fighter when he visited Israel a year or so back.

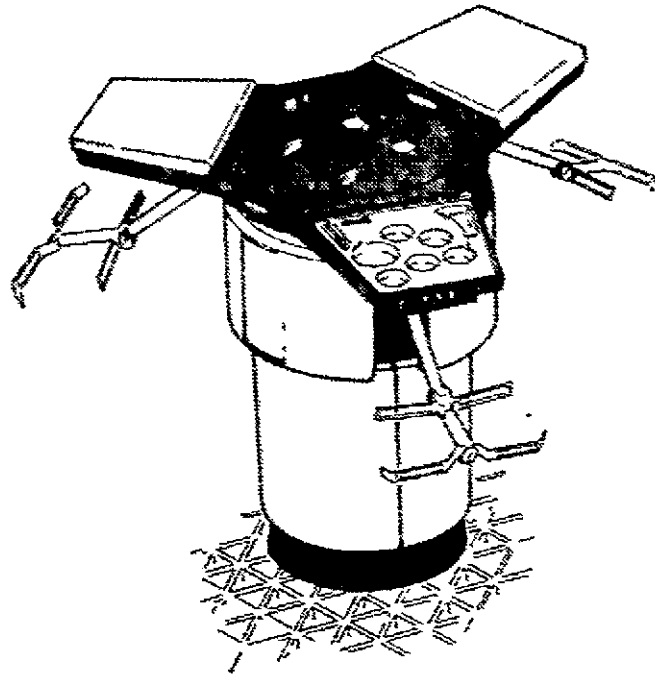

"I think the Israelis are probably the best fighter pilots in the world now," he said later.

He and his wife have one son and two daughters, and Townsend also has two sons by his former wife Rosemary Pawle, whom he married in 1941. Their divorce in 1952 was widely regarded as the key factor in Margaret's decision not to marry Townsend.

Since leaving the British air force in 1956, when he held the post of air attaché in Brussels, Townsend has been a wine buyer, a public relations man, travel film maker, and a chit-chat personality on Radio Luxembourg—in programs that dealt light-heartedly with British views of the French and French views of the British.

Now it's clear he wants to be a full-time writer. "I am a working man," he explained. "I am by no means rich enough to retire, and I find I enjoy writing very much, although I also find it hard work."

Skylab Offers Home Cooking in Space

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. — When it's chow time on Skylab, astronauts who will be spending four to eight weeks in earth orbit will have a menu which is as close to "home cooking" as modern food technology can make it.

Whirlpool Corporation, under contract to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is developing a food system designed to compensate as nearly as possible for the astronauts long absence from the usual fare of Earthlings and the warmth and delight of home cooked meals with family and friends.

Dr. Norman Roth, director of the company's Life Support Systems Division, said, "For the first time, a diet will be provided (for astronauts) which is conventional in appearance, superb in taste, and yet, satisfies the rigorous nutritional requirements of space flight."

"The food system is so designed that the Skylab crews will have a relatively wide range of selection from a set of conventional food items, while still rigidly adhering to the experimental requirements."

For the first time, astronauts will prepare their meals from an assortment of frozen as well as conventional space foods similar to those carried on manned Gemini and Apollo missions.

Astronauts will cook their own meals on a special food tray with heated compartments which conform to the food containers, to keep the containers from floating around in space.

Frozen foods will be stored in a freezer in the Skylab orbital workshop.

In addition to being the most palatable menu carried into space thus far, the space food system is designed to meet the requirements and objectives of an important series of medical investigations.

Dr. Malcom C. Smith, chief of food nutrition at the NASA Manned Spacecraft Center, explained that the medical investigations are profoundly influenced by the nature and amount of food that the astronauts consume.

The Skylab food system will maintain a caloric level between 2,000 to 2,800 calories per meal. More than 70 different food items are now under consideration for use. The final menu selection will be made by each crew member.

Here's an Artist's Sketch of Whirlpool Corporation's proposed Skylab dining table. The unit has three built-in heating-serving trays which are compatible to the food package containers and help restrain the food packages from floating in space. The "T" type devices are leg restraints to keep the astronaut in place while eating. Hot and cold water dispensers are located in the center of the table to reconstitute rehydratable food items.

Landfill Hearing Adjourned; Decision Awaited From DNR

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Kaukauna's sanitary landfill hearing was adjourned at 5:45 p.m. Thursday after four mornings' five afternoons and one night of testimony.
Edward Main, hearing examiner for the state Department of Natural Resources, said regulations require a decision to be rendered within 90 days.
It is up to the DNR to decide whether Kaukauna will be permitted to go ahead with plans to use a tract of 68.72 acres, recently annexed to the city, for a sanitary landfill operation.
The hearing resulted from a six-citizen petition under provision of the Wisconsin Natural Resources Act. It was initially convened Nov. 18, and was resumed Tuesday morning after recessing Nov. 20.
Two main points were advanced by the petitioners. They claimed that the operation would cause pollution and other environmental damage. They also objected to the filling of a wooded ravine, comprising a large part of the tract, declaring it is a valuable natural resource which should not be obliterated.
Mrs. Lloyd Williams, Appleton, headed the petitioners. Signing with her were her physician husband, Dr. H. J. Parris, Appleton, of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay; Miss Colleen Meyers, Appleton, Girl Scout executive; Prof. Leonard Weiss, UWGB, and Prof. James McKee, Oshkosh State University.
Fred Reichel, Kaukauna, headed a group of fellow townsmen who put their support behind the official petitioners.
Testimony at Thursday afternoon's session mainly involved Glenn Bishop, an engineer with the DNR's Division of Environmental Protection. He is concerned with the licensing and regulation of solid waste disposal for the state agency.
"In my judgment, the site used for such a purpose," Bishop remarked, "could be built and operated as a sanitary landfill acceptable within the framework established by the department." Bishop declared.
He was pressed for his personal opinion by Donald R. Murphy, attorney for the DNR. "I feel somewhat sorry that I

Elm Tree to Lay Off 70 Employees

Over 25 per cent of Elm Tree Baking Co.'s approximately 250-member work force was scheduled to be laid off today as a major step in its conversion to exclusively frozen foods operation.
"We'll be laying off 70 people this Friday," William Hanson, general manager, said Thursday, noting this was part of the plan when the firm sold its fresh foods operation last week.
Only the fresh foods division people were to be laid off, about 50-50 men and women. The union was informed prior to the layoff, and individuals affected were informed this week, he said.
Hanson said that when Rich Products Corp., Buffalo, N.Y., purchased Elm Tree in 1969, the plan was to convert Elm Tree to the largest frozen foods operation in the nation. A $2 million expansion is part of that plan.
Expect to Rehire
"Once the expansion is completed on April, 1971," he said, "we anticipate rehiring as our sales volume and resulting production schedules increase along protected lines."
He said it's difficult to project now but by the end of the year, employment should be back to 250. He said that the firm would be pushing toward a 300-member work force.
He said the goal is to distribute frozen products to all 50 states in the foreseeable future. Elm Tree has expanded distribution from 20 to 30 states since Rich took it over.
Elm Tree sold its fresh foods division to Bake Rite Baking Co., Stevens Point, for an undisclosed amount of cash. Bake Rite plans to build a distribution center in Appleton and a production facility at Plover.
Hanson said that most of Elm Tree's fresh products drivers have joined the Bake Rite firm.
Elm Tree — now called Elm Tree Frozen Foods, Inc. — is a subsidiary of Rich and also one of the nation's largest producers of frozen dough and fully baked products for retail, food service and instore bakeoff customers.
The expansion is the second for Elm Tree since it moved to its W. College Avenue facility in 1956.

5 Theft Counts Lodged Against Rural Area Man

Five counts of theft were filed Thursday against a rural Kaukauna man who allegedly took money from the three area churches over the past two months.
Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller gave an opportunity to Stanley Schczak, 25, route 3, to consult with his court-appointed attorney after finding him indigent. Keller deferred further proceedings to Monday and set bond at $150.
Investigators allege that Schczak, using a hacksaw to cut mooring chains on cash boxes, took change and cash located in two Roman Catholic churches in Kaukauna, Holy Cross and St. Mary, and St. Mary in Appleton and St. Nicholas in Freedom. The offenses allegedly occurred between Dec. 2 of last year and Tuesday.
An estimated $150 was taken in all the thefts, they said. Schczak is in the county jail on hold orders from the probation department.

Appleton Gives More Power to the Mayor

Of 151 U. S. cities ranked according to how "strong" the office of mayor is, Appleton is at the top of the list.
In a nationwide study of cities of more than 50,000 population and having mayor-council forms of government, Appleton scored 23 of 25 possible points indicating the amount of power is given to the mayor's office.
The study was performed by the University of Iowa political science department. Cities surveyed ranged from New York City with a population of 8 million to White Plains, N.Y., with slightly more than 50,000 people.
Prof. Russell M. Ross, chairman of the U of I department, compared the powers of mayors in each city according to voting authority, the council vote required to override his veto, power to make appointments without council approval, budget formulating power and length of term.
The ratings indicate only what powers are available to the mayor in each of the cities. How individual mayors use them wasn't evaluated.
On the 25-point scale Ross set 20 as the cutoff point for "strong" mayor cities. Of the cities surveyed, 33 including Appleton were in that category.
In Appleton, the mayor is a voting member of a number of committees, boards and commissions, though he only votes on the City Council to break ties.
In some cities, mayors vote only as tie-breakers.
To override a mayor's veto in Appleton requires three-quarters of the 20-member council's vote. In many cities the majority needed is smaller, making it easier for the council to override the mayor.
The mayor here needs council approval to hire and fire department heads and to name board, commission and committee members.
Appleton also uses a form of executive budget in which the mayor is in charge of submitting the first draft of the annual city budget for council consideration. In many cities, and in Appleton until the past few years, council committees prepare the budget.
The Appleton mayor's term is four years, compared with two in many cities.
Appleton was the only city in the Ross survey rating 23 points on his scale. There were seven with 22 points, three with 21 and 28 and 20 points.
The only other Wisconsin city listed in the survey in the above-20 class was Kenosha, which scored 22.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Commitments for spending by Wisconsin industrial corporations for the reduction or abatement of polluting discharges to public waters have accelerated rapidly during the last year, the governing board of the state Department of Natural Resources was told Thursday.
Budgeting for waste treatment projects by industries rose to nearly $5.5 million, a sharp increase above the level of the previous year, the department's environmental sanitation division said.
The indications are that the acceleration of expenditure will continue, with the pulp and paper industry leading in such outlays. Pulp and paper manufacturers long have been the main target of the champions of more stringent action for the protection of the quality of public waters.
The document emphasized that the expenditures reported did not represent all of the treatment costs levied upon industries. There are controls within plants and production changes that have increased costs, and in some instances industries also have paid their shares of the higher operating costs of public sewage treatment facilities to which they have been connected, officials pointed out.
To Seek Hearings
The report was received without comment, but retiring Chairman John Potter of the state regulatory group announced that he intends to move for a change in the rules governing pollution abatement, orders to require hearings on proposed controls before they are incorporated into orders. The board will consider the motion later.
D. K. Tyler, of Phillips, a board veteran and a former member of the old conservation commission which was merged into the DNR three years ago, was chosen chairman to succeed Potter, a Wisconsin Rapids lawyer, who had served as board head for two years. Prof. Gerald Rohlich of the University of Wisconsin is vice chairman.
In other major developments, the board:
— Received a recommendation from its air pollution control advisory committee that the legislature be asked to divert funds from the segregated state highway fund, made up of motor fuel taxes and other automotive levies, to finance air pollution control programs because the automobile is the chief source of emission of polluting substances into the atmosphere.
— Approved a petition to the national environmental quality administration asking that suggested federal regulations on the disposal of toilet and other wastes from boats in outlying waters including Lake Michigan and Green Bay be at least as severe as those already imposed by the state. Officials explained that the forthcoming federal regulations where there are conflicts.
— Was told that the forthcoming session of the Lake Michigan pollution conference probably won't receive a definite recommendation about thermal pollution of lake waters arising from the installation of nuclear generating plants on the upper lake shore because research on the problem has not yet been conclusive.
— Was told that most of the operators of solid waste disposal sites have been licensed and are complying with rules for operation, and that the 16 operators who have made no effort to comply with state standards last year. An additional 20 game lands have been referred to the state Department of Justice for prosecution. The agency's licensing experience has shown that there are about 2,000 such dumps in the state, instead of the 5,000 estimated when the Legislature acted to establish standards.
Paper Mills Comply
Oliver Williams of the DNR staff told the board that an additional proof of the progress in the campaign against industrial pollution of public waters is shown in the high total of 51 pollution abatement orders satisfied by industries during the last year. An additional 20 game lands have been referred to the state Department of Justice for prosecution. The agency's licensing experience has shown that there are about 2,000 such dumps in the state, instead of the 5,000 estimated when the Legislature acted to establish standards.
The principal commitments of the firms by paper mills for compliance with state waste treatment orders last year, Williams said, included the Fort Howard Paper Company of Green Bay, the Ward Paper Company of Merrill, Nicolet Paper of Green Bay, and Georgia Pacific of Tomahawk.
The board approved the funding of a game division plan for the rip-rapping of the banks of Lake Poygan on state owned lands, to prevent the destruction of duck nesting habitat through erosion. Game men-one-time public officials said that private landowners have been spending their funds on such improvement work on their own properties and have regarded the state as negligent in meeting its share of the responsibility for resource protection there.
The board also was assured by the game division that it is enlarging its program of deer range habitat improvement in the upper Wisconsin zones where some of the major deer range has been deteriorating. The project is a special interest of the new chairman of the board, a lifelong resident and one-time public official in Price County, one of the major deer counties of the Wisconsin Northwest.
The board approved the purchase of about $100,000 worth of land near Madison to construct what will be the first off-highway motorcycle range under authority of a 1969 legislative act that provided financing for such projects by increasing the registration fees imposed on motorcycleists.

Gone Are the Pool Cards

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
Go into a tavern — any tavern — in Appleton today and try to find a Super Bowl pool card.
You'll have a better chance of finding a bottle of Gem beer, a spittoon, a free lunch or a pack of Wines.
Appleton detectives seized four pool cards from three taverns Thursday night. They might have seized more had "the word" not traveled so fast after their first stop.
Tavernkeepers can't say the police visits were a total surprise. Chief Earl O. Wolff let it be known a couple of months ago that as far as he was concerned, the days of the pool cards in Appleton were numbered. Ditto, he hinted, for raffles, bingo games, lotteries and any other illegal contests that for many years were "tolerated."
No One's Immune
And, officials warned, the priest was just as apt to be arrested as the tavern operator if violations continued.
"We won't go out looking for business," an official said today. But he said his men no longer will close their eyes or turn their heads when they come face to face with pool cards.
Some Appleton tavern operators were not happy with the pool card crackdown. Some of them even said nasty things about the police.
One said they were "foolish" and another said they were "kind of silly."
Still another said, "Wolff is cutting his own throat," whatever that meant.
"I think it's lousy. What the hell do they expect?" one tavernkeeper remarked. He said he had operated pool cards all year — "right straight through." When the football season ended he had bowling cards and when bowling ended he had baseball cards. He had lots of cards. They all came down Thursday afternoon.
They're an "innocent sport" was the opinion of a tavernkeeper who said pool cards "make people happy." He had a lot of cards, too. Not today. "I've been in business 20 years. I'm not going to blow it on this. I've got one of the better places in town and I intend to keep it that way," he reflected.
"They can have mine," a tavernkeeper laughed. "I've got mimeographed copies, anyway."
Won't Seize Money
Police say they have no intention of seizing the money invested in the pool cards they rounded up Thursday. They'll even give the cards back after this Sunday's Super Bowl game so participants can get their money back.
Most tavernkeepers said they were paying out everything paid into the pools. A couple aren't, though, one explained. There are a couple of "booze boards" that pay off in liquor rather than money.
Pool cards are good for business. "They buy at least a glass of beer when they come in to sign up," a tavernkeeper explained. They buy lots of glasses when they come to collect.
What bothered some proprietors is that now some of those glasses of beer are going to be bought at taverns where the pool cards will remain on the back bar. And that, they say, means taverns in every place but Appleton. Other area police agencies

Police Warn Bars Of Illegal Lotteries

A stiff warning regarding to win a prize, the award of lotteries has been issued by which is determined by chance. Appleton Police Chief Earl O. Wolff following the confiscation skill.

J.'s tavern, 500 Assistant Atty. Gen. Jeffrey B. W. College Ave., and the Uli-Bartell. "Paying money to enter a contest constitutes "consideration," he says, "and if the received in his department and other elements of prize and apparent continued violations of chance are present, the contest law, Wolff quoted the state is an illegal lottery."
"Violators are subject to state statute, a lottery is de-arrest," Wolff warns, "and fined as "an enterprise wherein lure applications for city liquor consideration the participants and permits may be in pants are given an opportunity jeopardy if violations continue."

State Businessmen Predict Upswing in Economy

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Business Editor
Better economic times should start to be noticed during the first half of this year, two Wisconsin businessmen predicted cautiously Thursday at an Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce business outlook luncheon.
The prognostication came from L. C. Hobert, president of Gimbels of Wisconsin, and Marvin R. Swentkofske, vice president for research of Loewi & Co., Inc., Milwaukee.
Both, however, noted that economic predictions are risky these days, as they discussed the economy with Appleton business leaders at the Conway Motor Inn.
Hobert agreed with contentions that the Fox Valley has an adequately stable economy.
He noted the strong Fox Valley population growth, calling it "one of the fastest growing areas in Wisconsin," and said that it seems to have "a more widely diversified economy" than other Wisconsin metropolitan areas.
Better Situation
He confirmed Swentkofske's contention the Valley wasn't as depressed as other regions. Total employment in October, 1970, was down 5 per cent in Valley cities compared with a year earlier while manufacturing employment was down 8.3 per cent for the entire state, he said.
Hobert's firm plans to open its downtown Gimbels store in the first two weeks of March and will employ about 500 persons, virtually all but the manager from the area.
Asked how downtown Appleton was attractive to a major retailer while downtown Green Bay is having troubles with its downtown development, Hobert said: "This is a terrific tribute to the businessmen in the city of Appleton because they anticipated what is happening to downtown areas and did something about it even before inviting us in."
He said adequate parking, the rejuvenated College Avenue and the growth of the area and its economy were major factors in the selection of downtown Appleton.
Hobert, with Gimbels for 33 years, predicted that early 1971 would see a recovery nationally in general merchandising sales. He also foresaw a return in consumer confidence in the economy.
"The worst is over and better times are ahead," he said, noting business should start gaining momentum.
Hobert said that today retailers must address themselves to a new "consumerism," an opening of the lines of communication between the consumer and the retailer.
An example, he said, is Ford Motor Company's television commercials stating "we listen." Ford urges the consumer to tell it what's wrong with its product.
Consumer Consideration
The government also is being drawn into consideration of the consumer, and there is great pressure for establishing a federal consumer agency.
"Broader consumer regulations will be adopted, and there will be a tightening of specific Turn to Page 3, Col. 6

Board Returns Canceled COG Fees to County

State Legal Ruling Prompts Return of Funds From Budget

Outagamie County communities will shortly receive checks to reimburse them for taxes they paid for county membership in the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), which never materialized.

The $61,000 will be apportioned back to the communities on the basis of equalized valuation, the same way it was collected.

Returning the monies was approved by the county board Tuesday over the objections of Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, Appleton, who questioned the legality of the action and the authority of the county to make such a refund.

His motion to refer the refunding to the county corporation counsel to seek an attorney general's opinion lost 23-19.

The county had placed the funds in the budget with the intention of picking up the membership fees of county communities in COG with the aim of exerting pressure to promote a merger of COG and the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

The attorney general later ruled, after the budget was adopted, that the county could not become a member of COG while it was a member of Northeastern.

In the meantime, some of the COG members did not provide membership fees in their budgets because they expected the county to pick up the cost.

Bubolz contended the only way the funds could legally be returned to the taxpayers was to hold the money in escrow until next year and then use it to reduce the tax levy.

Acting Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath disagreed. He said through Jan. 29 is the result of the original levy was illegal, since the attorney general ruled the county could not be a part of COG. If that was illegal, giving it back should not be wrong, Ponath reasoned.

Bubolz said the attorney general's opinion indicated it would have been illegal only if the money actually had been paid for the memberships.

"I'm not attempting to keep the funds from the communities," Bubolz said. "I'm concerned over the legality of the act."

In returning the funds, the local communities will actually be receiving a slight windfall. Of the $61,000, only $11,000 was actually added to the county tax levy. The other $50,000 was obtained by reducing the proposed contingency fund for 1971 and did not affect the levy.

However, county officials felt it would be hard to convince local officials of their intention have not yet taken a hard line position on pool cards.

Will the pool card drought continue in Appleton?

Police say yes.

Tavernkeepers say maybe.

"I'm going to put mine away for a little while — until it cools off," one said.

"They say they're going to outlaw it. What can you do? I've got to quit," said another. "It stinks."

Wait For Baseball

"We'll just wait and see what the baseball season brings," an optimistic tavern-keeper ventured.

A few confided that they would move their cards from on top of the bar to under it. And anyone wanting to make an investment better have good references.

A tavernkeeper who lost his pool card to two detectives Thursday wasn't bitter. They gave him a receipt, didn't take the money and promised to return the card.

"I'd rather have a warning by detectives than a visit by the feds," he said.

Wolff had a suggestion for anyone who doesn't like his pool card crackdown. "Get the law changed."

Neenah Foundry to Shut Down for Week

Neenah Foundry Co. will shut down its production operation for a four-day work week. The firm at the same time, keeps the pull, economically, but the immediate future is a little questionable. We do not know," a spokesman said.

The firm's total employment, including salaried supervisory personnel, is 1,100, down from a normal of 1,200 earlier last year. There have been no layoffs but only attrition, a spokesman said.

The shutdown will be without pay but was preferred by the company over drastic layoffs or and decided to return the entire amount. Reimbursement by community:

A fine of $100 and costs was imposed this morning on Stuart Paul Nitzke, 34, Berlin, for disorderly conduct. Nitzke pleaded guilty in front of Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller. Appleton police cited Nitzke in the county jail Tuesday night, when, saying he was a witness to a property damage accident, he refused to leave the jail after interfering with officers who were completing an accident report.

A two-car accident Thursday morning brought a pump on the head to Adeline Smith, 63, 608 N. Richmond St., when the car driven by her husband Charles, 65, collided at Richmond and Spring streets with one driven by Nancy R. Hinzman, 34, 1337 E. Marquette St.

A flashlight was missing after a break-in Thursday evening at Koehke's Barber Shop, 908 S. Oneida St., where intruders entered after breaking glass out of two doors.

Fuel oil, which flooded over its burner and ignited, sent four units of the Appleton Fire Department Thursday to a home occupied by William Paladen, 311½ E. McKinley St. The brief fire was under control when they arrived, but officials turned off the oil supply. The residence is owned by Dorothy Jennerjohn, 311 E. McKinley St.

KAUKAUNA — Two drivers were cited for traffic violations after accidents Wednesday.

Mrs. Donald Wenzel, 404 Park St., was cited for failure to yield for oncoming traffic after the car she was driving north on Kenneth Avenue collided with a car being driven south on Kenneth by Anthony Marx, 25, 1505 Kenneth Ave., about 8:35 a.m. According to police, Mrs. Wenzel attempted to turn in front of the approaching auto.

At 7:25 p.m. Mrs. Roy Brownell, 29, 603 Marcella Ave., Combined Locks, was charged with driving too fast for conditions after the car she was driving north on Kenneth Avenue crossed the center line as she was attempting to negotiate a curve and slid into the path of a car being driven by Richard Miller, 23, 401 Eden Ave.

KAUKAUNA — Dow Miller, 716 W. 10th St., told police he found a record player missing from his home after returning from work Tuesday night. A rear door was found open and a lower window broken.

Air Wisconsin Reports 1970 Shipment Increase

Air Wisconsin reported more than doubling its air freight shipments out of Appleton in 1970 over the previous year and a slight increase in the number of passenger boardings and departures at the Outagamie County Airport.

Freight shipments amounted to 949,032 pounds last year, compared to 472,741 pounds in 1969. The biggest month was March with 5,205 incoming and outgoing passengers. The smallest month was December with 4,025 passengers.

System-wide, Air Wisconsin reported carrying 115,090 passengers. The number of passengers boarded at each station, in addition to Appleton, were: Chicago, 44,286; Wausau, 7,349; Kankakee, 1,960; Milwaukee, 1,845; Minneapolis, 5,505; Kokomo, 4,905; Marion, 2,567; Sheboygan, 5363; Manitowish, 1,040; Elkhart, 6,159, and Detroit 4,762.

There were 58,499 passengers controls over individual products," he said.

He predicted congressional action on mandatory federal health and safety standards for consumer goods; stiffer control over consumer product warranties; a mandatory labeling system, and improved enforcement of regulations.

Defense Spending

Swentkowske predicted the government would play a major role in the restimulation and include a return to more defense spending. But, he said, the Fox Valley probably won't feel the upturn as strongly initially as certain other areas because it wasn't dragged down as far and also doesn't rely on defense production.

He said that government "income policy," another name for wage and price controls, "must be part and parcel of the restimulation of the economy," and this can come in many forms.

Improve Bargaining

He said that the nation already has seen the use of threat of opening the way for foreign steel imports, and there is a possibility of a third party — possibly government — becoming a third factor representing the public interest in labor-management bargaining.

Another, he said, would be to improve management's bargaining position since price increases are stemming from rising labor costs. He said he felt that in a somewhat turn-about fashion Bethlehem Steel Co., Bethlehem, Pa., has created this situation — if the president forces Bethlehem to back down on its announced price increase, he also will have to support the company in efforts to hold down wage agreements.

Wage-price guidelines also could be instituted but it's unlikely because they haven't worked in the past, he said.

Swentkowske said he expected President Nixon to outline future fiscal measures in his upcoming budget message. "The government feels it is necessary now to stimulate the economy," he said, noting it could appear politically motivated.

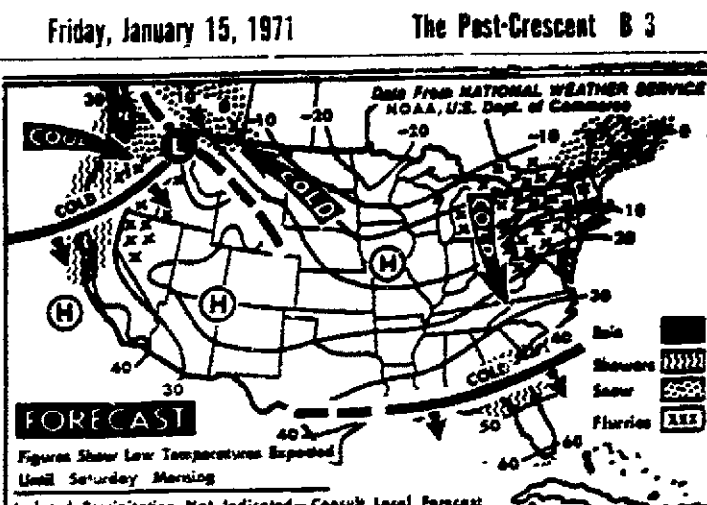

He said that the valley's paper and food industries and woolen mills probably would feel the uplift in the coming months but that the producer goods manufacturers — those making equipment, such as presses, farm and industrial machinery — would be depressed until late in 1971 or into 1972.

"It will take nine to 15 months for these industries to recover," he said.

Directors of Kidney Group Plan Meeting

The first meeting of the board of directors of the Fox Valley Chapter of the Kidney Foundation of Wisconsin, Inc., will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah.

The chapter was organized in autumn, 1970. Larry J. Wittenrunk is president.

Snow and Snow Flurries are forecast tonight for the Northeast and in the West. Showers are predicted on the West Coast and in the Southeast. There will be cold temperatures over much of the nation. (AP Wire-photo Map)

Signs 5-Year Pact as Packer Coach-General Manager Devine Gets Fast Start on Job

BY LEON WAGNER
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Dan Devine didn't waste any time getting at his new job.

At about 4:30 p.m. Thursday, while Packer President Dominic Olejniczak was conducting a press conference in the general manager's office, at Packer headquarters to announce the hiring of Devine, Packer Personnel Director Pat Peppel was on the phone in his office two doors down the hallway.

At the other end of Peppel's phone line was Devine, in Kansas City where he was to give a speech that night requesting a progress report on the draft preparations.

He had been notified that he was the Packers' definite choice at noon.

"We discussed some of the obvious things about the situation and I gave him a progress report because he's going to be tied up yet for a little while," Peppel explained.

For Peppel, it was renewing an old acquaintance. Peppel was a high school coach in East Lansing, Mich., when Devine served as freshman coach at Michigan State. And the two have met on and off since then, leading Peppel to observe that the new Packer headmaster is a "dedicated" man.

Judging by Devine's leap into the work, Peppel's observation was certainly sound. Indeed, he backed up Olejniczak's evaluation that Devine made an impression with his "firm, positive position, intelligence, familiarity with the Packer game and personnel and a real desire to go to work for the Packers."

The latter was a bit surprising since Devine had stated only a short time ago, after turning down an offer from UCLA, that he expected to remain at Missouri "for a long time to come." In 13 years as Missouri coach, he posted a 93-37-7 record. In three years at Arizona State before moving to Missouri, he compiled a 27-3-1 record. The only losing season of his career was the one just completed when the Tigers fell to 5-6.

Olejniczak refused to discuss what contractual terms may have lured the 44-year-old Devine from his position as Missouri coach and athletic director with tenure as a full professor.

But Devine moves into the Packers' post with a 5-year contract as "coach and general manager of football operations." Olejniczak explained that this means he will have complete charge of "anything pertaining to the operation of the football club. Anything directly or indirectly tied with the football operation...staff, hiring players, trading, purchasing equipment, facilities."

Corporate Concern
The only things not included in his authority, Olejniczak said, would be matters of corporate concern such as investing of corporate funds or stock transfers.

Regarding the current Packer assistant coaches, obviously concerned about their status, Turn to Page 6, Col. 2

"It should be a real mean one."

That response was prompted from Lawrence basketball coach John Poulson Thursday as he contemplated his Vikings' invasion of Ripon College Saturday night.

Both quintets will be hungry for their first Midwest Conference victory in the tussle, which follows a 5:30 p.m. clash between the two schools' freshman squads. Lawrence is currently holding up the rest of the league with an 0-3 mark, while Ripon is 0-2.

Although both the Vikes and Redmen were victims of the same teams last weekend, Ripon will be the favorite in Saturday's game. Coach John Weinert's athletes played St. Olaf and Carleton on the road head-to-head, losing to the Oles 99-96, and to the Carls 68-65.

The Vikes, meanwhile, were having a considerably tougher time, falling 94-58 to St. Olaf and 75-65 to Carleton.

Of the most recent setbacks Poulson lamented: "We didn't play well over weekend. Our whole thing is defense and rebounding, and we still haven't found the right ingredients."

Despite the unhappy start in league play, Poulson isn't pushing the panic button yet as far as lineup changes go. He plans to use regulars Rick Farmer and Kevin Gage at forwards, John Linnen at center, and Jim Dyer and Strat Warden in the backcourt.

Reuben Plantico, Mark Fredeson, Jerry Williams, Paul Kitzke, and Bruce Colwell all have about equal shots at coming off the bench to help.

The play of Gage, a 6-4 sophomore, has been the bright spot for the Vikes to date. He was especially hot last week with 22- and 34-point performances against St. Olaf and Carleton, respectively. He has averaged 21.4 points in LU's two wins and four losses overall.

Other top Vike scorers have been Warden, 33, Dyer, 32 and Linnen, 20.

Gage will have to be at his best and so will the rest of the squad if the Vikes hope to upend the Redmen in their own backyard. "We've got hustlers on the boards and be more aggressive," Poulson noted.

The battle under the backboard, where Lawrence has suffered recently, promises to be another tough go with the likes of 6-6 Donn Wiese, 6-5 DeLany, 6-6 Mark Hildebrand, 6-6 John Dussling and 6-5 Mike Saloun available for duty underneath.

DeLany, a sophomore from Menomonee Falls, was Ripon's most consistent performer last weekend with 17 points against Carleton and 22 against the Oles.

Other Redmen the Vikes must guard closely include Ron Cooper (6-0), Jeff Trickey (5-9), John Williams (6-0), and Tom Koepke (6-1).

In addition to the Lawrence-Ripon tilt, eight more Midwest Conference battles are on the docket for the weekend. The most significant contests see front-running Coe (3-0) playing host to St. Olaf (2-0) Friday night and Carleton (2-0) invading the Kohawks' gym the following night.

Cornell (1-0), rated in some quarters as the team to beat in pre-season observations, has successive home games with Monmouth and Knox.

GREEN BAY — Dan Devine will not be without heartfelt knowledge of the Green Bay Packers when he assumes his role as head coach and general manager since he has followed the team and been a fan since his boyhood days in Minnesota.

"Ever since I was a youngster I have followed Green Bay football and for a fellow who grew up in Proctor, Minn. this is an opportunity that attracted me greatly," Devine said.

The 46-year-old Devine was born in Augusta, Wis., which is in the Eau Claire area. Dec. 23, 1924 and grew up in Proctor where he was captain of the high school football team.

Devine graduated from the University of Minnesota-Duluth where he played quarterback and was captain of the football team. He also played basketball and baseball and was captain of seasons under Hugh (Duffy) Daugherty.

In addition to his athletic endeavors, Devine was president of his senior class and president of the student body in his senior year.

Following his graduation, Devine served as a bombardier, navigator in the Army Air Force during World War II.

After the war, he attended Michigan State where he earned a Master of Arts degree.

His coaching career started in 1948 at East Jordan High School in Michigan where he coached post a 5-6 record.

During his 13 years as coach and five as athletic director, the Tigers have been ranked nationally nine times, four years in the top 10.

The Tigers were ranked fifth in 1960 when they posted an 11-0 record and were sixth in both 1965 and 1969. In 1968 they ranked ninth.

Six times Devine piloted Missouri into bowl games and he came away a victor in four of the contests. The Tigers won the Orange Bowl, Sugar Bowl, Gator Bowl and Bluebonnet Bowl under Devine.

In addition to his head coaching duties at Missouri, Devine was head coach in an East-West Shrine game, the Hula Bowl, the Coaches All American Bowl, the Salad Bowl and the Copper Bowl.

Devine pitted his charges against Big Ten foes 11 times during his tenure and came away with a 9-1 record against the prestigious league.

After accepting the Green Bay post, Devine said, "I was very much impressed with the people I met in Green Bay and the executive committee. My family and I are anxiously looking forward to becoming part of the community."

Devine and his wife, the former Joanne Brookhart of Duluth, have seven children: Twins Jennifer and Mary Jo, (Mrs. Andrew Carver) 22, top, the list followed by Diane, (Mrs. Stephen Greenberg) 20, Danny 16, Sarah 13, Melissa 11 and Jill 9.

UW Head Sees Dan Devine as 'Fine Coach'

MADISON (AP) — The new head man of the Green Bay Packers has a staunch backer in Madison.

Giving all-out endorsement to Dan Devine as head coach and general manager of the Packers is John C. Weaver, new president of the University of Wisconsin.

Weaver was president at the University of Missouri for the last five years of Devine's tenure there.

"Dan's a fine coach and I think the people of Wisconsin are going to like him," Weaver said.

Weaver described Devine as a low-key type and added: "He's a very, very quiet sort of man who has a lot of influence on people. He's not a man who talks very loud, but there's a punch that comes across."

Packer Board's Persistence Pays Off

Dan Devine Responds to 'Red Flag'

And if there were disappointment, Devine explained first of all his disappointment in the way the story finally broke. If it all had gone the way he wanted — professional football in general, and Green Bay wanted — it all would have been made public next Tuesday. That would have given Devine time to talk to his players, something he deems essential and something that won't occur until today.

"Couldn't Wait Around"

"But Green Bay is a small town," Devine said. "We about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, couldn't wait any longer. They maybe 4 o'clock. What I did couldn't wait too long. minutes ago, it was calling Bart Starr. I want to know if his arm is O. K. and if you want to know what I'll be doing 15 minutes after I finish this session, it will be calling Bart Starr again."

When I announced I was going to Missouri, he came over to my house and cried. At that moment I sure didn't feel any elation about going to Missouri. But players make an allegiance to the new coach. So at Missouri, the new man will step in and I will step out.

"It's the same with our recruiting. There won't be any effect on it because I leave. We're way ahead of the last two years. And they were two good ones. We all have been out on the road. You can do that when you don't play in a bowl game. I know I've seen 10 times as many boys as I had at this time last year. And I was recruiting for Missouri, not Dan Devine."

The next obvious question was whether Devine would invite some members of the Missouri staff to accompany him to Green Bay. He said, "Yes, some of them." Again he didn't want to name names.

Is there an adjustment that a coach must make when he goes from collegiate football to the professional brand? Devine said, "I don't pretend to have all the answers. All the coaches I've known who had all the answers lost their jobs."

Played By People

"But football, on any level, is played by people, not by machines. Each player is different. Each is motivated by a different thing. But I have yet to see a football game won by a team that didn't play good defense. I didn't block, didn't tackle. So the answer to coaching on any level is to get people who can execute — and get them properly motivated. (And being off head coach and general manager is Devine's frame work for dealing with professionals.)

"I would be less than honest if I didn't tell you that right now I'm thinking about what I will tell my Missouri squad. I wouldn't be honest if I didn't say I'm thinking about 100 things that should be done in Green Bay."

Does Devine have an idea about what is wrong with the Packers? Slowly he said, "There's a bugaboo that strikes all football — injuries. If you want to know what I was doing 15 minutes ago, it was calling Bart Starr. I want to know if his arm is O. K. and if you want to know what I'll be doing 15 minutes after I finish this session, it will be calling Bart Starr again."

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)

— Tom Shaw compared himself to Arnold Palmer as he discussed his winless 1970 season on the professional golf tour.

"I kept thinking I'd win a tournament. But, just like Arnold, I ran out of tournaments," said the 28-year-old blond from Oregon after shooting a four-under-par 68 Thursday to share the first round lead with Bobby Nichols and Terry Dill in the $135,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Championship.

Palmer, the game's all-time leading money winner, also went without a tournament victory in 1970. But with $128,000 in prize money, the year was forward for him.

Dill's 68 was at the four-year-old Spyglass Hill course and was the best round ever at the 8,972-yard course in Crosby competition.

Darrell, Royal, McClendon Tie For 1970 Honor

HOUSTON (AP) — Darrell Royal of Texas, Charlie McClendon of Louisiana State and Bennie Ellender of Arkansas State, three small-town Southern Boys, won Coach of Year honors Thursday from their fellow members of the American Football Coaches Association.

Royal, from Hollis, Okla., and McClendon, from Lewisville, Ark., tied for the major college award in balloting by more than 1,700 members of the AFCA. Ellender, who was hired by Tulane after guiding Arkansas State to an 11-0 record, the small college national championship and a victory in the Pecan Bowl, is from Sulphur, La.

All three were honored Thursday night at the AFCA's annual banquet.

Royal, who won the honor outright for 1963, is the first repeater in the University Division. The only previous tie in 35 years was in 1964 between Frank Broyles of Arkansas and Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame.

Ironically, Royal and McClendon lost New Year's Day bowl games but the voting was Wisconsin, and Alan Hornyak, Ohio State, each 30-0; and Ron "Shog" Northwestern, 29-0.

Wisconsin Duels Ohio State Quint Saturday Night

CHICAGO (AP) — George McGinnis of Indiana and Henry Wilmore of Michigan, two of the Big Ten's most sensational sophomores, tangle Saturday afternoon in the weekend's main basketball attraction.

In victories of 101-90 over Northwestern and 99-73 over Minnesota, McGinnis has canned 69 points. This includes 31 against the Gophers and their super soph, Jim Brewer, Tuesday night. Brewer was held to 14.

Michigan has bided its time since Saturday's 90-69 squeeze past Wisconsin in the Big Ten championship opening round. Wilmore bagged 44 points in that one.

Illinois takes its 2-0 league mark to Michigan State (1-1) in Saturday's television attraction while Minnesota (0-2) is at Purdue (2-0) in another afternoon game and Wisconsin (0-2) at Ohio State (1-0) at night.

Ohio State warmed up for re-summation in the Big Ten by trimming West Virginia 63-71 Wednesday.

In addition to Wilmore and McGinnis, other scoring leaders are Fred Brown of Iowa with a 32.5 average; Clarence Sherrod, Wisconsin, and Alan Hornyak, Ohio State, each 30-0; and Ron "Shog" Northwestern, 29-0.

Phil Esposito Sets Modern Day Mark

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins are changing the name points he set in 1968-69. He was of hockey to "shoot, shoot, runnerup last season as Orr be-shoot." They're trigger happy came the first defenseman ever and it's paying off handsomely to win the Ross Trophy as scorer in the National Hockey League with 120 points.

In other games, Philadelphia Phil Esposito, a veteran cew-whipped Toronto 3-0; Buffalo ter, and Bobby Orr, the spectac beat St. Louis 2-1; Pittsburgh ular defenseman, are the two and Detroit played to a 2-2 tie key marksmen in the Boston and Montreal tied Minnesota shooting gallery and they 3-3.

Esposito set a modern day record with his fifth "hat trick" and added three assists in his ing his league scoring lead to 81 points. Orr, runnerup to Esposito, collected four assists to boost his output to 70 points.

Shower of Hats Esposito brought a shower of hats after his third goal in the second period. The NHL record for the most hat tricks in a sea- son is seven, set by Joe Malone in 1917-18. The modern record was four set by Maurice Richard in 1946-47, and later tied by Jean Beliveau, Bobby Hull and Sandy Lemoine had a 212 game, Marsha Folkman had 205 and Bette Marzahl 203 in the Amateur season. That forbodes trouble for Marquette since the Amazing Aggies will be on the rebound against the Warriors. The Aggies gained their nickname in the NCAA championship tourney last March by beating St. Bonaventure for third place.

"Our mental mistakes killed us," commented coach Lou Henson of the Aggies. "Anytime you get outbounced this bad, 56-37, you'll lose."

Maybe the Aggies, now 10-3, this season to Marquette's 12-0, were looking past West Texas to Marquette. At any rate the Buffaloes overcame a three-point deficit in the second half to go ahead for good at 59-58 with 7:41 left to play.

Ralph Houston scored 18 points and grabbed 18 rebounds, to pace the Buffaloes. Chito Reyes was high for the Aggies with 19.

Notre Dame, beaten by Marquette 71-66 earlier in the week, bounced back to beat Detroit at South Bend 93-79 as Austin Carr threw in 47 points.

Bill Smith also scored 47 points to lead Syracuse over Lafayette 106-92. The performance of the 6-foot-11 Smith set a school record, erasing Dave Bing's 46 in 1965.

Xavier High School's freshman team came back from a first period deficit to down Fox Valley Lutheran, 50-36.

The Foxes took a 13-10 advantage after one period, but Xavier came back to lead 26-23 at the intermission. The Hawks added to the lead after three quarters, 39 - 34, and outscored FVL 11-2, in the final segment.

Craig Martin and Tom Flood, strand led Xavier with 14 and 12 points, respectively. Nobody had more than eight points for FVL, the Xavier frosh are 6-4 for added to the lead after three quarters.

Upperclassmen returning to this years squad include Mike Breitman (134 lbs.), a sophomore from Appleton, whom Biegel expects to be the Vikes' top wrestler.

Last year, Lawrence was 6-1 in dual meet competition and tied for fourth in the conference meet.

The Royals led 101-99 when the hot-handed West tied it with the first of his big field goals at the six-minute mark. Then the Lakers' veteran guard added nine more to help his club pull away in the contest played on a neutral floor in Toronto, Can.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Chicago beat Philadelphia 103-103; Buffalo trimmed Portland 119-113; Detroit topped Cleveland 108-106; Phoenix bombed New York 107-93 and Seattle turned back Baltimore, 114-110.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Utah, 116; Memphis 102; Carolina 133; Floridians 130 and Pittsburgh 122. Kentucky 111.

Johnny Green, the 37-year-old wonder who sat out most of the second and fourth quarters, led the Royals with 27 points.

Bob Love spearheaded a fourth-quarter surge for Chicago, scoring nine of his 27 points, as the Bulls pulled away from Philadelphia. Bailey Howell led the 76ers with 22 points.

Bob Kauffman scored 30 points to lead Buffalo over Portland. The Braves trailed 27-11 after seven minutes but rallied for a 31-31 first quarter tie, then pulled into a 59-54 halftime lead behind Kauffman's scoring.

Jimmy Walker's 15-foot jumper with four seconds left enabled Detroit to beat Cleveland which lost its 45th game in 51.

Phoenix slapped a defensive lid on New York, holding the Knicks to 14 third quarter points, and rolled behind Dick Van Arsdale's 25 points. Paul Silas helped to knock out the Knickerbockers with 20 rebounds.

Surge Falls Short

Seattle, ahead by 21 points early in the fourth period, withstood a late Baltimore surge that just fell short. The Super-Sonics led 96-75 before the Bulls cut the deficit to 110-108 on a basket by Jack Marin.

Player-coach Lenny Wilkens hit a field goal for Seattle and a turnover by Baltimore's Earl Monroe made it 112-110 with 27 seconds left. Wilkens was fouled with four seconds to play and he converted both shots to wrap up the verdict.

Wilkens topped the Sonics with 34 points and Monroe was high for the Bulls with 22.

Israeli Commandos Strike in Lebanon

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli commandos penetrated 26 miles into Lebanon during the night, killing 10 Arabs at a Palestinian guerrilla base on the coast and wounding many more. Israel's military command said today.

It was the deepest Israeli incursion into Lebanon since the attack on the Beirut airport Dec. 23, 1963.

The Lebanese government reported two guerrillas killed and seven wounded. It said helicopters and ships landed the raiders at Sarafand, on the Mediterranean coast, under cover of naval bombardment.

An Israeli spokesman said six Israelis were wounded. He reported that the raiders blew up two houses, a number of caves and underground buildings used for housing and storage, and a rocket launcher mounted on a raft.

Little Harbor
Officials in South Lebanon said Sarafand was a "secret little harbor used by the guerrillas for embarkations to the occupied Gaza Strip."

The Lebanese army said the Israelis made two assaults. A communique reported:

"A helicopter borne Israeli force, supported by naval units, raided the harbor and town of Sarafand, south of Sidon, at midnight last night. The raiding force was engaged by our coastal forces and artillery."

"At around 3 a.m., the enemy tried to land another force by helicopters in the same area, which was already under siege. The Lebanese troops, our forces prevented the second landing attempt and forced the raiders to withdraw in confusion."

The Lebanese defense minister, Elias Saba, reported the Israelis used five helicopters in the attack.

Cyclist Found Innocent of Filmed Death

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A member of a motorcycle club has been acquitted of murdering a youth at a rock music festival while movie cameras rolled and an estimated 300,000 persons listened to the Rolling Stones. The slaying appears in a sequence of the movie "Gimme Shelter."

Alan David Passaro, 22, of San Jose, Calif., a member of the Hells Angels, whooped a joyful "Yow!" and his blonde wife Celeste burst into tears when a court clerk read the verdict Thursday.

But Passaro is back today in the same 10th floor Alameda County jail he occupied when his trial started a month ago to await return to Soledad State Prison to complete a 2-to-10-year sentence for parole violation. Originally he was sentenced from Santa Clara County for theft of a motorbike and marijuana possession.

He told a court reporter after the verdict was read Thursday, "I didn't think I had a chance."

Passaro's defense was that he was hit by two knife wounds inflicted on Meredith Hunter, 18, of Berkeley, were not the fault of the Hells Angels, but of the Lebanese troops. Our forces prevented the second landing attempt and forced the raiders to withdraw in confusion."

The Israelis said they learned of the base from five Palestinian frogmen who landed Jan. 2 on the northern Israeli coast "to kidnap an Israeli citizen."

The last previous retaliatory raid into Lebanon occurred on Dec. 27, when several Arabs and one Israeli were reported killed in an attack on a village six miles across the border.

Youngster Gives Statement in Madison Blaze

MADISON (AP) — A 12-year-old girl was questioned Thursday about a $250,000 fire that destroyed Westminster Presbyterian Church and forced evacuation of about 40 youngsters from an adjoining church school Wednesday.

Francis Roberts, a state fire marshal, and Lt. Ken Vodak, a city fire inspector, said the girl provided them with a verbal statement and was placed in her parents' custody pending further investigation.

They said matches taken from a sanctuary cabinet evidently were used to set a wall curtain afire. There were no injuries.

Dole Party Chairman 3-Way Leadership Named for GOP

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert J. Dole says whatever the rules in the Republicans' new three-way party leadership arrangement, "I'm going to be the boss."

The GOP National Committee's ratification of Dole today

Evans, who has been deputy chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee, "it bluntly, saying state party leaders want to be sure somebody with influence will be available when they pick up the telephone and call the national committee."

"These people want somebody with clout, somebody they can be sure of reaching," he said. "They don't care who goes on television, they care who they can get on the telephone."

Full-Time Chairman
"A lot of people want a full-time chairman," said Peter O'Donnell, national committee man from Texas. "This is a step to overcome that problem."

Actually, it is a settlement that simply changes the titles, and presumably the responsibilities, of the two top deputies to the national chairman. In the past, there has been a deputy chairman, the GOP's chief administrator, with a woman serving as assistant chairman. Dole said the responsibilities will be enlarged along with the change in titles.

Evans is 39, an attorney and president of Evans and Associates, Inc., a Wilmington insurance firm specializing in employee benefit programs. He was a fund-raiser and state chairman of the Nixon presidential campaign. He also has served as director of the Delaware State Development Commission.

Premarital Sex On Increase, Sociologist Says
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Carlifred B. Broderick, professor of sociology at Pennsylvania State University, says premarital sexual intercourse is increasing in this country and that women are participating more freely.

The exception, he said, is the Deep South where "the traditional double standard of sexual morality is more influential."

Broderick, a guest lecturer at the University of Southern California Wednesday, said his studies indicate that in conservative sections of the nation, the number of women who take part in sexual intercourse before marriage has increased from about 10 per cent to 30 per cent in recent years. In the more liberal areas, he said the number has risen from 30 per cent to 50 per cent.

Today's Chuckle
There's only one trouble with resisting temptation — it may never come again.

Sen. Robert Dole

The first-term Kansas senator said that would free him from administrative and office-keeping duties at the national committee to tend to his work in the Senate and to speak for the party on the road.

He said that is the way President Nixon wants it.

Nixon named Dole, as expected, and the two new co-chairmen—a title-changing move not anticipated—in a telephone conversation Thursday with a nominating committee selected to seek a new chairman.

The settlement had been carefully orchestrated in advance conferences among Morton, Dole, White House political aides and the new co-chairmen.

"As I understand it," said

King's Birthday Being Observed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dr. Martin Luther King, the slain civil rights champion and peace advocate, is being honored today, his 42nd birthday, with tributes and ceremonies in most of the nation.

Religious and memorial services, school, business and government office closings were scheduled in many parts of the country in tribute to the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize recipient, who was fatally shot in Memphis on April 4, 1968.

Florida Gov. Reuben Askew proclaimed the day "Human Relations Day" and Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton issued a statement calling King "another King Day," with schools American who believed that all our countrymen should share in the fruits of freedom ... we honor his memory and the principles for which he stood."

Dr. Ralph D. Abernathy, also

In King's hometown of Atlanta, his widow was to attend a memorial service at the family's Ebenezer Baptist church. School children in the city will have the day off but the state does not officially observe the day as a holiday.

Scores of cities have proclaimed the day as "Martin Luther King Day," with schools closed and municipal employees given the day off. The State of Michigan has proclaimed it "Human Relations Day" in honor of King.

In Memphis, where King was shot on a motel balcony as he led a strike of predominantly black sanitation workers, the only announced observance was readings at a Baptist church of excerpts from his speeches and writings.

A white escaped convict, James Earl Ray, pleaded guilty to King's murder and is serving a 99-year sentence in the Tennessee penitentiary.

In South Vietnam, 40 black soldiers took part in a march at the Army's Long Binh headquarters post to commemorate King's birthday.

Memorabilia On Sale in San Francisco
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bits and pieces of history and nostalgia are on public sale, ranging from a 1900-style bathroom suit to a tiny carriage presented by Queen Victoria to the wife of midget Tom Thumb.

Collectors by the hundreds jammed the famed Cliff House, overlooking the rugged Pacific Coast as the 11-day sale opened Thursday.

One of the first arrivals, an unidentified man, paid $3,900 for six marble statues which once graced Sutro Gardens, beside the now-demolished public Sutro Baths.

Another, Arthur Moody of Arlington, Va., paid $1,245 for five "authentically simulated Egyptian and Peruvian mummies," a "Tennessee penitentiary."

Cliff House Properties is staging the sale of the vast collection of the late George K. Whitney, who owned the Cliff House, Sutro Baths and Playland at the Beach, popular recreation centers at the turn of the century.

The most expensive thing, at $50,000, is the Tom Thumb collection, which includes his brass bed, clothing and other personalized things such as the carriage from Queen Victoria.

Tom Thumb, billed as the world's most famous midget, who grew to a height of 33 inches, died in 1883.

Mrs. Terry D'Orazi of Pacifica, Calif., paid $25 for something she couldn't describe. "I don't know what it is—it looks like horns or something," she said.

300 MILE ENDURANCE TEST

outlasts 70 entries for more than 20 hours

MIDWEST ENDURANCE CHAMPION: John Ireland, Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Ariens ARROW 440SX
proves its quality and dependability

A non-professional snowmobiler riding a stock Ariens machine captured first place honors in the Midwestern Endurance Derby sponsored by the Peninsula Pathfinders Club, Marquette, Michigan. The seventy entrants began at noon Saturday and ran continuously until only the Ariens Arrow was left — around 8:00 A.M. Sunday morning. A five minute pit stop was allowed every two hours for gas and food, but no repairs or replacements of any kind were permitted. Ireland, who is affiliated with WFRV-TV (NBC-Ch. 5), Green Bay, Wisconsin, reported that, Speed was not the objective of the race, but stressed that the derby was a test of machines for consumer reliability.

Cheese Gets Sales Push In New York

MADISON — The first of three cheese promotions out of Wisconsin will open Monday in New York City, according to Peter Jacobs, head of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture out-of-state promotion program.

Similar promotions will be started April 26 in Buffalo, N. Y., and June 6 in Cleveland, Ohio.

The programs are being conducted by the American Dairy Association of Wisconsin and state agriculture department. Alice in Dairyland, Miss Susan Masterson, Janesville, will participate in the festivals.

Before sales campaigns begin, workshops will be conducted for store managers, supervisors and dairy department personnel to explain manufacturing, grading and cheese varieties. Store personnel also will be trained in ways to properly merchandise and display cheese.

Butter sales will be promoted in Chicago during April in a coordinated campaign of the agriculture department and American Dairy Association.

ADA Slates District Rally At Seymour

SEYMOUR — James Kasten, Shawano, public relations director for Consolidated Badger Cooperative, Shawano, will speak here Thursday during the American Dairy Association (ADA) annual district meeting.

The meeting will start at 11:30 a.m. Thursday at the Lutheran Church Parish Hall. A free lunch will be served at noon.

Guernsey Parley in Appleton

Milk Check-Off Gets Push

Farmers may find themselves without a market for milk unless they guard it by chipping in for dairy promotion, said Frank Groves, Madison, University of Wisconsin dairy marketing specialist, Wednesday at a Guernsey Go-Go meeting in Appleton for Northeast Wisconsin breeders.

Groves supported a two-cent per hundredweight check-off on milk proposed by the Wisconsin Dairy Federation.

The proposal would raise $3.5 million from the state's 60,000 dairymen for advertising promotion and research, say proponents.

"If you don't change pretty soon you're going to be as outmoded as horse-drawn equipment," he told dairymen.

Markets Disappear

Consumers no longer have to depend on dairymen for milk or dairy products, he said. Imitations and substitutes have eroded traditional markets. "Farmers today don't have a monopoly on the market."

Sales of Wisconsin dairy products also are complicated because an estimated 85 per cent of the dairy products are sold outside the state.

Money is needed to sell products outside the state, according to Groves. He said farmers are increasingly conscious of complicated

Fox Valley Dairymen May Get Price Boost

BY DAVID WEITZ

Post-Crescent Farm Editor

Fox River Valley dairymen may receive fatter checks for Class I fluid milk sold in Chicago after Feb. 15. A superpool premium price of $6.59 per hundredweight has been negotiated with Chicago Regional Milk Marketing Order for the Class I milk by Central Milk Producers Cooperative, (CMPC).

The organization is formed of 16 Wisconsin and Illinois dairy cooperatives which officials claim control more than 90 per cent of the milk sold in the Chicago Regional Milk Marketing Order.

Superpool prices will go into effect Feb. 15, according to Robert Van Liere, Chicago, CMPC president. He said the price is 50 cents greater per hundredweight than existing levels.

Under the federal Chicago Regional Marketing Order, the present price of Class I fluid milk is $6.03. Blend prices farmers receive are based on the prices and utilization for Class I fluid milk which is used for bottling and of Class II manufacturing milk.

The premium raising Class I fluid milk prices automatically raises the blend prices to farmers.

Exact price hikes cannot be determined until administrators calculate the amount of milk sold by the organization during February, explained a CMPC official.

If the premium had been in effect in November, Wisconsin dairymen would have gained from $500,000 to $700,00, he indicated. During November the organization marketed an estimated 578 million pounds of milk.

He predicted a February price hike at 25 cents per hundredweight if half the milk sold in Chicago is used as Class I fluid milk for bottling.

Charolais Unit Nets Growth During 1970

HOUSTON — New registrations of Charolais during 1970 set a high of 147,113 animals, according to J. Scott Henderson, executive secretary of the American-International Charolais Association.

Henderson said the growth is 65.9 per cent more animals than a year earlier. He indicated acceptance of crossbreeding is largely responsible for the hike.

Cheese Gets Sales Push In New York

MADISON — The first of three cheese promotions out of Wisconsin will open Monday in New York City, according to Peter Jacobs, head of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture out-of-state promotion program.

Similar promotions will be started April 26 in Buffalo, N. Y., and June 6 in Cleveland, Ohio.

The programs are being conducted by the American Dairy Association of Wisconsin and state agriculture department. Alice, in Dairyland, Miss Susan Masterson, Janesville, will participate in the festivals.

Before sales campaigns begin, workshops will be conducted for store managers, supervisors and dairy department personnel to explain manufacturing, grading and cheese varieties. Store personnel also will be trained in ways to properly merchandise and display cheese.

Butter sales will be promoted in Chicago during April in a coordinated campaign of the agriculture department and American Dairy Association.

ADA Slates District Rally At Seymour

SEYMOUR — James Kasten, Shawano, public relations director for Consolidated Badger Cooperative, Shawano, will speak here Thursday during the American Dairy Association (ADA) annual district meeting.

The meeting will start at 11:30 a.m. Thursday at the Lutheran Church Parish Hall. A free lunch will be served at noon.

A registered purebred calf is being offered as a door prize. The winner may select either a registered Holstein from the Hilmer Mueller farm, route 3, Seymour, or a registered Guernsey from the farm of Laverne Wehrman, route 1, Black Creek.

Milk Check-Off Gets Push

Farmers may find themselves without a market for milk unless they guard it by chipping in for dairy promotion, said Frank Groves, Madison, University of Wisconsin dairy marketing specialist, Wednesday at a Guernsey Go-Go meeting in Appleton for Northeast Wisconsin breeders.

Groves supported a two-cent per hundredweight check-off on milk proposed by the Wisconsin Dairy Federation.

The proposal would raise $3.5 million from the state's 60,000 dairymen for advertising promotion and research, say proponents.

"If you don't change pretty soon you're going to be as outmoded as horse-drawn equipment," he told dairymen.

Markets Disappear

Consumers no longer have to depend on dairymen for milk or dairy products, he said. Imitations and substitutes have eroded traditional markets. "Farmers today don't have a monopoly on the market."

Sales of Wisconsin dairy products also are complicated because an estimated 85 per cent of the dairy products are sold outside the state.

Money is needed to sell products outside the state, according to Groves. He said farmers are increasingly conscious of complicated

Fox Valley Dairymen May Get Price Boost

Post-Crescent Farm Editor

Fox River Valley dairymen may receive fatter checks for Class I fluid milk sold in Chicago after Feb. 15. A superpool premium price of $6.59 per hundredweight has been negotiated with Chicago Regional Milk Marketing Order for the Class I milk by Central Milk Producers Cooperative, (CMPC).

The organization is formed of 16 Wisconsin and Illinois

dairy cooperatives which officials claim control more than 99 per cent of the milk sold in the Chicago Regional Milk Marketing Order.

Superpool prices will go into effect Feb. 15, according to Robert Van Lier, Chicago, CMPC president. He said the price is 59 cents greater per hundredweight than existing levels.

Under the federal Chicago Regional Marketing Order, the present price of Class I fluid milk is $5.03. Blend prices farmers receive are based on the prices and utilization for Class I fluid milk which is used for bottling and of Class II manufacturing milk.

The premium raising Class I fluid milk prices automatically raises the blend prices to farmers.

Exact price hikes cannot be determined until administrators calculate the amount of milk sold by the organization during February, explained a CMPC official.

If the premium had been in effect in November, Wisconsin dairymen would have gained from $500,000 to $700,00, he indicated. During November the organization marketed an estimated 576 million pounds of milk.

He predicted a February price hike at 25 cents per hundredweight if half the milk sold in Chicago is used as Class I fluid milk for bottling.

The 1970 officers all were elected directors for 1971.

Southern Corn Leaf Blight May Pay Return Visit

SEYMOUR — Wisconsin farmers probably can expect a return of Southern Corn Leaf Blight during 1971, although there is no way to judge how damaging the disease may be, said Prof. Elwood Brickbauer, University of Wisconsin extension agronomist, talking to seed and feed dealers here Tuesday at the Lutheran church.

"What it will be this summer, I don't know," he said, adding that dealers and farmers must not ignore the disease.

During 1971 favorable humidity, heat and southerly winds combined to waft spores of the disease throughout the corn belt. "We saw it clear up to the Ashland Experimental Station."

Although some Wisconsin farms suffered severe losses, the disease was not of economic importance on a state-wide basis, he said.

The spread of the disease was complicated because most seed used in the Midwest contains a Texas male sterile cytoplasm genetic factor which is susceptible to the blight.

By using the Texas male sterile cytoplasm, seed growers are able to develop quality hybrids with sterile tassels permitting controlled breeding without costly detasseling, explained Brickbauer.

Corn grown from seed developed containing the Texas male sterile cytoplasm also is susceptible to Yellow Corn Leaf Blight which attacked Wisconsin corn a few years ago. Removal of the cytoplasm from corn may curb both diseases.

The blights "hit the ears and penetrate through the stalks," said Brickbauer. In some cases Southern Corn Leaf Blight also resulted in moldy corn.

Although a new strain of the disease swept across the corn belt last year, Southern Corn Leaf Blight is not a new problem. "The environment and everything was right so it hit this year."

Probable Answer

The apparent solution to the problem now is a return to conventional seed production methods involving laborious hand de-tasseling of corn.

"We are going to have to move over to a situation where we remove the Texas male sterile cytoplasm."

By removing the susceptible genetic factor from corn seed growers also may curb the spread of Yellow Corn Leaf Blight, which is much like Southern Corn Leaf Blight.

Seed growers are examining ways to mechanically detassel corn in attempts to reduce costs but such methods may not be sufficient. Larger seed growers now are faced with the problem of where to locate large numbers of people to de-tassel corn, said Brickbauer.

Farmers should attempt to plant adaptive hybrids next year. He cautioned against using seed designed for planting in warmer southern climates with longer growing seasons.

Brickbauer also cautioned dealers against paying "fantastic costs" for seed containing normal cytoplasm which resists the blight. Only an estimated 20 per cent of the corn seed available will contain normal cytoplasm. Other seed available will either be normal seed blended with seed bearing Texas Male Sterile Cytoplasm and the seed containing Texas Male Sterile Cytoplasm.

He warned dealers not to mix normal seed with that containing the Texas Male Sterile Cytoplasm. Mixing the seed can cause erratic maturity and increase chance of disease, he said.

Caution Urged

He said farmers with normal seed should not take chances on late frosts. "You probably won't be able to replace the normal (seed)."

Dealers also should watch seed quality. Darkened kernels could mean the seed has been infected with corn leaf blight, he said.

Residue of past crops should be plowed under, he said. "Crop sanitation is of the first order."

Fungicides can curb the disease but usually are too costly for use by commercial producers. The fungicides must be applied several times during the growing season boosting cost, explained Brickbauer.

Corn Leaf Blight Poses a Dilemma

MADISON (AP) — Corn belt farmers are confronted by a dilemma as they plan for the summer season because of the threat they face from southern corn leaf blight, the Wisconsin Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers was told Tuesday.

Robert Tracy of Janesville said the crop will hit a record 5½ billion bushels and drive corn prices down if an additional four million acres is planted to offset anticipated losses, and the blight doesn't strike.

The president of the Tracy Seed Co. said that the supply of barley and wheat for animal feed grains would be severely strained if the blight hits hard and the corn harvest is only 3½ bushels.

"Meat prices could go sky high," he said.

Farm managers were warned by Tracy not to count on blight resistant seed being grown this winter in many South American countries and Hawaii.

"This is largely foundation stock for the seed companies themselves," he said.

Hephner on Assembly Ag Panel

MADISON — State Rep. Gervase Hephner, D-Chilton, has been appointed by the speaker of the State Assembly to serve as vice-chairman of the Assembly Committee on Agriculture. He also will serve as vice-chairman of the Committee on Taxation.

Hephner is serving his third term in the legislature.

Discussing his appointment he said, "Although the problems and issues facing these committees are more numerous and complicated than in previous years, I am hopeful that these committees will be effective in facing up to their responsibilities. I shall do all I can to make the committee responsive to the needs of Wisconsin citizens."

Hephner said he considered the two committees of great importance to Calumet County residents.

Appleton Woman Lauded by Grange

GREENVILLE — The South Greenville Grange has presented a golden sheaf certificate to Mrs. Wallace Pingel, Appleton, for 50 years of membership.

Committees for Junior Grangers are community service, Jean Julius, chairman, with Tom Porter, Pat Boettcher and Steve Schuette; junior women's activities, Cheryl Crawford, chairman, with Sandy Schuette, Adelle Simon and Julie Porter; membership, Danny Simon, chairman, Jerry Julius and Linda Peters, and projects committee, Sandy Peters with Tammy Briggs and Cindy Stuckert.

Unified Milk Sales May Hike Returns

BELGIUM — Unified milk marketing can pay added dividends to farmers, said Robert J. Van Liere, Chicago, director of administrative services for the Associated Milk Producers Inc., during the annual meeting of the AMPI Milkland District here at the Community Center.

Van Liere also is director of Central Milk Producers Cooperative (CMPC), a group of 16 Wisconsin and Illinois cooperatives which market milk in Chicago.

He told farmers the best method of hiking prices is through bargaining and marketing milk using a unified agency such as CMPC.

A check-off on milk, designed to raise $3.5 million for advertising, promotion and research in Wisconsin, also was endorsed during the meeting. Eugene Teunissen, Cedar Grove, the district's representative on the AMPI Tri-State Region board of directors, backed the plan. He said the program could stimulate consumer demand for Wisconsin milk and dairy foods. The levy would collect two cents per hundredweight on milk from producers.

He emphasized that the state leads production of many dairy items and that 85 per cent of milk sold must find markets outside Wisconsin.

William H. Hagemen, route 3, Fond du Lac, was re-elected president of the Milkland District of AMPI.

In other action at the meeting, Roger Kloeppel, route 2, Hilbert; Dale H. Teunissen, route 1, Cedar Grove; and Norman G. Nehls, route 2, Juneau, were re-elected to serve on the advisory board of division 5 in the AMPI Tri-State Region. Division 5 includes 1,300 farms in central and northern Wisconsin.

Other Milkland district officers for 1971 are Roger E. Jensema, route 3, Sheboygan, vice president, and Donald A. Bonde, route 1, Newton, secretary-treasurer.

Selling Breeding Stock can pay extra dividends to Holstein breeders. Reuben Peterson, Carnation, Wash., assistant manager of Carnation Farms, describes ways Holstein

Outagamie Holstein Unit Holds Parley Stock Sales Can Hike Farm Profits

SEYMOUR — Dairymen can reap added profits by raising purebred stock, said Reuben Peterson, assistant manager of Carnation Breeding Farms, Carnation, Wash., Tuesday during the annual meeting of the Outagamie County Holstein-Friesian Association at the Pine Castle.

The additional pay-off comes when purebred breeders sell quality breeding stock, he explained. "This can be a tremendous field for each and every one of you."

By using production testing, preferably under a Dairy Herd Improvement Registry program, breeders can establish records valuable when marketing breeding stock.

Profitable Market

Increasing numbers of Holsteins are being exported for purebred herds in Italy, Korea, and Austria and to other countries. If Holstein raisers have classified stock with good records, these markets may prove lucrative.

But without good records farmers may not be able to sell cattle. "You're just not in the ball park and you're losing a good market."

By keeping records on all breeding, farmers gradually can develop good pedigrees on animals offered for sale. "Carnation won't buy cows unless they have a solid pedigree."

Classification of animals for body conformation also is important. "I think this is an absolute must."

Herd Study

Objective analysis of the dairy herd also may lead farmers to upgrade their standards. Often, said Peterson, farmers are blind to the weaknesses of their own cattle until tests reveal needed improvement.

He also urged farmers to display their cattle at dairy herd shows. "Where else can you have a showcase?" he asked. Farmers gradually can build reputations as cattle showmen by practice in the show circuit.

Advertising also can play a key role in developing markets for dairymen. Breeders must describe their quality stock to promote sales. "You cannot hide your light under a basket."

Photographs also can clinch mail-order sales for farmers. With a library of photographs the progressive dairymen can show prospective buyers cow families exhibiting proof of genetic characteristics in cattle.

One of the most deplorable things, he said, is the lack of careful breeding records on farms. "These things have to be kept in a systematic way."

Farmers trying to sell cattle should also answer their mail promptly. Inquiries from prospective buyers should receive immediate attention and replies always should list pedigree information, recommended Peterson. If photographs are available, they should be sent to prospective buyers, he said.

The over-all appearance of the farm also can determine whether or not a dairymen will sell stock. "Keep that farmstead looking pretty neat and tidy." If buyers are confronted with an unprofessional-looking farmyard they may not view cattle as favorably, he remarked.

Breeders also should study their cattle and immediately be able to answer questions about their breeding and pedigrees. "Know your cattle and what you're talking about."

Weaver Concerned About UW Undergraduates

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Improving the undergraduate's total educational experience has been made new University of Wisconsin President John C. Weaver's top priority project.

Weaver made the comment this morning to the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents during his first public statement on the issues and problems he faces in his new position.

The former president of the University of Missouri who was educated at the University of Wisconsin outlined the issues he has identified as being of importance during his first two weeks in office. While undergraduate education takes the top spot on the list, the fiscal situation facing all of state government appeared to be equally important among his concerns.

He also called for an orientation toward the city, the environment and the education of adults as the proper role for the land grant colleges during the second century of their existence. Weaver applauded the high ranking recently accorded the UW graduate programs, but pointed out deficiencies in that area and pleaded, as he did in his first public statement at the University of Wisconsin last December, for unity among all the "publics" of the university.

Feel Neglected
With the university's growth, Weaver told the board, "many an undergraduate has felt neglected, if not wholly lost." He said he had raised the issue at his first meeting with the University Faculty Council and his first meeting with the campus chancellors and found "vigorous support in both quarters for persistent effort to improve undergraduate education."

Since the Center System campuses and the UW campuses at Green Bay and Parkside devote their full attention to undergraduate education, Weaver said he would devote particular attention to undergraduate education on the Madison and Milwaukee campuses. He said there are "strong foundations" and "some evidence of the ferment and progress" in improvement on the two campuses, citing seven specific examples of change to strengthen the role of undergraduate education on those campuses.

Of particular encouragement, Weaver said, is a revision in the tenure review procedure requiring evidence of teaching ability and excellence as one of the criteria. "I hope, he said, this particular criterion is applied not only at the promotional juncture, but at the annual merit review junctures as well." He said there is already evidence of some tenure refusals for failure to meet the teaching responsibilities.

Special Concern
The use of teaching assistants and the thorny relationships between graduate aides and senior faculty members is of special concern, he said.

He proposed a number of ways in which the use of teaching assistants can lead to an improvement of undergraduate instruction. He advised economic situation the university there be more attention given by assistants by senior faculty that regular faculty meet at intervals with teaching assistants, managed class sections, and that faculty share their insights into teaching with their aides more regularly.

"I would express my deep concern about the seeming adversary relationship which appears to have arisen between regular faculty members and teaching assistants. This is most unfortunate for all concerned and especially for what matters the most, the student."

Weaver expressed hope, but no suggestions, that the relationship between aide and faculty could be restored to a "scholar-apprentice partnership."

The emphasis on undergraduate education in Weaver's remarks follows by several weeks the concentration on the same subject during Gov. Patrick Lucey's budget hearing on higher education in which many students and teaching assistants charged that the university was not responsive to the needs of the bachelor's degree candidate.

Echoed Lucey Weaver's echoed statements made by Lucey in his inaugural address, when he spoke of the economic situation the university there be more attention given by assistants by senior faculty that regular faculty meet at ren Knowles he "gained both valuable and troubling insights into the economic and fiscal circumstances that now exist, and he immediately ahead in Wisconsin."

Belt-tightening, he said is called for as the university takes such a large share of the state's public resources.

"We will have no alternative but to be increasingly creative in achieving maximum levels of economy and efficiency, and without compromising program effectiveness." The university, he said, has committed itself to sacrifice and austerity on other occasions and has still been able to "build greater distinction than the dollars available might have rightfully been predicted to produce."

For its own sake, and because of the budget situation, Weaver said the university needs to find ways of convincing the people of the state to have confidence and pride in the university.

The expanding academic responsibilities of the university can meet the public on their own home grounds, he said, and provide the services they need. He said that education should be available where the people live, and work and be available again for those who have already earned degrees.

Outagamie Unit Praises Mossholder 'Tradition'

The Mossholder brothers farm has come a long way since 1913 — and Tuesday Herbert Mossholder and Marshall Mossholder received Swiss Bell Awards as outstanding Holstein breeders during the annual meeting of the Outagamie County Holstein-Friesian Association at the Pine Castle near Seymour.

Their Appleton farm was started by their parents in 1913: with only 20 acres, eight dairy cows and 500 Orpington chickens.

After 10 additions the present farm totals 230 acres and includes 60 milk cows, 70 head of young stock and a herd sire. All the milk from the herd is used in making "Mossholder's Homemade Brick Cheese," on the farm. The cheese is sold throughout the Fox Cities. The family operation may be the only one of its kind in the state.

First Record

The first purebred Holsteins were purchased in 1918 and three years later Netherland Baby DeKol II established a record of 1,045 pounds of butterfat and 22,474 pounds of milk.

In 1919 O. Mossholder and Sons became members of the national Holstein-Friesian Association. They first used the prefix Orpington but later changed it to Outagamie.

It was in 1926 when the brothers, both in high school, took over operation of the farm after their father became disabled.

Farm Develops

Marshall attended classes during mornings and skipped afternoon sessions to rush home and work on the farm. Herbert guided management of the farm and together they maintained and expanded the operation.

The present brick cheese operation first was started in 1926. "If we both wanted to farm we had to do something," explains Herbert.

He started the cheese operation while Marshall maintained the dairy herd. Whey from the cheese processing was used to feed hogs. "The hogs took care of the waste from the cheese operation," says Marshall.

Wisconsin Grain Stocks Under Study

MADISON — Stocks of grains and soybeans now are being measured in Wisconsin by a survey of the state statistical reporting service, according to H. M. Walters, statistician with the state agriculture department.

The survey is one of four which will be conducted in 1971. The data will be used in a federal stocks and grains report study to be released Jan. 22 by the United States Department of Agriculture. The study also will carry estimates of grains and soybeans stored in the state.

"The report will be a key indicator of market supplies available until the new harvests and it takes on increased significance this year because of the reduced production of corn and most other grains in 1970," said Walters.

Development of the present recipe for brick cheese took five years. It was a joint effort of Herbert, his father who had been an ice cream and butter maker in Ohio, and his mother.

Herbert delivered the cheese made on the farm for 44 years. At one time the cheese was sold in 23 grocery stores and meat markets lining College Avenue in Appleton, he says.

The first cheese was manufactured in wooden and tin vats which have since been replaced. The present stainless steel vats still are heated over fire-pots. The fire-pots heat a hot water jacket underneath the vats. In most Wisconsin cheese factories vats now are steam heated.

Historical Interest

The state historical society already has asked the brothers for their present equipment if they cease making cheese.

But there is little chance of that for the future. The brothers have established a tradition, explains Herbert. "If a person had to start out now and do it he'd be a darn fool," he says, smiling.

The Depression once threatened the recently founded cheese business. There was little alternative to operating the business, however, says Herbert. "We still had to work."

As prices slid down, the farm's future was dimmer. "Each year it went a little further in the red," says Herbert.

Tight Competition

Competition also increased during the Depression. "I can remember when the cheese factories used to bring cheese down and sell it for nine cents per pound," remarks Herbert. At the same time the Mossholder brothers were selling their premium brick cheese for 16 cents per pound.

"We were charging a little more for quality," says Marshall.

In 1937 Marshall married Clarice Marx. They have two sons and two daughters. In 1940 Herbert married Dorothy Van Wyk, they have one son. The men and their wives are members of the First English Lutheran Church, Appleton. Marshall has served for three years on the church council.

The couples also have been 4-H leaders for 10 years or more. All of their children were members of the Woodlawn 4-H Club. Herbert served on the 4-H board of directors for two years and as clerk of the Woodlawn School Board for nine years.

Last year Herbert was cited at the Wisconsin Holstein Convention for 40 years membership. He also is a past director of the Outagamie County Holstein-Friesian Association.

The brothers also have sold breeding stock from the farm. In 1957 they purchased Carnation Monarch President from Carnation Farms at the National Convention Sale in Indianapolis, Ind. He classified as "excellent," and his full and maternal sisters were all-Americans.

"There used to be a big sale for herd sires," says Herbert. In 1968 the barn on the farm burned and the brothers replaced it with a 36-foot by 176-foot steel barn.

Larry, Herbert's son, and David, Marshall's son, now aid in maintaining the farm tradition.

MANAWA — Efficient dairy herd management will be discussed at noon Jan. 20 by Prof. David Dickson, of the University of Wisconsin Dairy Science Department, during the annual meeting of the Waupaca-Waushara County Holstein Breeders Association. The session will be conducted one-and-one-half miles east of here on County Trunk O at Cedar Springs Resort.

Dickson's speech will be entitled "Dairy Cattle Management Practices." Dickson works with dairy cattle judging teams and state 4-H judging teams.

Zane Akins, state fieldman for the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, will discuss the current state policies during the meeting.

A proposed tour of members to view Portage County dairy herds will be discussed during the session.

Members also will discuss a proposed tour of the Fox Valley Holstein Breeders Association to Lancaster County, Penn. The tour will be conducted on March 5 and 6. During 1969 the association sponsored a similar tour to view Canadian herds near Toronto.

estimated nine cents from the premium. Before the price was negotiated buyers had been paying CMPC handlers a six-cent service charge for milk, he said.

The blend prices will be reduced two cents per hundredweight in each 15 mile federal milk order zone radiating from Chicago.

State Unit Lauds Work Of Knowles

MADISON — Former Gov. Warren P. Knowles will be one of six men cited today during the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Chapter Soil Conservation Society of America, here at the Wisconsin Center.

Loren H. Osman, editorial writer of the Milwaukee Journal, will receive a citation for significant contributions to public understanding of natural resource problems.

A commendation will be presented to Elgis H. Berkman, Marathon County soil and water conservation district conservationist.

A Green County vocational agriculture instructor, Kenneth C. Allen, will be cited for leadership and teaching in the field of conservation to maintain and improve the quality of the environment.

Edwin A. Swenson, a Vernon County dairy farmer, will be recognized for outstanding leadership in soil and water conservation programs which have improved the quality of the environment.

Cyril Kabat, Madison, will receive an award from the Wisconsin Chapter of the organization for leadership in promoting conservation understanding through the work of a position statement committee.

Producers selling milk in Appleton, which is in Zone 11, would receive a blend price 20 cents less than in the base zone in Chicago, said a CMPC official.

A similar premium was negotiated by CMPC during November, 1969. At that time the organization secured a 31-cent per hundredweight price increase.

The agreement collapsed, however, and officials of the organization have attempted for months to regain a premium agreement.

"Our whole idea is to get it (the premium) through one outfit," said one official.

Members of the organization are Outagamie Producers Co-op, Black Creek; Consolidated Badger Cooperative, Shawano; Alto Co-op Creamery, Alto; Lake to Lake Dairy Cooperative, Manitowoc; Pure Milk Products Cooperative, Fond du Lac; Associated Milk Producers Inc., Chicago; Central Wisconsin Cooperative Dairies, Westfield; Fox River Milk Transfer Co-op, DePere; Manitowoc Milk Producers Cooperative, Manitowoc; Mid-West Dairymen's Company; Milwaukee Milk Producers Cooperative, Milwaukee; North Central Dairymen, Curtiss and Owen; Racine Milk Producers, Racine; Wisconsin Dairies Cooperative, Baraboo, and Woodstock Progressive Milk Producers, Ill.

Ed Graf, Corning, Iowa, director of the dairy division of the National Farmers Organization (NFO), said the superpool agreement would not alter NFO milk shipments to Chicago.

"This is not going to affect us in any way as far as our shipments of milk."

He supported plans to return a premium price for milk to producers.

Romney Cuts Much Of Mortgage Program

Abuses Become Apparent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing Secretary George Romney has suspended indefinitely almost 40 per cent of the government's $140 million mortgage subsidy program just a week after denying reports of widespread abuses.

"It is apparent that abuses in the ... program are more prevalent and widespread than had previously been evident," Romney said Thursday.

His earlier assessment that only scattered problems existed in the program of home ownership subsidies for low and moderate income families "was not as fully based as it should have been," the secretary said at a news conference.

Romney last week castigated as "irresponsible, incomplete and misleading" a report from the House Banking and Currency Committee that speculators were turning the program into a national scandal.

Continue Payment

The Department of Housing and Urban Development will stop approving mortgage subsidies on existing homes but will continue payments on the 60,000 units now covered.

The freeze does not affect subsidies for new housing, which account for the remaining 80,000 units in the program. "A decision will be made later with respect to new construction," the secretary said.

Subsidy approvals for existing homes—most of them in inner city areas—will not be resumed until the program is streamlined out and the government assists victimized buyers, Romney said.

He said "quick-buck artists and horse traders" making large speculative profits as well as poor persons unprepared for home ownership have shaken confidence in the program.

New Yorkers on Strike

Policemen Stay in Stationhouses

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of New York policemen, ignoring pleas of union leaders, stayed off their beats today in a pay dispute with the city.

The policemen reported for morning duty but remained at their stationhouses and refused to take up foot and car patrols. But they said they were ready to respond to emergencies.

Soviet Defectors Ask U. S. Refuge

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Two Russian students who hijacked an air taxi to Turkey last Oct. 27 have asked for refugee status in the United States, an informed source said today.

Refugee documents for Nikolai Gilov, 21, and Vitali Pozdnyev, 20, have been requested from the U.N. Refugee Commission in Geneva, the source said.

Once the documents are received, the two Russians will be taken to Rome for examination by U.S. immigration authorities. The defectors now are in custody of Turkish security police in Istanbul.

Some patrols were being manned by detectives and officers and occasional patrol cars were seen on the streets driven by plainclothesmen.

"Nobody's going out," was the report when stationhouses were checked.

A court ruling on a pay question was the immediate spark for the action, combined with unresolved contract talks with the city.

Patrolmen Available

Patrolmen reported for morning tours of duty but "everybody's sitting in the back rooms," a precinct headquarters told callers.

The 6th Division, which covers three Harlem precincts, reported a 100 per cent turnout of men arriving for duty, but no one went out into the streets.

Mayor John V. Lindsay, continued the emergency meetings he started Thursday night when he announced he had been in "minute-by-minute communication with the Police Department."

... concerning the failure of some patrolmen to perform their duties." He promised the city would take all necessary steps to protect the public. He said other policemen and supervisors were covering those areas that are affected.

Looked Grim

The mayor looked grim when he arrived at City Hall in the morning and said only: "No smiles today. Things are too serious."

The job action began spontaneously Thursday afternoon following word of a Court of Appeals decision that set back police contract talks by leaving unresolved a dispute over pay parity between patrolmen and sergeants. The action grew hour-by-hour despite appeals against it by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

A check for the eight divisions that cover the boroughs of Brooklyn and the Bronx showed more than half the foot patrol-streets this morning, but were standing by and were available for emergency services.

Not In Streets

Three Staten Island precincts said their patrol forces were in back rooms, but not on the streets, but would respond to emergencies. Sergeant and detectives were reported manning patrol cars.

A department-wide job action of this sort was unprecedented here, but the tactic was foreshadowed last Dec. 4 when the morning shift of the 19th Precinct of Manhattan's East Side refused for four hours to go on street patrol.

That action was triggered by publication of a report that the Knapp Commission, and independent body appointed by the mayor, had found widespread payoffs to police on the East Side.

The balking patrolmen returned to their posts then after a personal visit from the police commissioner.

2 Detroit Policemen Die in Fight

Gun Exchange Took Place When Men Were Off Duty

DETROIT (AP) — Two off-duty policemen were shot to death Thursday night on Detroit's Southwest Side in an exchange of gunfire during a street argument.

Homicide detectives were trying to determine what led to the shooting.

Killed were Patrolmen Danny Lee Watson, 29, and his partner, William Wortmann, 28. Both suffered numerous gunshot wounds. Watson had been on the force since July 1967, and Wortmann joined it in July 1968.

Two armed men surrendered to officers minutes after the shooting and were taken into custody for questioning.

Witnesses told investigators the argument apparently broke out between the policemen and the two men. Detective Sgt. John Faulman of the Homicide Bureau said the two officers had left the Fourth Precinct at 4 p.m. in civilian clothes, to go bowling.

Woman Involved He said one of the two men being questioned and a young woman left a store the man operates at 11:25 p.m.

The woman, who was not identified, told a Detroit News reporter that as she and her companion left the store when a car with two men in it pulled up, and one man yelled obscene remarks. She said the car circled the block, stopped and a argument followed during which the two men got out. She said the two men and her companion drew guns.

Called Companion

The woman said she ran inside a nearby building where her companion lived and called his brother, who had a semiautomatic rifle.

"At no time did the two policemen identify themselves as officers," the woman was quoted as saying.

Detective Faulman said it was not clear who started firing first, but in the barrage of bullets the two officers were shot fatally, and one of the two men suffered a minor wound in the left hand.

When the first squad car arrived, the two men were still on the street with their weapons in their hands.

Chicago Teacher Strike Settled

CHICAGO (AP) — The striking Chicago Teachers Union and the Board of Education reached a tentative agreement on a new contract today after nearly 12 hours of bargaining in the offices of Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Daley, who had shuttled between separate meeting rooms of the two sides since Thursday afternoon, announced that the contract dispute had been "resolved in the interest of school children."

It was the second time in 20 months that Daley's mediation had brought the two sides together during a strike.

Details of the agreement were to be released later today by the union.

John E. Desmond, union president, said he would recommend acceptance of the terms. Voting by the 20,000 public elementary and high school teachers represented by the union is to take place Sunday.

The city's 533 public schools were to remain closed today. They have an enrollment of more than 577,000.

The union struck Tuesday after rejecting a wage offer calling for 4 per cent increases. The board upped its offer Wednesday to 5 per cent, which the union also turned down.

Teachers had sought a 12 per cent pay hike before the strike. Salaries under the contract that expired Dec. 31 ranged from $8,400 to $15,500 a year.

The union also had sought smaller classes and improved working conditions, including better security against physical attacks.

The defense contended that Hutto entered the tiny hamlet of My Lai intent not on murdering civilians but on following orders he had received from Capt. Ernest Medina, the commander of Charlie Company, and other officers.

Hutto Found Innocent in My Lai Massacre Trial

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Sgt. Charles Hutto, who drove a truck and chopped cotton before joining the Army, has been acquitted of assault with intent to murder My Lai villagers during an infantry operation in 1963.

The verdict was returned Thursday by a jury of six officers who deliberated a little more than two hours.

Hutto was the second soldier to be tried and acquitted on charges arising from the attack on My Lai. S. Sgt. David Mitchell of St. Francisville, La., was found innocent Nov. 20 at Ft. Hood, Tex. of assault with intent to kill.

Hutto, 22, of Tallulah, La., an eighth grade dropout, stood at attention in the cramped, paneled courtroom at 3rd Army headquarters as Col. Donald Lafoon, president of the court-martial, announced the verdict.

All of the jurors were Vietnam veterans.

Nixon Urges Youth To Try 'the System'

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In his most conciliatory speech to American youth, President Nixon has urged the young to try out the system in "an alliance of the generations."

Speaking before 8,500 students and faculty members at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln Thursday, Nixon said:

"There can be no generation gap in America. The destiny of this nation is not divided into yours and ours—it is one destiny. We share it together. We are responsible for it together."

Adapt from a flurry of "Peace Now" chants, soon drowned in a chorus of boos of disapproval from other students when he was introduced. Nixon was well received—better, in fact, than on any campus since he took office.

Listened Carefully The President, who stopped in Lincoln on a flight back to Washington from Southern California, told five newsmen traveling aboard his jet he feels his audience listened carefully to his words.

Alluding to the fact he was interrupted only once by applause—when he talked about seeking "a full generation of peace"—Nixon said his address was "not written with applause lines in mind."

"I'll be interrupted 35 times when I give my State of the Union," he said, referring to an address to the new Congress Jan. 22. "and it won't mean a thing."

Obviously pleased by his reception on the Nebraska campus, which has been relatively free of student unrest, Nixon said he kept looking as he talked at a bearded young man in the crowd.

"He was a nodder," said the President, explaining the man had bobbed his head approvingly at key points. "I am sure I got through to that one."

After paying tribute to the university's undefeated football team, and presenting to a coach a bronze plaque commemorating the fact Nebraska was The Associated Press' 1970 gridiron champion, Nixon talked at length about his conception of the role of young people in the nation.

Proposing "an alliance of the generations," he said: "Let us together seek out those ways by which the commitment and the compassion of one generation can be linked to the will and the experience of another, so that together we can better serve America and America can better serve mankind."

Nixon told his Nebraska audience he will send a special message to Congress asking that the Peace Corps, Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), and a number of other agencies be brought together into a new Volunteer Service Corps.

The President said the proposed new agency "will give young Americans an expanded opportunity for the service they want to give—and that will give them what is not now offered, a chance to transfer between service abroad and service at home."

Referring to extension of federal voting rights to all those 18 and older, Nixon said: "So much is in your hands now. To those who have believed the system could not be moved, I say try it. To those who have thought the system was impenetrable, I say there is no longer a need to penetrate—that door's open."

Don't Always Win Nixon acknowledged that the young might not always prevail, however.

"It is in the very nature of a free society that no one can win all the time," he said. "No one can have his own way all the time, and no one is right all the time."

Nixon said he probably will spend part of the weekend at his Camp David retreat near Thurmont, Md. Jokingly, he said he had resisted heavy pressure from his Florida friend, C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo, to attend professional football's championship Super Bowl game in Miami Sunday.

Nixon told reporters those arranging the game had set aside approximately 100 seats for him and his party had he elected to attend.

As for his nine-day stay at his San Clemente home in California, Nixon said the weather there had been the worst in his memory.

U.N.'s Ralph Bunche Listed as Satisfactory NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph J. Bunche, 66-year-old U.N. under-secretary general, is said to be in satisfactory condition at a hospital where he has been under treatment since Jan. 2.

Bunche entered New York Hospital with what a U.N. spokesman described as a heavy cold. A hospital spokesman said he developed bronchitis, which seemed to be clearing up.

But it's in the tongue department that he excels. "Long-tongued bumblebees—some species have tongues nearly an inch long—obtain nectar from red clover, thistle and other long-tubed flowers," he says.

Carney says bumblebees, like humans, have personalities. "Some are gentle and seldom sting ... others will sting you if you get anywhere near their nest."

Carney says bumblebees are 150 times as strong as an elephant, relatively speaking. "In a scientific experiment, a bumblebee was tied by a thread to a toy car 300 times its weight," he says. "The bumblebee pulled the car."

Known by some as the bumblebeeman, Carney says he can tell a male from a female bumblebee in flight.

Grumble Bee

DEATH VALLEY NATIONAL MONUMENT, Calif. (AP) — Donald W. Carney likes bumblebees. So well, in fact, that he once spent 2½ years measuring 3,600 bumblebee tongues.

But Carney, a U.S. Forest Service ranger and a bachelor, says he isn't happy working in Death Valley—there aren't any bumblebees here. He wants a transfer.

"It's ironic," he adds. "Of the more than 200 different national parks I could have been assigned to, I drew the only one without bumblebees."

Fashion World Mourns Coco's Death

The fashion world, and indeed every woman whose mode of dress has been af-fectured by Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel's designs, mourned her death Sunday evening. She died in her suite at the Ritz in Paris. Called the most influential designer of the 20th century, Miss Chanel at the age of 87 was still responsible for every dart and button that were part of her creations. Saturday she approved 85 models for her show which is scheduled to open Jan. 26.

Her most famous perfume — Chanel No. 5 and her classic suite with its braided jacket, four small pockets, little gold buttons and quilted living — will probably live on through years to come.

Chanel will be remembered, too, not accepting the mini-skirt or getting involved in the maxi-midi controversy. Her hemlines hovered just around the knee, a length she considered most becoming.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe shared a laugh with Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew Tuesday as he was introduced as keynoter for the National Forum on Traffic Safety Alcohol Counter Measures. Mrs. Agnew was a forum speaker and hostess.

Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller shows his son, Winthrop Paul, and Miss Deborah Cluett Sage a verse of scripture implanted in a stone at the Rockefeller farm near Morrilton after the couple's engagement was announced Sunday. The scripture, Micah 6:8, reads, "And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God."

What's Your Spouse Rating? Great?

NEW YORK (NAPS) — Are you great as a mate — or a "house as a spouse?" Test yourself for the answers.

Though sometimes your best friends won't tell you, these 20 questions from Houbigant should help you to arrive at the answer — how do you rate as a mate?

1. Do you sometimes give in to avoid an argument, even if you know that your one and only is dead wrong? (Unless, of course, it's a matter of principle.)

No statistician has ever calculated the number of marriages that have cracked on the rock of unwillingness to give in on unimportant questions, but the number must be large. You won't deepen your spouse's stubborn streak just by conceding a point, quite the opposite. People are at their most conciliatory after winning a round.

2. Do you show loyalty by building him or her up in public and keep your spouse's secrets?

Fidelity is more than a matter of staying monogamous. You're being disloyal every time you recite "cute" anecdotes that make your better half look small, or publicly correct his (her) grammar, or tell your friends and relatives things they have no right to know.

3. Do you maintain friendly relations with your in-laws?

It's one of the soundest married life insurance policies, experts say. By showing your mate that you like his or her family, you're showing approval of a very important part of himself or herself.

4. Do you try persistently to change him (her)?

Hard on the vocal chords and the marriage ties, and futile besides. The only person who can change your mate is friend spouse himself. You married for what he or she is — or did you?

5. Do you attempt to correct your own flaws if they distress your mate?

All right, so your mate shouldn't try to change you. But maybe that one cherished weakness isn't worth the contention it causes, and correcting the habit might make your spouse vow to be more punctual, less over-weight, or whatever you've been striving to make him.

6. Do you watch your appearance as carefully now as you did before?

You should — but if you do, you're rather uncommon. Surveys among people generally show that a surprising percentage of the wives and husbands polled, thought their mates were not as particular about grooming as before marriage.

7. Do you try the same flattery you used in courtship days?

Even if you didn't specialize in blarney, you undoubtedly showed a flattering interest in everything your prospective partner said or did. Try it again. One good home remedy for domestic headaches and other complications, really listen when your mate speaks.

8. Do you have a hobby or other strong interest which is not shared by your mate?

According to many psychologists, you should! Too much togetherness can be stifling and ultimately become stale. A separate interest gives you breadth as well as a breather.

To make your time together more valuable: Always have some joint project in the works: occasionally turn off the TV and just talk — or walk; plan a night out for just the two of you at least once a month — more often if you can manage it.

MEN ONLY

- 1. Do you take her out dining and dancing (or even to a movie) now and then, just because you know she likes it?
- 2. Do you help her with her coat, open doors for her?
- 3. Do you ask her advice — and take it if it's good?
- 4. Do you compliment her when she has gone to special trouble to prepare a dish you like?
- 5. Do you learn a new joke occasionally?
- 6. Do you occasionally bring her something intimate, like a new perfume that you trial-sniffed and liked, or a negligee just to tell her that you still think she's alluring?

WOMEN ONLY

- 1. Is your home neat but not so neat that your husband feels like a bull in a china shop?
- 2. If you have the space, set aside a den or workshop where he can scatter ashes and wood shavings to his heart's content.
- 3. Do you read the newspaper every day?
- 4. Do you avoid reciting the trials and tribulations of your day as soon as he steps in the door?
- 5. If you have children, do you make him feel he's at least as important to you as the "kids"?

Mattli Says 'Spring' With Riots of Color

BY JULIE FLINT

LONDON (AP) — Mattli, the London couturier who presented his spring 1971 collection Thursday has fallen for the exotic, splashing his exquisite materials with Egyptian designs and fiery Gauguin prints.

Although wools and worsteds made their usual appearance, Mattli concentrated on tougher textured materials—basket and tapestry weaves, raw and woven silk tweeds and patchwork on organza—all in stunning colors.

Unlike Hardy Amies, who plumped Wednesday for palest pastels, Mattli was lavish with his paint brush, daubing his canvas liberally with scarlet, pink, citrus and peppermint.

Refusing to play name games, he did not define his lengthy Midi, demi, Chanel or languette — call them what you will, Mattli hems just below the knee.

Coats were cut close to the body with amorphous collars and wide belts under big-brimmed, straw-cane hats.

Most robes, however, were the designer's dress and jacket outfits where interest centered on pleat detail and seam stitching.

He covered a plain navy wool dress, short in the sleeve and slit at the neck, with a aut. short jacket, its butterfly collar plunging almost to the waist.

And topping the lot, a cheeky white cloche hat spangled with stars and caught up at the brim.

Mattli, a traditionalist, kept his dresses simple. But with their tight silk tops, body-conscious cutting and slender sleeves, they were enchantingly pretty.

Color and cloth ran riot for evening, as the designer displayed gossamer-fine silk jerseys, bold giselle prints and patterned crepe georgettes seamed into circular skirts and billowing capes.

A multicolored silk jersey dinner dress with sweater top and rouleau belt revealed the first tinge of the day under a floating skirt split deftly to the groin.

Also in silk jersey, a stunning turquoise evening dress, slashed open at the back and plummeting in a halter neck to the waist at the front. Less revealing was its tereza skirt, drooping into deep folds at the hem from a tiny waist.

And finally, a Gauguin print organza extravaganza plunging deeply from the nape, clinched with a bold, blood-red belt and contained by a matching shawl.

City Workers' Wages Raised At Clintonville

DNR Says Landfill Now Conforms to State Requirements

CLINTONVILLE — Full-time city employees were granted a pay increase effective from Jan. 1 by the common council at a special meeting Wednesday night.

As recommended by the personnel committee, the council approved salary and wage increases for all employees excluding elected officials and the police department. Excluding fringe benefits other than Social Security and state retirement plans, the increases will be 10 per cent with a limit of $50 per month.

Mayor Frank Sinkewicz said negotiations are still continuing with the police department, and that the police and fire commission had made a proposal to the department.

Increasing the monthly salaries of the full-time elected officials requires a change in the city ordinance and separate action by the council. The city clerk-comptroller comes under this rule.

There are approximately 30 city employees involved in the increase, which will amount to an estimated $15,000 a year. Provision for the increase was included in the 1971 budget.

The council approved the recommendation of the board of public works to purchase a motor grader for a net price of $23,354 to the city. The city's old machine will be taken in trade.

The board had received bids on two used demonstrators and three new graders, and the bidders had opportunities to present their propositions to the board members. Board members also made trips out of town to determine what might be the best buy for the city.

The board of public works was granted permission to advertise for gasoline for 1971. Approval was granted for payment of some year-end bills over $75 to close out the books.

Discussion was held on the regulations of public alleys within the city. It was pointed out that public alleys are to be kept free of parked vehicles.

Ald. Leon Steenbock, chairman of the board of public reports, reported that he met recently with representatives of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in reference to complying with regulations for the city dump. Snow fencing has been put up around the dump area and a man is stationed at the dump.

DNR representatives said they will accept the use of snow fencing until April when a permanent fence will be installed. The operation of the dump now meets requirements.

Neenah Boy to Get Kidney From Mother

NEENAH — Patrick James Wolter, 3, will be taken to the University of Minnesota Hospital in Minneapolis Monday where he will undergo a kidney transplant.

The child, who was born with a kidney defect, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wolter, 822 Jean St. He will receive a kidney from his mother.

Because of the costs, a fund drive has been established for him and persons may send donations to the Patrick James Wolter fund at the First National Bank of Appleton.

Patrick was born with "hypoplastic" kidneys, which means they have not developed normally since birth. He weighs only 15 pounds when he should weigh about 35 pounds, and stands 30 inches tall when he normally should be 35 to 37 inches tall.

Firms Spend More on Pollution

MADISON — Commitments for spending by Wisconsin industrial corporations for the reduction or abatement of polluting discharges to public waters have accelerated rapidly during the last year, the governing board of the state Department of Natural Resources was told Thursday.

Budgeting for waste treatment projects by industries rose to nearly $5.5 million, a sharp increase above the level of the previous year, the department's environmental sanitation division said.

The indications are that the acceleration of expenditure will continue, with the pulp and paper industry leading in such outlays. Pulp and paper manufacturers long have been the main target of the champions of more stringent action for the protection of the quality of public waters.

The document emphasized that the expenditures reported did not represent all of the treatment costs levied upon industries. There are controls within plants and production changes that have increased costs, and in some instances industries also have paid their shares of the higher operating costs of public sewage treatment facilities to which they have been connected, officials pointed out.

To Seek Hearings

The report was received without comment, but retiring Chairman John Potter of the state regulatory group announced that he intends to move for a change in the rules governing pollution abatement orders to require hearings on proposed controls before they are incorporated into orders. The board will consider the motion later.

D. K. Tyler, of Phillips, a board veteran and a former member of the old conservation commission which was merged into the DNR three years ago, was chosen chairman to succeed Potter, a Wisconsin Rapids lawyer, who had served as board head for two years. Prof. Gerald Bonlich of the University of Wisconsin is vice chairman.

In other major developments, the board:

— Received a recommendation from its air pollution control advisory committee that the legislature be asked to divert funds from the segregated state highway fund, making up of motor fuel taxes and other automotive levies, to finance air pollution control programs because the automobile is the chief source of emission of polluting substances into the atmosphere.

Waste from Boats

— Approved a petition to the national environmental quality administration asking that suggested federal regulations on the disposal of toilet and other wastes from boats in outlying waters including Lake Michigan and Green Bay be at least as severe as those already imposed by the state. — Was told that most of the operators of solid waste disposal sites have been licensed and are complying with rules for operation, and that the 16 operators who have made no effort to comply with state standards have been referred to the state Department of Justice for prosecution. Talk on Routes

Clintonville Discusses Snowmobiling

CLINTONVILLE — A special Jan. 23 and 24 at the Municipal meeting of the City Council.

Wednesday had to be moved from the council room of the City Hall to the courtroom, when more than 75 persons appeared, who were interested in the item on the agenda regarding snowmobiles.

The item read: "To consider and take action on amendments to Ordinance 348 pertaining to snowmobiles." At the Jan. 5 council meeting, an ordinance was adopted but portions of it were intentionally omitted such as routes on which snowmobiles may be operated, speed of operation, hours of operation, and restrictions on the operators.

The ordinance committee and the safety committee were to meet with representatives of the Truck City Riders Snowmobile Club to decide what amendments should be made to the ordinance.

The subject of snowmobiles covered one and a half hours of discussion Wednesday night with no formal action taken by Council. However, Mayor Frank Sinkewicz announced "I am of sure that by early next week we will have an amendment to the ordinance drafted and acted upon, and have this done before the snowmobile races." He referred to the Northeastern Wisconsin Snowmobile Races on before taking the step.

Hortonville Proposal

Village Board Acts on Lake's Winter Kill

HORTONVILLE — Winter kill on Black Otter Lake was discussed at the recent Village Board meeting. Acting on a recommendation of a village resident, Paul Vance, it was decided to have strips plowed to protect fish and plant growth.

The board was informed that bids are being taken to remodel the old library for use as a board meeting room. Trustee Irv Breitrick also reported that Miller Park would be completed this spring.

It was called to the attention of board members that residents have been throwing snow from their property into public streets, an illegal action. Also regarding snow problems, the village announced that a private contractor will be hired to help with snow removal, since the heavy volume has been hampering village crews. Village residents have been asked to help remove snow from around fire hydrants, an action, it was stressed, that is for their own protection.

an article from the League of Municipalities publication.

It was mentioned that prosecution is under state law when no local ordinance is applicable; and that when a municipality adopts an ordinance, the penalties must conform to the state statutes. Forfeitures and fines would accrue to the city and not the state.

Herb Reimer, president of the Truck City Riders Snowmobile Club, said the article seemed to be pretty much in line with what the ordinance committee and Truck City Riders have been discussing.

It was recommended that the first thing to be done was to find where in the city snowmobiles are located and try every day. The members have to work out the most direct over 200 snowmobiles representing about $200,000.

Sinkewicz said, "I think speed limits and the elimination of noise on this route are most important."

Most agreed that seldom in the winter are city streets in the condition they are now. That often they are bare so that

Kaukauna Landfill Is Endorsed

BY RAY PAGEL Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY—Qualified endorsement of the challenged Kaukauna sanitary landfill operation was expressed here Wednesday by a widely experienced professional engineer.

"I believe the proposal to be feasible," said William O. White, vice president and secretary of Donohue Associates, consulting engineers headquartered at Sheboygan.

But White indicated that he would prefer to see Kaukauna and neighboring communities participating in solid waste disposal on a cooperative regional basis.

White testified at the state Department of Natural Resources hearing in the Brown County Courthouse Annex.

The proposal also received the backing Wednesday of Bruce Stevens, engineer with the DNR's Lake Michigan District office in Green Bay.

The Kaukauna controversy involves a tract of 68.72 acres. A substantial portion is a wooded ravine adjoining a Girl Scout camp. The complainants oppose the ravine as a natural study and recreational area. They also contend that the landfill would cause pollution and other environmental damage.

White discussed BOD — biochemical oxygen demand — as a pollutant, and he was asked whether he has had any experience with BOD.

"About 20 years," he replied. The clay cover, laid down daily as the trash was deposited, would avoid any rodent or fly problem, White declared.

He discussed the storm sewer which would be laid from 22 to 10 feet below the present ravine level to provide drainage from high land back of the ravine. When filled to design level, the sewer would be as much as 85 feet below level. White said a reinforced concrete tube should be in no danger of collapsing under the heavy load of fill.

Although the Kaukauna plans specify a storm sewer 48 inches in diameter. White said he would recommend one of 72 inches, or at least 60 inches. He has calculated that a 72-inch sewer would be capable of carrying between 390 and 450 cubic feet of water per second for the Fox Valley Council of Governments, and has proposed that would take rainfall at a rate up to 2.9 inches per hour from a drainage site of 418 acres.

Water Backup

"A smaller tube could cause some backup of water in case of exceptionally heavy rainfall," White noted. "Consideration must be given, of course, to anticipated building development in the immediate vicinity."

Devine Given 5 Year Pact

Olejniczak reported that Devine "is anxious to review our staff and possibly interview them and at least get acquainted with them."

Devine is expected to make his first public appearance in Green Bay Tuesday morning at a news conference. He was here Wednesday for final negotiations with the executive committee, which then met again Thursday morning to pinpoint Devine as the man for the job. Devine, according to Olejniczak, was notified at noon and arrangements for simultaneous announcement in Green Bay, Kansas City and Columbia Mo., delayed the release of the information until late afternoon.

Well Over 30
Olejniczak would not say how many applications were received or how many prospects had been contacted or interviewed by the Packers. He did say, however, that the number was "well over 30" and included pro coaches, college coaches, assistants at both levels and even some high school coaches.

The Packer president admitted, though, that there was some concern about delving into the college ranks.

"I don't know if you would call it quid pro quo," he said, "but we did give some thought to it. But I'm satisfied that the transition from college to professional football is not as difficult today as it was 10 years ago. I'm not concerned about the transition."

As to giving a college coach the general managership, Olejniczak observed, "The general managership requires administrative experience. I'm sure when you meet Mr. Devine, you will agree he is qualified. I have every confidence he will do the job for us."

Olejniczak said that Devine's name was brought up with a number of others at the first meeting of the executive committee following Phil Bengtson's resignation. He would not elaborate, however, as to who chipped in the contact between Morris' Don Keddell meshed 20, the Packers and their new coach.

Bill Dean's 25 points paced Wilson. The victors held a 40-32 edge at the half.

Jeff Wieckert added 15 points for Wilson, and Bill Schabate, however, as to who chipped in the contact between Morris' Don Keddell meshed 20, the Packers and their new coach.

Laird Takes a Look at Cambodia

In his most recent visit to Indochina, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird sent off some top military officials to look over the problems in Cambodia. Well he might.

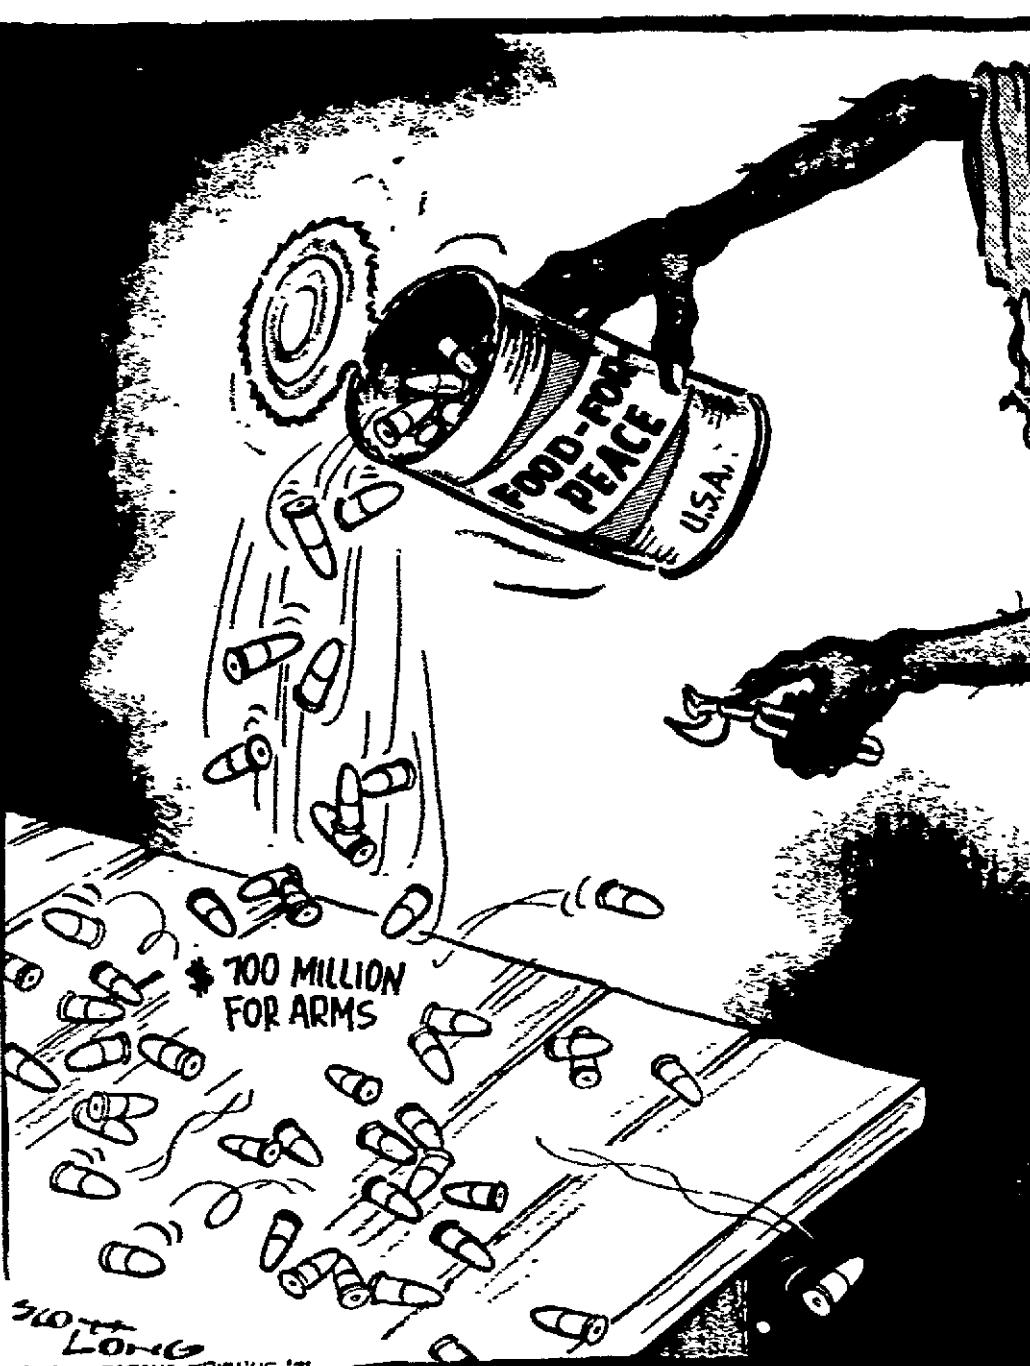

Cambodia's only deepwater port at Kompong Son has been cut off by Communist troops since they control the only major highway. In the North, despite the extensive American bombing raids, advances continue to be made. There seems to be a reduction in combat but the reason may well be to wait out the continued withdrawal of American troops. Admiral Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has already conceded that just maybe North Vietnam could take over Cambodia this coming spring but that he thought the South Vietnamese could keep Cambodian ports open even without indirect American support.

We confess to some deep doubts despite the unexpected survival so far of the Lon Nol government in Phnom Penh. But, while American combat troops were officially at least withdrawn from duty in Cambodia last June — and weren't supposed to have been there before the move in May in any case — certainly not when Prince Sihanouk was the Cambodian leader — there have been disturbing reports that neither assumption can be relied upon. If we are being lied to by the United States government spokesmen — or if we have been over the last several years, Americans of all ideologies should be rightfully concerned and outraged.

Admittedly the Nixon Administration inherited a war it did not start. But reportedly Mr. Nixon backed the late John Foster Dulles in his effort to get American military support to the French in Indochina before the debacle at Dien Bien Phu. The President seems insistent upon getting us out of Vietnam — at least as far as the appearance of active ground combat is concerned. But the recent resumption of bombings — the visits to Cambodia by the head of the Joint Chief of Staffs and the continued high level of raids in Laos do not lend much encouragement to a real dedication to find a political rather than a military solution to the war. It is apparent that the North Vietnamese are slogged down in the same dilemma — but it is their region if not their country in the long run and we suspect that considering the domestic problems in the United States as well as the growing opposition to the war, they are going to come out ahead.

Sending gunboats up the Mekong, continued ineffective bombing raids over the Ho Chi Minh Trail and sending heads of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to look over the territory isn't really going to make much difference. Secretary Laird should take notice.

Truth-In-Packaging... Hah!

He'll Offer Innovations

Democratic Coalition Will be Nixon Target in 1972 Race

WASHINGTON — With 1971 barely underway, the Democrats have already begun their struggle for the 1972 presidential nomination. Senator Edmund Muskie is traveling abroad to convince skeptics that he is indeed an expert on foreign affairs. George McGovern, the New Left's outspoken senator from South Dakota, is in the process of declaring his own candidacy. There are even noises from Birch Bayh, the Indiana senator whose prominence in recent Capitol Hill struggles has led some congressional observers to speculate that mediocrity is coming into its own.

A year ago, the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination looked almost worthless. Today's great optimism is mostly a function of the Nixon administration's economic and personality problems. But as election time draws nearer, the Democrats are likely to become more aware of their underlying dilemma, to wit: the national Democratic party is an adolescent coalition, rooted in the New Deal of the 1930s, and it can stick together only by subordinating liberal-conservative issues and emphasizing cohesive factors like shared opposition to Richard Nixon and Republican economic policies. The old coalition is not a base for the evolution of a new philosophy of government; it can only elaborate upon the Great Society thrust of the 1960s.

Point to Shortcomings
Much of the Democrats' present semblance of unity reflects Nixon administration shortcomings: the harsh, minimally successful Nixon-Agnew 1970 campaign style, the advent of economic recession, and President Nixon's low 1968-70 emphasis on domestic policy. Until now, the President has not used domestic policy discussion or programming to point out pre-1969 Democratic failures or to push the Democrats into impolitic stances (against one another or in public eyes).

But change is writ large in Mr. Nixon's 1971-72 game plan. First he and Vice President Agnew will wear their statesmen's hats, shunning the abrasive 1970 campaign posture that annoyed the country and unified the Democrats.

Second, administration policy makers will concentrate on the economy, the one GOP weakness that can unite the old Democratic coalition. Third, the White House is going to take the initiative in domestic affairs, proposing health insurance, revenue-sharing, welfare reform and "Middle American" economic legislation that will force the Democrats to react and bicker among themselves, winding up as saboteurs, me-tooers or proponents of expensive alternatives well to the left of public opinion.

With these GOP tactics weakening the negative bonds that temporarily coalesced the Democrats in 1970, the Democrats may come face to face with their real dilemma.

What new directions do they have to offer? How can the party that gave us the sixties promise the needed new outlook for the seventies? This problem could be difficult especially because new policy formulation is likely to strain the bonds that the party is trying to maintain and aggravate the incompatibility of Polish Chicago and Harvard, or of pineywoods Texas and Harlem.

Leaders Incline to Muskie

Many younger Democrats are justifiably concerned that the party of Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy, and Johnson wants to run in 1972 on pleasing personalities and old loyalties rather than on new ideas. Party analysts believe that the innovators, that is, the potential issue-candidates, like Senators McGovern and Edward Kennedy, would alienate too many moderate and conservative Democrats. Thus, party leaders are inclined towards the Muskie type of candidate who does not raise divisive issues, and who can trade on personality and, it is hoped, on the economic vulnerability of the GOP.

Political analyst Samuel Lubell has a very interesting theory about U. S. politics. He does not believe that the two major parties compete evenly. On the contrary, he shows how our political history breaks down into periods where one party has been the more influential "sun" while the other party, reacting rather than innovating, has been the "moon" that reflects the changing radiations of the sun.

During the next two years, President Nixon is going to try to shatter the old Democratic coalition with positive rather than negative appeals, turning the Republican Party into the new U. S. political sun. If the Democrats cannot formulate more than mere plans to trade on GOP weakness, they may well slip into Mr. Lubell's fatal lunar orbit.

Enzyme Miracle Can be Traced

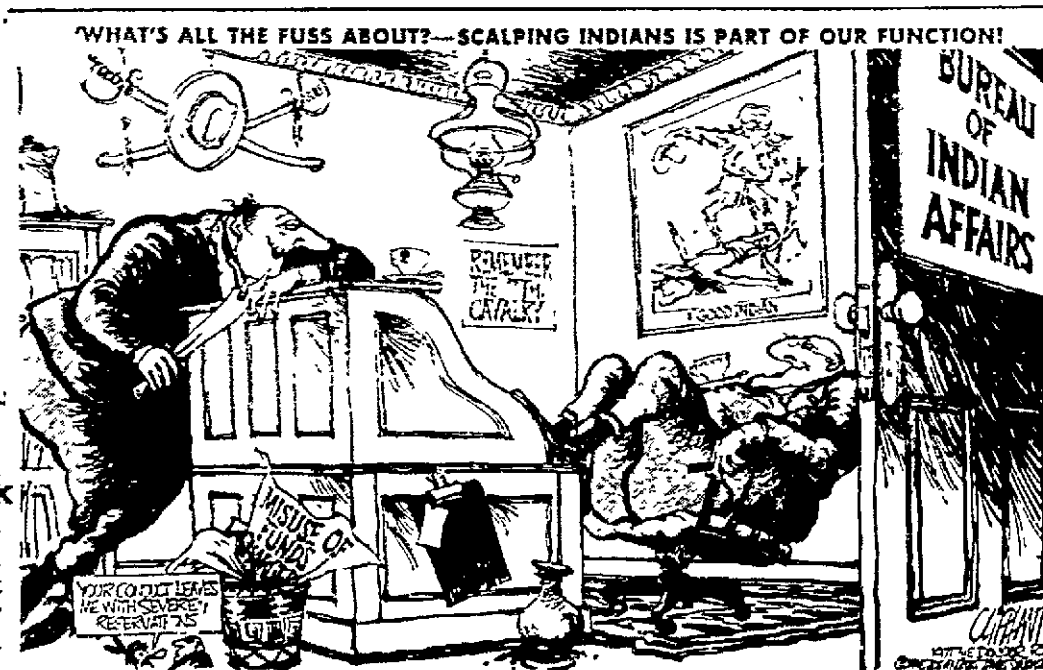

NEW YORK (AP) — Enzymes carry out chemical miracles in the body, and their action is so fast it has never been adequately understood. Now a rapid technique has been developed that can detect small changes in enzyme molecules as they act.

The enzymes that contain certain metal atoms are made to act on substances that are fluorescent. This permits scientists to follow extremely rapid energy transfer and changes in enzyme structure.

The method was devised by biochemist Bert L. Vallee and co-workers at Harvard Medical School.

Auto Tax to Support Busses Expected to Get Little Support

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Those state legislators led by Sen. Casimir Kendzioriski of Milwaukee who are suggesting a boost in motor vehicle registration fees to provide a subsidy fund for the succor of the desperately ailing local bus system have done a good job of publicity.

Probably the effort is not entirely unrelated to the fact that the transit problem is more severe in Milwaukee than elsewhere and that the Democrats now risen to power in the capitol are aware of the corollary circumstances that Milwaukee provided most of the big margin of their election victories of last fall.

It is demonstrable that the decline of the urban bus is a severe problem. Bold remedial measures are needed for the health of the urban population centers. But to suggest a small nuisance tax upon the motorist as a means of providing the money to pay for cures or palliatives is to doom the idea at its birth.

Motorists Are Sensitive

The motorist is a peculiarly sensitive fellow. Whether his reaction in such situations is justified is not especially pertinent. The legislature is always concerned with logistics — the logistics of votes.

The idea of taxing every auto owner (and every truck, under a pending proposition) to prop up bus service at lower prices for the residents of Milwaukee may appeal to many of the voters in the downtown wards there and perhaps in other cities.

But there will be many more citizens — and voters — who will resent the idea of discrimination, as they see it, in the idea of taxing them only because they own a car, even if they or the members of their families occasionally find the transit system useful and convenient also. Meanwhile, it is absolutely predictable that the many more thousands of persons in non-metropolitan areas, say those in little towns, will object strenuously and audibly to the idea that they should be taxed expressly for the benefit of strangers in the distant city.

Will Express Opinion

The man in North Overholt, Wis., accustomed during his entire lifetime to be doing without service or providing his own transport at his own expense will let his state senator and state representative know what he thinks of such goings-on in Madison.

When all the clout and the argumentative skill and the patience of the regular professional lobby of municipal spokesmen in Wisconsin on the idea of a more objective taxation system for motor vehicles has been persistently and easily turned aside in the legislature, it will be difficult to find much hope for the idea of an irritating adjustment of a few dollars for a categorical and limited purpose.

Vehicles Are Favored

The gesture about boosting the auto tax mildly for bus subsidies is unfortunate for a more important reason. When it is knocked down, it will delay for another indefinite period legislative recognition of the fact — a demonstrable and unfortunate fact — that the motor vehicle is a strangely favored item of property in a period of painful burdens upon property in general.

Wisconsin taxes its motor vehicles less than almost all the states in the country. In virtually every typical precinct in Wisconsin, the homeowner is groaning under the weight of his property levies without real hope of relief, or even of stabilization of the burden.

But on the public roads of Wisconsin are a couple million motor vehicles that are taxed at only a fraction of the rate that applies to real or personal property. The legislature has been shown countless times that the $18 fee now charged for the standard automobile falls far short of paying the costs of municipal service occasioned by the existence of the vehicle without regard to the general cost of government.

Strictly Personal

Bubolz Warning Is Recalled by Harris

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Seventeen years ago in this column, I wrote: "It is an unhappy irony that although America attaches more importance to a college degree than to any other aspect of a man's abilities, there remains a strangeness and a suspicion toward colleges on the part of the general public."

I had been lecturing that week at the University of Colorado, and I was told by the Episcopal chaplain that the townspeople in Boulder suspected the university of being "pink."

"They fail to understand," he said sadly, "that the function of a university is to encourage dissent and disagreement, to present various views, and let the students think out the problems for themselves."

A few weeks later, the then new chancellor of the University of Chicago remarked to me that the school was not accepted as an essential part of the community by most of the citizens. "Somewhere," he said, "we've fallen down on the job of integrating the activities of the school with the life of the city."

And, still a few weeks later, State Senator Gordon Bubolz, Appleton, warned the Wisconsin Senate that there was "tenseness and hostility existing now between the University of Wisconsin and the legislature..."

For as long as I can recall, the needs and objectives of a university have been understood by only a few persons off campus, and not many more on. But the purpose of a college — which is to show young minds how to think (not what to think) — can be achieved only if the trustees and faculty and legislators and general public appreciate what is important and what is trivial.

The University of Colorado at that time had no trouble in getting the legislature to build a multi-million dollar highway from Denver to Boulder, nor to win funds for buildings and grounds. But grudgingly and scantily bestowed.

American universities have been building up a head of steam for a generation or more; Robert Hutchins saw it all coming in his tenure as President of the University of Chicago, but no one listened; I have been sending up smoke-signals for a quarter-century, with a little response.

It has been the grievous fault of the universities — the hugest industry in America — that they have not made the public aware of the essential services they perform; and the grievous fault of the public that they are interested in universities only as factories for producing sheepskins and athletic victories. Such monumental misunderstanding and mutual distrust was bound to erupt in the ugly rebellions of today.

Coco—Inspiration for Senior Citizens

For any woman or even a man, for that matter, — who thinks life has passed its peak at thirty, forty, fifty, sixty or seventy, the late Coco Chanel should be an inspiration.

Gabrielle Chanel really began her fashion career in the 1920's after years of apprenticeship and hard work. She came from a rural family in France and was orphaned at an early age.

But once she began having an impact upon the fashion scene she never faltered. The clothes she designed were made to last for years and not to become outmoded by one fad after another from the mini to the midi to the maxi. Moreover, she worked in a field, at least in her earlier years, that was dominated by men who sometimes can be pretty obnoxious toward female innovators.

Coco Chanel was preparing for her spring show last week when she quietly died. She was 87 years old and had not the finalities of human life caught up with her she would be successfully designing still.

Drive-In for Mourners

Some historians claim that the invention of the internal combustion engine is the factor which has most revolutionized modern society. Although such a simple theory might be questioned, the effects of the automobile upon our lifestyle are considerable.

One unexpected example of this is the fact that a drive-in window installed last August at a Detroit funeral home has become the principal method for friends and relatives viewing the deceased. The owner of the establishment says 50 to 100 persons have driven through the canopied horseshoe driveway for each viewing.

The vehicular mourners can even register that they have paid their condolences by signing a card and dropping it into a box mounted across the drive from the window. Their presence is duly transcribed in a guest register.

Humorists who tend toward the morbid might find the situation a gold mine for puns and jokes. We can merely shake our heads a bit and wonder what the whole business says about the meaningfulness of the custom of viewing the deceased and indeed our culture's entire approach to death.

Interest Rate Offers Optimism

Reduction of the prime lending rate by many banks to six and one-half per cent represents a significant reduction from the peak of eight and one-half per cent reached in June of 1969. But this reduction up to now has benefited primarily business customers, and even then banks at the same time have tightened up their definition of a prime rate borrower.

But the lower interest rates reflect a considerable increase in recent months in the money supply banks have available for loans. The nation's money supply went up $800 million in December from the November average. Money supply is defined as currency plus demand deposits. In addition, time deposits continued to advance at a rapid pace, increasing over $25 billion, or 12 per cent, in the last six months.

Given these conditions, lower interest rates to individual borrowers for installment loans and mortgages may well be nearer. And since interest rate trends are generally the forerunners of general business activity, the prospect for better business in 1971 is becoming a little brighter.

Statewide Program Service Agencies to Make Workload Study

Social service agencies in 71 Wisconsin counties will be required to take part in the work load inventory time study starting in April, the Outagamie County Board of Social Services was informed Thursday.

Anticipated accomplishments of the statewide program, that was started in Milwaukee County in 1965, were outlined for the board by Douglas Klimek, county supervisor for the Green Bay regional office of the Division of Family Services, State Department of Health and Social Services.

Klimek said the mandatory study program could provide a means for determining manpower required to provide needed agency services, for clearly establishing workload priorities within agencies and for specifying development of staff resources.

He said the program also could aid in preparation of county welfare budgets, could help determine the cost of social services and could provide for better assessment of the effectiveness of social services.

Statewide averages regarding social service programs could be gauged, Klimek indicated, and it should be possible to better compare services provided by counties that have similar populations and caseloads.

The state has purchased computer service through Milwaukee County to help carry out the program, Klimek said.

The Milwaukee County Board "is sold" on the inventory-time program, according to Klimek. He said the new system, if retained, would replace the present "head count" method of determining caseload appropriations within agencies. He said

It Is Registration Time for Medicare Medical Insurance

It's again "open season" for signing up for the medical insurance part of Medicare. This is the part of Medicare that helps pay doctor bills.

This general enrollment period is for people whose 65th birthday occurred on or between Oct. 2, 1967 and Jan. 1, 1971 and are not presently covered under this part of Medicare. It is the last chance to sign up for those whose 65th birthday fell on or between October 2, 1967 and October 1, 1968.

Open seasons run from Jan. 1 through March 31 each year. Any eligible person signing up during an open season will have medical insurance protection beginning the following July 1. It is well for one to keep in mind that the longer he delays in registering after age 65, the higher the monthly premium rate will be.

Any questions about this or any other part of Medicare or social security, can be answered at the Social Security office.

Devine is expected to make his first public appearance in Green Bay Tuesday morning at a news conference. He was here Wednesday for final negotiations with the executive committee, which then met again Thursday morning to pinpoint Devine as the man for the job. Devine, according to Olejniczak, was notified at noon and arrangements for simultaneous announcement in Green Bay, Kansas City and Columbia Mo., delayed the release of the information until late afternoon.

Well Over 30
Olejniczak would not say how many applications were received or how many prospects had been contacted or interviewed by the Packers. He did say, however, that the number was "well over 30" and included pro coaches, college coaches, assistants at both levels and even some high school coaches. The Packer president admitted, though, that there was some concern about delving into the college ranks.

"I don't know if you would call it quailms," he said, "but we did give some thought to it. But I'm satisfied that the transition from college to professional football is not as difficult today as it was 10 years ago. I'm not concerned about the transition."

As to giving a college coach the general managership, Olejniczak observed, "The general managership requires administrative experience. I'm sure when you meet Mr. Devine, you will agree he is qualified. I have every confidence he will do the job for us."

Olejniczak said that Devine's name was brought up with a number of others at the first meeting of the executive committee following Phil Bengtson's resignation. He would not elaborate, however, as to who chipped in with 12. Butte des Morts' Don Keddel meshed 20, the Packers and their new coach.

Jury Begins Deliberations in Manson Trial

First-Degree Murder
Convictions Against
Four Asked by State

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Climaxing seven months of trial, the Sharon Tate murder jury is deliberating after hearing a prosecutor tell them Charles Manson and his three codefendants lived by "a religion of death, blood and murder."

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated for 70 minutes Friday after receiving its charge from the judge. It resumes today.

Manson, 36, although barred from the courtroom for unruly behavior, managed to inject a comment before the jury retired.

"Tell them why we couldn't put on a defense, old man," he shouted from an adjoining room just after the judge finished reading the charge.

In his final summation, Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent T. Bugliosi called out the names of the seven victims who, he said, "from their graves cry out for justice."

He called the August 1969 slayings "perhaps the most inhuman horror-filled hour of savage murder and human slaughter in the recorded annals of crime."

"As the helpless victims begged and screamed out into the night for their lives, their life-blood gushed out of their bodies forming rivers of gore," Bugliosi said.

Earlier, he summarized evidence against the women, Susan Atkins, 22, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 21. The state asked for first-degree murder and conspiracy convictions against all.

Defense attorneys in their summations said the defendants are innocent and other unknown persons did the killings. They said the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, lied in order to gain immunity from prosecution.

In his instructions to the jury, Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older told them that if they determined the defendants committed the murders, Mrs. Kasabian would legally be an accomplice whose testimony must be corroborated.

A conviction cannot come on testimony of an accomplice alone, he said, and such testimony "is to be treated with distrust." However, the instruction said, the evidence required to corroborate an accomplice "may be slight."

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, spent 18 days on the witness stand telling her version of what happened on the two nights in which Miss Tate and four visitors and a wealthy market owner and his wife were slain.

The defense did not call witnesses in the trial, and jurors were instructed that they could not draw any inference of guilt because they chose not to take the stand. Manson testified, but in the absence of the jury, and declined to repeat his remarks for them.

In the event of a first-degree murder conviction, the same jury would fix the penalty at death or life imprisonment. The jury, locked up since testimony began, would remain sequestered for the second phase.

The state has subpoenaed 30 to 40 witnesses for penalty phase testimony. Chief defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald said that if the state presents a lengthy case, the defense will have one of equal length or longer. He said such a conviction would declare the defendants "guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, but not beyond any doubt at all," and the defense would seek to inject such doubt through testimony.

Brazilian Terrorists Release Bucher

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazilian terrorists today freed Giovanni Enrico Bucher, the Swiss ambassador they kidnaped 40 days ago.

The 57-year-old diplomat returned to his Rio residence two days after the Brazilian government granted his kidnappers' demands to fly 70 prisoners to political asylum in Chile.

After receiving confirmation that the prisoners had arrived safely in Santiago, the kidnappers reportedly telephoned the Brazilian Embassy Friday night and told where Bucher could be picked up.

Embassy sources said Swiss was. First Minister William Roth received the call and drove away to get the kidnapped ambassador. Roth arrived at Bucher's residence early today driving a car with diplomatic plates, and the ambassador, wearing dark clothing and dark glasses, was beside him in the front seat.

Thank Government The ambassador told his sister, Anne Marie Maillot, his servants and some embassy officials.

"I thank the Brazilian government for having helped me. I'm very touched by the death of agent Helio."

This was a reference to Helio de Araujo, a guard who died from gunshot wounds he received in the kidnapping.

"I didn't see anything because I was immediately blindfolded and I have no idea where I was," Bucher said. "I thank everybody for everything done for my release."

As the ambassador spoke, the selection of prisoners to be freed stretched into weeks, and a news conference scheduled later today.

The Brazilian military government was tougher in dealing with Bucher's kidnappers than it had been in other abductions. It turned down their demands to publish a political manifesto and grant free rides on commuter trains during negotiations and agreed to free only political prisoners as ransom. Authorities even turned down three lists of prisoners before an agreement was reached.

Bucher was kidnaped Dec. 7 when his car was ambushed on a quiet residential street. Witnesses to the two-minute operation said seven men and a woman blocked the street with two cars, shot the guard and spirited away the ambassador in another car.

DDT Elimination Sought by Actions

Laird Reviews War

Critical Time for Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, returning from a trip to Southeast Asia, concedes the next few months will be critical for Cambodia but sees nothing to slow the rate of U.S. troop withdrawal.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, Laird told a news conference on his return Friday night, are trying to test the Cambodian government and people "as they prepare to build their military forces to maintain security in their country."

One reason for Laird's 10-day trip was to assess what has been described as a generally deteriorating situation in Cambodia.

Although the Lon Nol government in Cambodia is facing a critical five to six months, Laird said, he is impressed with progress made by Cambodians in building their armed forces.

He declined to go into details until after he reports in full to President Nixon Monday.

However, Laird said, Nixon's May 1 deadline for lowering the U.S. troop count in Vietnam to 284,000 men will be met or beat.

He noted results of the U.S. military aid program are just being felt in Cambodia. But he said he is encouraged by a national determination to defeat the North Vietnamese.

The defense secretary said he is optimistic about the over-all situation in Southeast Asia, declaring the tour of Thailand and South Vietnam gave him "strengthened confidence" the United States will be able to end this year as far as Abrams is concerned.

Laird denied renewed speculation that he will be replaced soon as commander in South Vietnam. He said he is giving in Vietnam.

There were reports earlier Friday that Laird had told friends in Saigon he planned changes in the U.S. military command in Vietnam, leading to speculation about Abrams.

But a Pentagon spokesman said Laird's remarks were aimed at reorganization of the command structure as U.S. forces are withdrawn—not at military leadership.

Police Dety Work Order In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite a back-to-work court order and jawboning ordered by police brass, nearly all of the city's patrolmen today refused to perform regular tasks for a third day in a dispute over pay.

Essential and emergency services were maintained by a few patrolmen and 6,500 superintendents and detectives who found themselves in long-uniformed lines.

Police spokesmen said more than 75 per cent of the 25,000 patrolmen participated in the job action Friday, with precinct figures ranging from 75 to 95 per cent.

Reports early today indicated patrolmen were continuing to sign in at their stationhouses, but refusing to do normal work, rounding the continued use of DDT and 2,4,5-T.

USDA already has banned some uses of 2,4,5-T.

All interested parties will have a chance to air their views on the pesticides, Ruckelshaus said. The EPA invited comment in written form before Feb. 3, and said the arguments will be made public as they are received.

Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy said the department which canceled all holidays and leaves and ordered overtime, could operate in such a fashion for "a few days."

No unusual disturbances were reported but police said the number of patrol cars answering calls was down about 50 per cent. There was no indication of a change in the crime rate.

Formal talks were set for a morning meeting.

Rulings by Agency On Ecology

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Environmental Protection Agency has announced the start of two actions that would ban DDT use anywhere in the country.

William D. Ruckelshaus, EPA administrator, said Friday notices will go out next week to manufacturers of DDT, canceling federal registrations for use of the pesticide 30 days later.

Also beginning Jan. 18, he said, will be a 60-day review aimed at halting the interstate sale of both DDT and the pesticide 2,4,5-T.

The notifications to cancel registrations may be appealed by manufacturers, who may then continue to sell their products while appeals are processed.

But the 60-day review may lead to "suspension" orders that cannot be appealed.

Suspension orders bar interstate sales, as do the cancellation notices. A ban on interstate sales ultimately would curtail other sales.

"We hope to lay to rest once and for all the question whether DDT presents an imminent hazard to the public," Ruckelshaus said. "Failing proof of this, EPA must decide whether the public benefit from its continued use outweighs the risks involved."

Ruckelshaus' move follows an order Jan. 6 by the U.S. Court of Appeals directing immediate proceedings by EPA to ban all remaining uses of DDT.

The pesticide already had been restricted from use around homes, aquatic areas and tobacco crops in orders issued a year ago. Some of the orders were delayed by appeals.

"We have decided not to request the Justice Department to challenge the court order," the EPA administrator said. "The question is not whether the court's decisions are right as a matter of law, but rather the public's right to a full and open airing of the controversy surrounding the continued use of DDT and 2,4,5-T."

USDA already has banned some uses of 2,4,5-T.

Four Died at Courthouse

Grand Jury Testimony Links Angela to Shootings

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Grand jury testimony links black militant Angela Davis to a teen-ager and the guns he smuggled into a courtroom for an escape try that left four men dead.

The 127 pages of testimony was made public Friday by court order. Sixteen other pages remained sealed temporarily.

Miss Davis, 26-year-old avowed Communist and former UCLA philosophy instructor, was indicted by the Marin County grand jury last Aug. 15 on charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy and is jailed at the Civic Center complex where the shooting occurred.

Killed in a rented yellow van during the Aug. 7 escape attempt were Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, San Quentin prison convicts James McClain and William Arthur Christmas, and 17-year-old Jonathan Jackson, who smuggled the guns into Haley's courtroom.

Peter D. Fleming, a service station attendant, testified before the grand jury that he had helped Jackson and a woman resembling Miss Davis start a yellow rental van with battery trouble in the Civic Center parking lot the day before the shooting.

He said several photographs of Miss Davis looked "a lot like" the woman he saw with Jackson.

"This looks like her," he said at one point. "But I can't remember about the teeth." There is a noticeable space between two of Miss Davis' front teeth.

Testimony identifies Miss Davis as the purchaser of four guns found inside the van.

David Lifsen and Frank Blumenthal, both clerks in the Eagle Loan Office in San Francisco, testified that she bought a 12-gauge shotgun on Aug. 5, two days before the shooting. Lifsen said he recognized Miss Davis at the time from news photos and got her autograph.

Nancy Conrad, a clerk in the Western Surplus Store in Los Angeles, testified that Miss Davis bought an M1 carbine and 200 rounds of ammunition on July 25.

Purchased Pistol John E. Plimpton, assistant manager of the Brass Rail Gun Shop in Hollywood, testified that on Jan. 12, 1968, Miss Davis purchased from him a Browning semiautomatic pistol. He identified the gun found after the shootout as the same one.

Owen Swisher, a salesman at Western Surplus, testified that on April 7, 1969, Miss Davis bought from him a .30 caliber carbine and 100 rounds of ammunition. He also identified the weapon shown him as the one he had sold Miss Davis.

Welcome, Dan Devine

The selection of a top ranked college coach as the new head coach and general manager of the Packers, following close on the heels of the Los Angeles Rams' selection of UCLA Coach Tommy Prothro as their new head man, represents a considerable departure from tradition in professional football. And fans across the country will be watching intently next season to see how these men fare in what Vince Lombardi termed the violent world of pro football. Once George Allen was no longer available, the Packer executive committee had three main sources to probe for a successor to resigned Phil Bengtson. There were a number of other head coaches who had failed with one or more clubs; there were some obviously capable assistant coaches on the Packer staff and with other clubs; and there were the ranks of college coaches. A number of candidates from the latter two categories were interviewed, and Dan Devine of Missouri emerged as the top choice. The selection of a college coach does

The Berrigan Brothers Are Charged

It is well that a federal grand jury has brought charges against Father Philip Berrigan, three other Roman Catholic priests, a former priest and a nun on conspiracy to do some bombing and kidnap a presidential advisor. We want to know whether there is any truth in the charges or whether they have grown out of a fantasy of Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover. In a sense, both Mr. Hoover and the defendants will be on trial. There is little doubt but that there continues to be vehement opposition to our involvement in the war in Vietnam and that it is no longer limited — if it ever was — to draft eligible college students. The campus opposition has simmered down, possibly because of lack of conviction of some young people who are not really mature, a belief that the war is being phased out anyway, apathy that anything can really be accomplished or merely the vagaries of youth. But if there has been a conspiracy by adults who are also dedicated to a religious belief, Americans should know about it. Both Father Philip Berrigan and his brother, Father Daniel Berrigan, originally cited by Mr. Hoover before a congressional committee as involved, have been in prison after their convictions for burning draft records, although it took a while for the

Jawboning on Steel Prices

President Nixon reacted much more vociferously to Bethlehem Steel Company's plan to raise prices than he had previously with several other industries. He warned that such action might lead the administration to lower import restrictions on foreign steel products. It was a recourse on the part of the administration to the type of "jawboning" previously employed by the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and which Mr. Nixon previously had felt was of little value. But Bethlehem's proposed price increases would affect primarily steel used in the construction industry, and this is a sensitive area with the ad-

Republican Cry All Humbug!

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Jan. 28, 1871.
The Post and the Times each indulge in a vast amount of sermonizing, taking our item of last week relative to candidates for office as a text, and the sum total of their combined refrain may be merged in their dolorous wail that if Republicans were placed in office everything would be lovely.
That is all humbug, for the past history of some of the Republican candidates for office in this county proves their total unfitness for the positions sought.
The ground we took last week is endorsed by the great majority of the democratic party in this County, and that is sufficient for us.
If these two Republican sheets don't like it, they can either grin and bear it, or, like the Kilkenny cats, fight it out between themselves. It is quite immaterial to us.

'Tailgating' Really Bad During Winter

NEW YORK (AP) — Safe winter driving requires additional space between you and the car ahead—at least double the normal distance, according to Kennametal Inc., a manufacturer of tire studs.
A rule-of-thumb distance is one car length for every 10 miles per hour on clear, dry pavement. Make it at least two car lengths for every 10 miles per hour on wet pavement and three lengths on snow and ice.

AS THE EARTH MOVES, vast land masses drift constantly keeping the face of our planet in a state of flux that can shift continents over centuries and trigger earthquakes within minutes

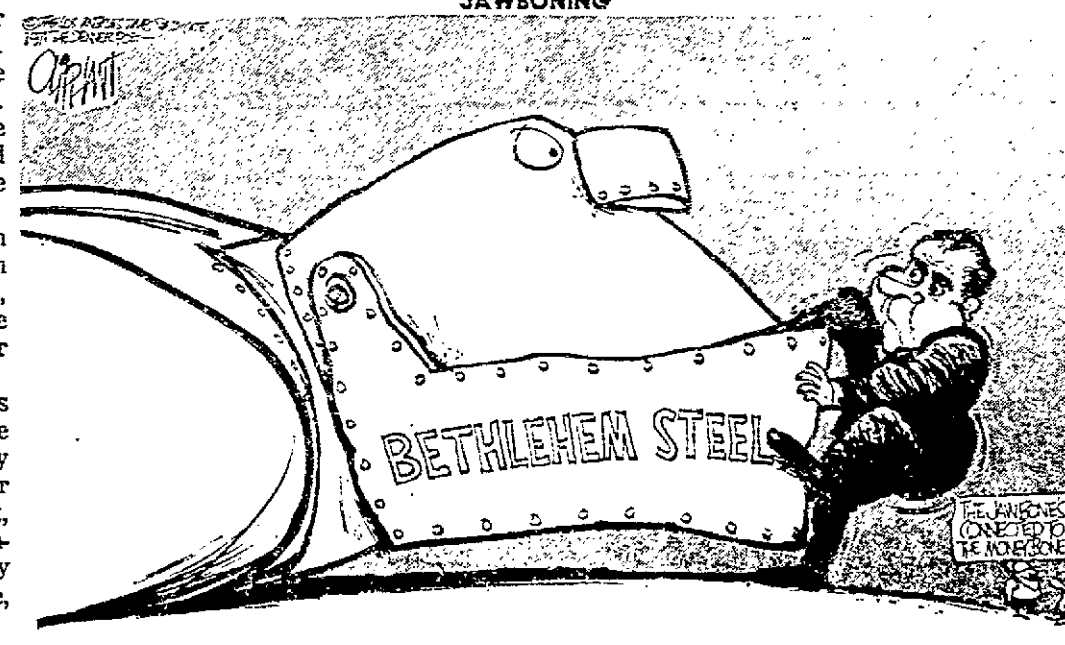

Background Map
Earth Seen as Series of Plates That Shift, Change Planet's Face

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The world is like a cracked eggshell, scientists tell us. Only the fragments keep moving; like the segment which shifted under Peru last June killing about 50,000 persons in a mammoth earthquake.
Until 15 years ago, scientists regarded the ocean basins and land masses of the world as fixed scenery that altered only over eons of time.
A decade later, the men of science had begun to envisage the sea floor and the land as the upper parts of vast plates of earth crust whose growth and restruction keep our planet's face in constant flux.
Viewing this shifting process as a unified whole, Robert S. Dietz and John C. Holden of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration recently projected a world map in which Los Angeles was moving fatefully toward the Aleutian sea-bottom trench.
Use Moon Mirrors
These beams are reflected by a series of mirrors left on the lunar surface by the Apollo 11 astronauts.
By measuring the laser beam round-trip travel time to within billionths of a second, Bender can compute the distance between reflector and his earth-based instrument to within 10 inches. He hopes to cut this to within five inches over the next couple of years.
At that point, Bender hopes to be able to measure the change in a laser station's relative position due to continental drift; a matter of an inch or so a year.
Stations being set up in Hawaii and Japan should be able to detect the inch or less by which these two land masses are thought to be moving apart each year.
Having espoused the cracked egg theory, scientists theorize that the 60-mile thick outer shell of the earth is splintered into about a dozen major plates, each thousands of miles across. There are also a number of smaller plates, they say.
How Mountains Form
When two plates move apart, lava wells up from the hot material below. When plates collide, their edges curl up into mountain ridges according to this theory.
This new theory of constantly moving plates revives the once rejected concept of continental drift. This would accept the idea of continents being carried along by moving underlying plates, like passengers on a raft.
Working backwards in time with this theory, Dietz and Holden theorize that about 225 million years ago all the present continents were one. They believe this ancient land mass became fragmented as the crust plates shifted.
Projecting their theory into the distant future, the two scientists have forecast that the Mediterranean will be squeezed into a narrow sea and a new body of water will open in East Africa.
California, in this projection, will break away from North America as the plate on which it rides slides down into the Aleutian trench.

Paperboy's Sled Taken While He Makes Rounds

Editor, The Post-Crescent:
The old saying that "neither rain, sleet or snow prevents the postal workers from delivering the mail" certainly applies to The Post-Crescent carriers. In fact, on January 4, the carrier boys made it on their routes, when the mailmen did not.
We are proud of our son being one of these carriers. He applied for a route as soon as he was eligible, without any suggestion from his parents. We know, from the fine comments we have heard, that his customers appreciate his efforts. The bad weather has made it really rough for these boys to do their route. Last Friday evening, our son took his pack of papers, loaded them on his sled, and set out to deliver them. During the icy weather, he used a sled, which he parked in the snow on the corner of Pershing and Meade Street while he completed his rounds to the customers on that block. He put the papers in the doors, and when he returned to the spot where he had put the sled, he found it had disappeared in these few minutes. He trudged to the remaining houses with the papers in the sack on his back, and then returned home, a very sad and disillusioned boy. We called and reported the missing sled to the police, thinking that perhaps someone had thought a child had abandoned it, and would report it to them. It was a dandy new sled, a Christmas gift for two boys, bought not only for the purpose of delivering papers, but also with the thought of a nice sleigh ride down a snowy hill on a Sunday afternoon. We just cannot believe that anyone would be so mean as to take a paperboy's means of getting around on his route with his papers during the cold, Wisconsin winter — or could they? We hope that it will find its way back to our home.

Wisconsin Report
New Legislators Off To Bad Start With Capitol Reporters

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — When several state government reporters were persuaded to discuss press relations at one of the indoctrination sessions held recently for new members of the state legislature, they were startled to learn that mildly critical comments about the increasing reliance upon the closed caucus deliberation of legislative issues ruffled some feathers.

These were men and women who were elected last November. They have not yet answered to a public roll call on a bill. They have not yet collected an expense account or endorsed a pay check. But they have already been indoctrinated, as a result of the several pre-session caucuses recently held.
The reporter who raises a question about the extraordinary emphasis upon the closed door deliberation and exposition of legislative issues is merely a snoop, in the view of one or two of the more outspoken fledglings.
Cites Historic Precedent
No doubt the time is appropriate for an elaboration of the views of the professional reporter who is the only person who can provide the constituents of these elected representatives an account of what they do when they reach Madison and take their oaths.
A tradition of free and open deliberation in the Wisconsin legislative process has been one of its finest distinctions. It has repeatedly been praised. It is one of the unique characteristics of the Wisconsin system and a hallmark of this state's democratic tradition and conviction.
The party caucus is not illegal. No serious critic of government or politics has proposed to make it illegal. Ours is a party system. There are good and sufficient reasons for the deliberation of party strategy and tactics in private, out of the range of the ears of the opposition and the public, to the extent that public information will provide an advantage to the competitive political party or even a hostile lobbying interest.
Caucuses are useful in applying principles and practices of party discipline.

Effective operation of a legislative house under a partisan system would be impossible without the privacy of the occasional caucus, even as football competition would be handicapped without the huddle and without the locker room respite.
Caucus Is Useful
Presumably the caucus is useful in explaining the fine points of legislation and procedure, the practical political considerations of an urban issue to a farmer from Podunk County, and the nature of a farm issue to the factory hand from Milwaukee who has won a legislative seat. Sometimes the freshman politician hesitates to make himself appear ridiculous on the open floor, as somebody said.
All that may be readily conceded by the practical citizen with a reasonable appreciation of human nature and politics.
But an honest account of operation of the Wisconsin Legislature during the last decade — without regard to the party in power — cannot avoid the conclusion that the caucus has been abused. In some instances it has become the substitute for open and public deliberation and debate. As a result, the constituents of these legislators have sometimes been denied a fair account of what has happened and why it has happened.
It was a price paid for the tendency to rely more heavily each year upon caucus argument, explanation, persuasion, and even pressure, as from business or labor organizations, political parties, the executive branch of government, or whatever.
Must Provide Information
The professional reporter tends to be critical of excessive reliance upon the caucus because he wants to provide the fullest explanation possible of public events. He may be a snoop. The choice of descriptions is not important. The important consideration is, and it is startling to realize that some elected officials deny it, that representative government cannot survive without "snoops" who provide a reasonably intelligent account of what the people's agents do when they are elected to public place.
It is with more regret than indignation that it must be recorded that there are some politicians — including apparently a few who ought to be feeling still a deep blush of pride that they were chosen by their people — who appear to doubt that public business is the people's business.

Driveway Problem Can't be Dismissed

Editor, The Post-Crescent:
I have just finished reading "Pity for Shovelers," which appeared in tonight's Post-Crescent. I assume it is a report of the Jan. 6th Council meeting. I think your reporter was premature in predicting the failure of the Reynolds's Resolution, and in fairness to Ald. George Reynolds and the citizens of Appleton, I feel the following facts concerning the resolution should be published:
(1) Prior to the January 4th weekend storm Ald. Reynolds received a number of complaints about snow and ice filled driveways after the snow plow had gone through the street. Recognizing the physical as well as financial hardship, and the necessity of having access to the street, Mr. Reynolds presented a resolution to the City Council. He did not base this resolution solely on "a plea from a constituent," but on behalf of the people of his ward, as well as every citizen of this city.
(2) Ald. Reynolds's resolution was referred by the council to the Street and Sanitation Committee. Mr. Norman Beyer is the chairman of that committee.
(3) Mr. Beyer and his committee will have a meeting, open to the public, at 3:45 p.m. on Jan. 18th in Committee Room B of the City Hall.
I have respect for the men and women who serve on the council and committees and, therefore, I think it unfair and illogical to assume this particular committee will not do their best to research and investigate this problem, and hopefully come up with a solution that will benefit all of us. The citizens of Appleton have an obligation to help the committee by communicating any and all feasible ideas toward solving this problem, either at the meeting on Jan. 18th, or by contacting Mr. Beyer.

The reporter's explanation of graders and snowplows was much appreciated and I am sure his information was correct. However, even with my limited knowledge of machinery, I know that great progress has been made, especially in road and farm machinery. If it had not been for men who had vision, foresight, and courage, farmers would still be plowing their land with a hand plow and one horse. There must be men in our city equally capable of suggesting equipment that could be used on snowplows.
The people of Appleton have always been patient and anxious to do everything they can in an emergency such as we had over the January 4th weekend, and the resolution commending them was richly deserved, but let us not sink into complete apathy basking in the glow and warmth of a pat on the back by our City Council. The problem remains with all its aggravations and dangers to the health and life of Appleton's citizens. It will go away when the sun gets hot enough, but it will return each winter. We all know this fact, so I urge everyone who is able, to involve himself in helping solve a problem so vitally important to all of us.

Transform Picture Into Personal Jigsaw Puzzle

The equipment for a scattered jigsaw puzzle is homemade.

Make It Yourself

First, cut a colored picture from a magazine and glue it to cardboard. With a ruler, divide it into squares, all the same size as in figure 1. Cut the pieces apart.

In advance of a visit by friends, scatter the squares around the room, placing them on tables, chairs, a windowsill, the floor and so on, but always in plain sight of any one looking for them.

At a signal, the guests start searching for the squares and putting the jigsaw together on a table (figure 2).

The first player to find a square places it on the table, but thereafter a player who finds a square may not put it on the table until it really fits next to the piece or pieces already there. If it doesn't match, he must carry the piece around with him until it will fit correctly alongside other pieces that have been assembled.

Allow five minutes for the game. At the end of that time, the player who managed to fit the most pieces in place is declared to be the winner.

Barnacles Only Form of Life To Suffer From Oil Slick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 12-month study financed by the oil seem to have been unaffected and gas industry concludes that by the pollution, the report on the massive Santa Barbara lined.

Channel oil well blowout two years ago caused little permanent damage to marine life.

The study, conducted by the University of Southern California under a $150,000 grant from the Western Oil and Gas Association, claimed that the only plant or animal life badly affected by the oil spill was the lowly barnacle.

Islands and coastal beaches in the Santa Barbara Channel were coated with black crude oil after a Union Oil Co. offshore well blew out in January 1969.

The seepage continued unchecked for 11 days during which an estimated 2.2 million gallons of oil poured into the channel, creating a two-mile long slick.

USC investigators, headed by Dale Straughan, a professor in biological sciences, said they found very little marine life killed by the toxic effect of the spilled oil.

"This is perhaps not as surprising as it might appear," the report added. "The most toxic components of crude oil are the volatile fractions. These fractions evaporate rapidly... so that the oil that has been floating on the sea for several days becomes relatively innocuous."

He was flown by helicopter to the Santa Barbara Channel where he reported in satisfactory condition and responding to treatment for mild viral pneumonia.

"This is not a serious or life-threatening illness," he physician, Army Col. Robert North, said Friday in reply to written questions.

North also said the chances of the illness affecting Johnson's heart were "remote." Johnson, 62, suffered a major heart attack in 1955.

OSHKOSH — One of America's most outstanding showmen and song writers, George M. Cohan, is the subject of the musical comedy "George M!" to be presented at Oshkosh Civic Auditorium Feb. 2 as the next production in the Blue Series of Town and Gown.

The touring company is an authentic reproduction of the Broadway hit presentation with its troupe of 60 players, musicians and stage technicians. 17 scenes and 314 costumes.

The company is playing in 103 cities during its national tour which began in September.

Tony Tanner in Lead

Featured in the title role is Tony Tanner, one of England's most popular musical comedy stars. He made his American debut in "Half a Sixpence." This was followed by starring appearance in the movie "Stop the World. I Want to Get Off" and last season in the Broadway play "Little Boxes."

Others in the cast will be Ray D'Amore as Jerry Cohan, the father of George M. Cohan, Maureen Maloney as the mother and Andrea Duda as Agnes Noian who became Cohan's loyal second wife.

All the songs in "George M!" are from those written by the song-and-dance man as revised by his daughter, Mary Cohan. The libretto is by Michael Stewart, the author of "Hello, Dolly" and "Mame" and other hits, in collaboration with John and Fran Pascal.

Cohan was the composer of such songs as "Give My Regards to Broadway," "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Mary," "You're a Grand Old Flag" and "Over There" which became practically a national anthem during World War I.

Scenery of Everglades Superb Show

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 Channel 11 — Arthur Godfrey's America: The Everglades has the Old Redhead making like an environmentalist as he takes us on a journey to Everglades National Park, America's only sub-tropical region. Godfrey visits with Chief Buffalo Tiger of the Miccasukee Indian Tribe, chats with Joe Browder, an environmental activist associated with the Audubon Society, and also interviews a guide and a land developer. As usual on this kind of show, the scenery walks off with the honors.

4-5:30 Channels 11-9 — Wide World of Sports takes note of the fact that the Super Bowl game is on tap tomorrow (on another network, but that's O.K.) and has Howard Cosell chatting with Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts and Craig Morton of the Dallas Cowboys. Howard has been known to ask just about anything, so it should be interesting. Other segments cover a motorcycle grand prix in California and ski jumping in Germany.

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Mission: Impossible builds some good suspense in a mission which goes very smoothly — until Dana picks up some information which involves Phelps' life and before she can relay it, is kidnapped by a psychotic (who has nothing to do with the case), who thinks she is the woman he murdered earlier.

7:30-8 Channels 2-7 — Steve is up for a promotion on My Three Sons and he finds he and his family are under close scrutiny as a result. Barbara and Dottie have to pass tests with the other wives and children and, of course, we can predict the results of that.

7:30-8 Channel 5 — This is Adam-12's last Saturday show. It moves to Thursdays beginning next week. The concern this week is a burglary ring which uses motorcycles which somehow vanish immediately after they have made their getaway. On the job, Malloy and Reed also save a child from a molester and they have a chase when they wind up near the scene of another burglary.

8:30-9 Channels 2-7 — The bright and shiny Mary Tyler Moore Show continues to be just that with Monte Markham introduced as a dashing war correspondent who returns to the newsroom where he once worked — and to his old desk, which now happens to be Mary's. He's a hard man for any romantic girl to resist and Mary finds herself falling for him. So she decides she has to play it safe, which is hard to do at Murray's party.

8:30-9:30 Channels 11-9 — There are two things to recommend about The Most Deadly Game: one is the presence of Dick Cavett, playing himself and the other is the fact that this episode comes closest to being the cerebral murder mystery this show was supposed to be. Wilfrid Hyde-White plays an author, a murder dietician, who is murdered while watching his taped appearance on Cavett's show. After the killing, his friend, Mildred Natwick, mystery writer, announces the death, which police listed as either suicide or accident, was a murder and she will solve it.

$81,000 Appropriated For Protection of Lake Poygan's Shore

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Conceding that it has been negligent about the problem, the state Department of Natural Resources has approved the expenditure of about $81,000 for what will be the first phase of a shoreland protection program on Lake Poygan, favorite hunting and fishing area of thousands of central and south-eastern Wisconsin hunters and fishermen.

A contract for the shore protection work consisting of the piling of rocks on the ice near the shore of the lake during the winter season will be awarded to Courtney and Plummer, Inc., of Neenah.

The work is designed to stabilize and restore an area of about four to six miles of prime state-owned wetland on the lake which is a major waterfowl production source at the confluence of the Wolf and Rat rivers, explained John M. Keener of the state game management division.

Land Lost
During the last decade large sections of the wetlands have been lost through constant erosion resulting from wave action caused by high winds, boats, and fluctuating water levels, he told the DNR board.

One important section of wetland in the locality has been reduced to half of its original area during the last 15 years, Keener said, and if further deterioration is permitted, only open water will remain. Such degeneration will inevitably force reduction in water-fowl crops and eliminate much of the hunting area, the official explained.

Keener said that the rip-rapping method of piling rock on the shore ice during the frozen season has been shown to be effective earlier on the Fox River and Little Lake Butte des Morts. Private landowners in the district have also financed such improvements, and have been critical of the tardiness of the state with respect to the protection of its lands, the DNR board was informed.

Keener said that his division

State Gets Funds to Train Disadvantaged in Waste Disposal Work

MADISON (AP)—Officials of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Wednesday awarded a $135,000 grant to the state of Wisconsin to hire and train disadvantaged persons in waste-water disposal work.

James Gallagher, national director for public services within the agency, presented the grant to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Gallagher said the federal funds will be given by the State Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education to private companies to hire and train the personnel. The nature of their work would involve operating waste treatment plants, Gallagher said, and the positions will be filled from existing budgetary vacancies.

The funds originate with the Department of Labor as part of the public services careers program of the Economic Opportunity Act. They are audited by EPA as part of an inter-agency agreement, Gallagher said.

More Money for More Cities

New State Shared Tax Bill Would Benefit Rural Areas

RACINE (AP) — A new state shared taxes bill is being developed which would give more money to more communities than the Tarr Task Force proposal and help more rural areas, the steering committee chairman for the Coalition for Shared Taxes said Friday.

Mrs. Henry Lardy, who declined to discuss exact details of the formula, told the Wisconsin Alliance of Cities her group had a tentative meeting set next week with Gov. Patrick Lucey to discuss it.

There is broader support for reform of Wisconsin's shared tax system this year, she said, because many lawmakers were elected on a tax reform campaign.

"It's a step up from the days may try later to secure land control of private properties in the locality through wetland easements, thus permitting additional rip-rapping at public expense in future years. Some private owners will be willing to give such easements to the state, he believes.

Neenah Followup Survey

Business Students in Business

NEENAH — A three-year followup study of Shattuck High School business education graduates shows that 74 per cent of the 1968-70 graduates are either working in the field of business or are taking further business training, according to K. D. Peterson, department chairman.

Of the students who pursued the clerical practice project tract, 38 per cent of the 1970 graduates are working in offices, 15 per cent are in jobs other than in offices and 25 per cent are seeking further training in either vocational or private business schools.

Chairman Is Elected For Resource Board

MADISON (AP) — Daniel K. Tyler of Phillips was elected chairman of the State Board of Natural Resources today, succeeding John M. Potter of Wisconsin Rapids, who stepped down after serving two years.

The 66-year-old Tyler, a banker, moved up from the vice presidency after Potter told board members he would decline re-election.

Prof. Gerald A. Rohlich, director of the University of Wisconsin Water Resources Center, was named to succeed Tyler as vice president, and Richard A. Stearn, Sturgeon Bay, was elected board secretary.

Rohlich attempted to decline the office, saying that his term was due to expire in May. But Potter said he was confident Gov. Patrick Lucey would reappoint Rohlich.

The students gain additional experience by typing reports, programs for school activities, instruction guides and other materials for teachers, school organizations and civic organizations.

The survey shows that of the students enrolled in the secretarial practice cooperative tract in the class of 1970, some 80 per cent are employed in offices and 19 per cent are seeking additional vocational training.

The class of 1969 placed 89 per cent in the work force and 8 per cent in jobs other than in offices. Of these students, 12 per cent were enrolled in a four-year college program.

86 Per Cent

The class of 1969 reported that 86 per cent were working and 9 per cent were securing further vocational training.

The secretarial practice project tract differs from the secretarial practice cooperative tract in that these students do not secure off-campus on-the-job training. The survey shows that 55 per cent of the class of 1970 in the route? Is there any pain or discomfort involved in recovery? Is intravenous feeding involved? Must the stomach be pumped?

Please answer as I am dreadfully afraid my appendix will burst at any minute but I am scared to go to a doctor. — S. K.

All right, I'll tell you about appendicitis, but all you've done is ask questions and haven't mentioned one single symptom to indicate whether you have a crampy appendix, or some other abdominal disorder, or just a case of scared-to-death imagination. Any of these is possible.

Afraid of a burst appendix or not, if you have severe abdominal pain, you'd better have a doctor check you over. On the basis of general percentages, there's a mighty good chance of some lesser problem being involved.

The typical acute attack of appendicitis involves pain, first in the upper abdomen and then localizing in the lower right abdomen. There is pain and nausea

Dear Heloise:

An answer to my lost shirt buttons. Is my jiffy button. Get a flat-head thumbtack, or flatten one with a small hammer. Next, glue with a clear drying cement, a button of your choice to the top of the tack. Then obtain a squeezetype clamp, such as is used to hold insignia on uniforms.

The point of the tack-button is pushed through the fabric where the missing button was, and the operation nor the hospitalization clamp is pushed over the tip of the tack to hold it in place. You then button the shirt in the usual manner. The clamp is kept on the tack tip when not in use.

Great for men with working wives too busy to sew right away, or for bachelors who can't sew.

It only takes about 20 seconds to put in place.

Now that's what I call getting down to brass tacks.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Recently, I bought a push-button toothpaste squeezer at a local variety store and had my husband put it up in our shower.

Then I put some shampoo, the kind that comes in a tube, in the squeezer instead of toothpaste.

Now, when it's time to wash my hair, I don't have to hunt for the shampoo.

Also, it gives the kids a little more incentive to wash their hair. They think it's such fun to push the little button on the squeezer.

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

The inevitable always happens. Children go to sleep with gum in their mouth and end up with it in their hair.

I tried every remedy in the book to keep their cribs from sliding. Then this idea hit me: I found the strongest tape available and wrapped it around the legs of the cribs with the sticky part on the outside. Being sure to cover underneath the legs too. Worked like a charm.

My poor floors need to be refinished, but maybe some other young mother will read this before her baby gets to that jumping, shaking stage.

Linda Matern

Dear Heloise:

When it rains (with four boys running in and out) you can just imagine what my floors looked like.

To remedy this, I saved bottle tops until I had enough to glue upside down to a piece of wood the size of a small throw rug. Then I put this little "rug" in front of the back door and instructed each boy to remove all the mud from the soles of his shoes by wiping his feet on this "rug" before entering the house.

These caps may also be nailed to the board with tiny nails. You wouldn't believe how much work my little bottle top rug has saved me.

Mrs. R. J. Simmons

Dear Heloise:

Since we have such a large family, spray furniture polish is too expensive for us. So we buy polish in a bottle.

For convenience, I took an old spray bottle that had contained window cleaner, washed it out, labeled it, and filled it with polish.

Works just like regular spray polish.

UW Regents Name Two to Administration

Stephen Boyle, Mrs. Clapp to Fill Key Campus Posts

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The University of Wisconsin Board of Regents accomplished two timely objectives Friday through a pair of appointments to the UW central administration.

Stephen T. Boyle, former executive secretary to Republican Gov. Warren P. Knowles was named assistant to vice president Robert Clodius. Mrs. Analoyce E. Clapp, wife of Norman Clapp who recently was named secretary of the Department of Transportation by Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, was chosen director of statewide communication.

The appointments brought overt political balance to the personnel actions for the day, and a woman to the high administrative offices on the UW campus that has been under investigation because of the low ratio, rank and pay of women in the system.

Boyle, reportedly will serve as an adviser to UW President John C. Weaver, although the description of his $19,000 a year job was not announced.

Mrs. Clapp will succeed John F. Newman, who will become director of news and publications service on the Madison campus, a role he filled on an acting basis in addition to the statewide communications job.

Varied Background
The new director of statewide communications brings to the $15,000 a year position a varied background in journalism publications and public relations. A journalism graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Mrs. Clapp was associate editor of the Grant County Independent for 14 years.

While her husband, a former Appleton man, was administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington, Mrs. Clapp was program assistant for the Potomac Institute, an organization involved in research and consultation in the field of race relations and civil rights; Washington correspondent for Features and News, Inc., a Chicago based news syndicate, and information consultant for the Office of Minority Business Enterprises in the U.S. Department of Commerce.

In her UW job, Mrs. Clapp will be in charge of all news and publications operations on all UW campuses.

Medical School
In other personnel actions the regents made several appointments to the UW Medical School that will, among other things, provide for a second open heart surgery team and approved several changes at the Parkside campus where faculty and staff problems have plagued the new university for several months.

Named to the medical center was Dr. Donald R. Kahn, who presently is associate professor of surgery at the University of Michigan. He will head the Division of Thoracic Surgery and develop a residency program in the area in addition to his service on the open heart surgery team.

The regents accepted the resignations of a vice chancellor, dean, and special assistants to Chancellor Irvin Willie at UW-Parkside and named an acting dean and new special assistant.

John S. Harris, vice chancellor for academic affairs, and Arthur C. MacKimmey, dean of the College of Science and Society, will assume new administrative positions and hold professorial jobs.

Special assistant David C. Krivin will enter private business. He will be replaced by Mrs. Rita Tallent, who has been director of school and campus relations.

Gresham Novitiate May be Drug Rehabilitation Center

Post-Crescent News Service

GRESHAM — The sale of the Alexian Brothers Novitiate here for use as a voluntary commitment hospital to rehabilitate drug users appears to be impending, although the parties involved deny that the deal has been completed.

A brochure prepared by the Phoenix Fellowship Academy of Cultural Exploration and Design, Wheaton, Ill., describes plans for establishment of the treatment center at the novitiate. The brochure is in the hands of a number of area officials.

Brother Charles Renaud, Chicago, provincial of the Immaculate Conception Province of the Alexian Brothers, and JoAnna Guthrie Smith, vice president of Phoenix Academy, Wheaton Ill., both denied Friday that the proposed sale of the novitiate has been completed.

But a letter from Brother Renaud to Mrs. Smith, dated Dec. 8, 1970, indicates that the transaction is near completion.

Eyed by Patrol
If the plans do materialize, the Wisconsin State Patrol will have to scout elsewhere for a ready-made police academy.

State Rep. Herbert Grover of Shawano has pushed for state acquisition of the facility for more than a year.

"This is a prime example of private enterprise moving faster than the wheels of government," Grover said Friday.

Reached at his Chicago office Friday afternoon, Renaud said of the sale story, "I'm very disturbed about that. We have nothing to report yet." He said it would be at least another two weeks before anything definite would be announced, and insisted no papers have been signed and there has been no down cost for participating youths.

Dec. 8, Renaud said. "The Alexian Brothers wish to take this opportunity to express their appreciation of the fact that an organization such as yours is acquiring the property owned by our organization in Gresham, Wis.

New Way Of Life
"It is most fitting that your academy, devoted to meeting the needs of young people who are striving for a new way of life, should be the successor to the training program for its members which the Alexian Brothers conducted in this same serenely beautiful setting for 13 years."

Mrs. Smith, reached at Madison, said of the proposed sale, "That was a rumor. We like the community, we'd be good economically for the community, but nothing has developed to that point. It's too nebulous."

The Phoenix Academy would be used for extended therapy and education for "wrong-out" drug addicts and abusers. Initial withdrawal and drying out treatment would be provided by Phoenix at small community centers elsewhere before the youths were brought to Gresham.

The Phoenix Academy-Division of Redirection would be coeducational for applicants from 13 through 25 years of age. The total program at Gresham facility, when and if it has begun, would include medical, educational and vocational training programs, development of arts and crafts, sports and recreation, and work therapy. It is estimated that the per capita cost for participating youths would be $7,500 for a 12-month residency.

After completing his stay at Gresham, the former drug user would enter the third phase of the Phoenix Academy program, still in favor of the annual guidance in his return to community, college and jobs. He might also qualify for continuation at Gresham as an assistant to the staff.

Greenville Town Chairman Won't Seek Re-election

Town of Greenville Chairman Rudolph Spreeman has announced he will not seek re-election.

Spreeman, 68, has been chairman of the town since 1953.

He also is county board supervisor for District 39 (towns of Greenville and Dale) and has been very good to us," he said he plans to devote more time to that office.

Nomination papers for town offices, including that of chairman, can be picked up from Town Clerk John Woods. Filing deadline is 5 p.m. Jan. 26.

Rehabilitation Suspended

Valley Not Hit by Housing Cutback

This week's announcement that the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has suspended the rehabilitation segment of its 235 housing program due to abuses doesn't affect the HUD housing program that has been vigorously applied in the Fox Valley.

Lawrence Katz, Wisconsin director of the Federal Housing Administration in Wisconsin, explained that the rehabilitation program has been confined primarily to the heavily populated inner city neighborhoods of cities like Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha and Madison.

In the Fox Valley, the 235 program has been used to help low-income families buy new homes, not rehabilitate old ones, he explained.

Panel OKs Delay in Port Landing Fees

An effort may be made to mistake if it could be proven that airplanes were not landing at Outagamie County because of the fee.

Strong Support
But, Jahnke said, he has received more telephone calls from people in his district supporting his position than he has received on any subject since he has been on the county board.

County Administrator Alvin Woehler said the committee could have grounds for deferring the fees based on the changing economic situation in the area, the possibility of lowering the traffic count to a point of endangering FAA takeover of the tower, and to sound out the neighboring counties.

However, he warned, if the landing fee is held off or rescinded, substitute revenues must be found.

With only three members of the committee present, an attempt to take formal action on holding off collecting the fees failed when Jahnke said he would walk out of the meeting, leaving the committee without a quorum, if it was put to a vote.

He said he did not object to the committee informally agreeing to hold off collections.

The two other committee members present, chairman John Diez, Appleton, and Paul Kosika, Little Chute, had been opposed to the landing fees when they were presented to the county board.

Bubolz Hits DNR On Pollution Setup

MADISON (AP) — The state Department of Natural Resources was accused Friday of "disregarding the desire of counties to work together" in setting up air pollution control districts.

The change was made at a hearing regarding the proposed districts.

The regional districts were "practically forced on the counties," said Gordon Bubolz, chairman of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission. He said area planning agencies already set up at the local level were having their districts usurped by those proposed by the state.

But the head of the department's air pollution section, Douglas Evans, said the state was only using existing districts set by former Gov. Warren P. Knowles for all DNR programs.

"It was not intended to ignore or overlook existing districts or agencies," he said. "We were only following state districting lines already in use—where we have district offices and personnel in the field."

There is no reason regional agencies can't share in the program despite the apparent difference in districting lines, he said.

The assistant administrator for the federal air pollution control office, Doyle Borchers, said state agencies and local planning units will have to resolve their differences quickly.

But "no one county will be a haven in which dirtier conditions can exist," he insisted.

Second Man Implicated in Meat Theft

An associate of a former supervisor at a New London meat packing plant, who allegedly exchanged cash and merchandise in return for over 14,000 pounds of meat at reduced, falsified prices, requested a preliminary hearing Friday on a charge of theft.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller set Feb. 15 for the hearing for Dominic Mandella, 55, Milwaukee. Mandella immediately posted bond of $1,500 after appearing in court.

County investigators allege that between June of 1969 and Nov. 2, 1970, Harold Dreier, 44, of 1211 Smith St., New London, former production supervisor at the Quality Packing House, Inc., near New London, altered billing invoices so that Mandella would pay approximately only half of what the meat really cost.

Handled Billing

Dreier, according to authorities, was in charge of billing different customers of the firm for shipments of meat to them. Mandella, authorities said, supposedly supplied meat concerns in the Milwaukee area with the meat he received at falsified prices. Value of the meat shipped to Mandella was $13,060, for 14,250 pounds, according to authorities.

Mandella, investigators believe, gave Dreier small payments of cash, plus merchandise. Included were such items as a high-fidelity set, tape recorder, humidifier, color television set, and pool table, they said.

Mandella is self-employed in a container firm in Milwaukee.

Dreier will be sentenced Jan. 26 for two theft counts lodged against him in connection with purported transactions with Mandella on July 8 and Sept. 3 of last year. He is free after posting $400 bond. Dreier pleaded guilty to the charges in state agencies and local planning units will have to resolve their differences quickly.

Alcindor's 35 Leads Bucks Past Royals

Dandridge Adds 29 as Milwaukee Wins, 135-116

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lew Alcindor came to play Friday night, which meant the Cincinnati Royals suffered another defeat at the hands of the Milwaukee Bucks.

"If Lew comes to play, we can just go home. It's all over," moaned Cincinnati Coach Bob Cousy.

Cousy's Royals were soundly defeated by the Bucks, 135-116, in a National Basketball Association game. Alcindor, the league's top scorer in his sophomore season, finished with 35 points, 16 rebounds and five assists.

"Toyed With Us" — "Alcindor just toyed with us," Cousy lamented. The Royals' mentor could have added Bob Dandridge and three former Cincinnati players — Jon McGlocklin, Oscar Robertson and Bob Boozer — to the list. Dandridge tallied 29 points, McGlocklin 16, Robertson 14 and Boozer 13.

Cincinnati moved out front, 20-18, after three technical fouls were called on the Bucks. Following an Alcindor layup, the 7-foot-2 Milwaukee center complained about what he thought was a missed call.

Referee Jack Madden, on the Rockets boosted their FVA record to 6-0 and increased their lead to two full games over the Papermakers and Appleton West. They play at Appleton East tonight.

A combination of a fine first half, in which they built up a good cushion, and excellent free throw shooting were two big factors tipping the scales in Neenah's direction.

The victors banged home 28 afield in 36 chances, including 13 of 15 in the first half and eight of 10 in the last quarter. Kimberly had a much poorer percentage, falling below the .500 level with only 10 successes in 23 tries. The Papermakers racked up a 22-18 margin in field goals.

Foul Trouble — Before the game, Kimberly coach Jack Wippich remarked about Neenah's inside strength and his concern was justified as the Rockets claimed a 40-21 board edge and Kimberly's big men ran into foul trouble in competing for the rebounds.

Don Uelman, Mike Van Beek and Jim Rooyakkers all picked up three fouls in the first half. Rooyakkers fouled out with 6:23 remaining in the game while Van Beek played most of the second half with four.

Coach Ron Einerson's forces, helped by an 8-point spurt in the second period, held a 33-21 margin at the intermission and added two more points to their advantage in taking a 50-36 lead into the final eight minutes.

Ringling up the first five points of the last quarter, their lead shot up to 55-38 after two minutes of play.

But as Einerson said after the game, "We built up a big lead and they (Kimberly) didn't quit. They were aggressive and we threw the ball away a lot."

Seven Turnovers — The mistakes (The Rockets were tagged with seven turnovers in the quarter) gave the hosts ball possession enough times so they were able to dent the big lead.

Kimberly, after going scoreless for almost two minutes, broke the ice on a free throw by Van Beek. The Papermakers missed four charities in a row before putting together a skein of six points on a tip-in by Tim

East Faces Neenah Tonight Milhaupt Scores 33 As Patriots Cruise Past Indians, 73-53

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

An impromptu "Nick Milhaupt night" was observed Friday in the Appleton East gym, as the Patriots whipped Oshkosh High School's basketball team, 73-53.

Milhaupt, slick senior forward who is working on his third until 4:09 had elapsed. The septuagint varsity letter, lit up the scoreboard with 33 points, setting a career record for himself and coming within one of the school standard. Tom Jones holds the AHS-E record on the basis of a 34-point performance two years ago.

Milhaupt and his capable cohorts encountered stiff resistance from the Indians in only the first quarter as they raced to their fifth consecutive victory and improved their all-games record to 8-3. The Bill Morse-coached Patriots who squared their Fox Valley Association log at 3-3 last night, play host to unbeaten Neenah tonight.

Few Problems — In achieving his near-record total, Milhaupt found few problems in freeing himself for shots against a variety of OHS defensive tactics. The 6-3 forward fired 32 times from the field — sinking 11 of them and drawing numerous fouls. From the line, Milhaupt arched in 11 of 17. Milhaupt also had four assists and helped Pete Haas and Dan Kohl control the boards.

The 6-7 Haas fired for 16 points and blocked a number of OHS field goal attempts. Kohl contributed nine points and Don Werner had eight, in addition to quarterbacking the East attack.

Three Indians reached double figures. Craig Whitney managed 15 points, but the total is seven below his FVA average. John Plier, a promising sophomore long-shot launcher, scored 12 points and John Nelzer had 10. Ron Heppler, with a 14.8 average, was limited to five points by East's effective zone defense.

Oshkosh, which owns a 1-5 FVA record and is 5-7, over-all, experienced shooting woes both from the field and the charity stripe. The Indians sank 19 of 63 from the floor, for 30.2 per cent. From the foul line, OHS sank only 15 of 34.

Sinks 27 of 77 — East also failed to establish any accuracy records, sinking 27 of 77 (35 per cent) from the floor and 19 of 33 from the foul line.

The game featured one of the season's longest parades to the free throw line, as officials whistled 52 fouls — 25 on each circuit.

dteam, amazingly enough — and a total of five players left the game via the "personal" route. Oshkosh flipped in three of its first four shots, enroute to a 6-2 lead. East, unable to warm up to its task, sank only one of its first seven floor attempts and didn't gain its first lead (9-8) until 4:09 had elapsed. The septuagint varsity letter, lit up the scoreboard with 33 points, setting a career record for himself and coming within one of the school standard. The Bill Morse-coached Patriots who squared their Fox Valley Association log at 3-3 last night, play host to unbeaten Neenah tonight.

Gains Last Tie — At the start of the second quarter, Milhaupt put in a rebound, but OHS' Dave Mathe gave his team its last tie with a 2-point shot from medium range. A close-in goal by Werner, with 6:55 left in the second quarter gave the Patriots a 21-19 edge, and they were never caught again.

Milhaupt added a 3-point play but Plier's long goal narrowed the gap to 24-21. East then fired in eight straight points — four by Milhaupt and two each by Kohl and Haas — and the host was off to the races, at 32-21. The half ended with East in command by the same 11-point spread (40-29).

Both teams were cold in the third quarter (East made four of 13 while OHS sank four of 17), and the Patriots added only one point to the lead, which stood at 50-38. East gradually lengthened its lead in the final period despite a liberal employment of reserves.

The lead changed hands in the first period and the initial segment ended with Kaukauna ahead, 15-14, on Steve Klister's fielder.

Ties the Score — Moriarty tied the score with a gifter to open the second stanza scoring, but the Ghosts tawled eight of the ensuing nine points before West started its comeback.

Carl Joosten, a 6-4 sophomore, dropped a fielder to narrow the advantage to 24-20 and his 3-point play a short time later put the Terrors ahead. Joosten's 10-footer from the base line in the first half gave West a 30-28 lead and the Terrors would never trail again.

Moriarty dominated in the third frame as he pulled down seven rebounds and connected on two field goals. Defense was the key to the third stanza as Kaukauna managed only seven points as each team turned the ball over six times.

West committed eight more turnovers in the final canto, but by that stage the reserves were seeing extensive action and the outcome was decided.

Koslowski Crashes 702 Menasha Set — Jim Koslowski powered the second national honor count of the season on Twin City lanes and the first in Menasha when he jarred a 702 in the Menasha Men's League at the Mid-Town Lanes Friday night.

Koslowski, in rolling his first national count in 22 years of bowling, crashed games of 267, 223, and 212.

He bowled in three leagues in the Twin Cities and carries a 182 average in the Friday circuit.

All-pro linebacker Dave Robinson said he didn't know much about Devine, "but I have heard he is a very fine coach and I'm looking forward to returning and bringing back some championships to Green Bay."

From his past record, I would have to say he would be an intelligent coach," said running back Donny Anderson.

Anderson said Devine's five-year contract might take some of the pressure off his rookie player who has worked under year as a pro coach.

"It doesn't give him security in his job," Anderson said. "But more excited, and I'm really it does give him security as an individual. He knows that they believe in him."

"I loved playing for him at Missouri," added Peay, who was at Missouri through 1965. "It was one of my greatest experiences. He's a very progressive coach and an innovator. He did quite a few things not many coaches do."

Players Optimistic — "The transition from college to pro football will not be hard for him," Peay said.

Other Packers are optimistic, but feel Devine will have to make major adjustments and weld together a first rate staff to help.

"The main adjustment he'll have to make is in dealing with the experienced football player," said Doug Hart, seven-year veteran of the Packers.

"In college the coach has to deal with football players who have high school techniques. In Green Bay, it may take more than one year for his system to make itself felt."

Reitzner's 21 Points Spark West

BY ROGER PITT

KAUKAUNA — Tim Moriarty and Ike Chestnut spearheaded Appleton West's strong board game, and Rich Reitzner's deadly shooting from long range exercised the Kaukauna Ghosts, 71-57, Friday in Fox Valley Association play.

Kaukauna, 2-1, took a good lead early in the second quarter, but after Terror Coach Dick Emanuel took time and discussed new strategy, Appleton West settled down and moved from a 23-16 deficit to a 34-23 advantage. The win hiked West's FVA record to 4-2.

Grabs 17 Rebounds — Moriarty, 6-5 West pivot man, hauled in 17 rebounds, while the 6-3 Chestnut pulled nine caroms off the glass. The Terrors out-rebounded their smaller opponents, 43-19.

The story on the boards was the telling difference as Kaukauna was unable to cope with the Terrors' height.

Reitzner balanced the attack with an outside shooting exhibition which contributed 21 points. The 1970 all-stater hit half of his 20 shots from long distance.

Rick Luebben hit 13 and Moriarty 11 for the winners. Al Borchardt topped the Ghosts with 11 points, and Karl Mueller added 10.

Reitzner also did an excellent job defensively, as he limited Kaukauna's high-scoring Leon Franzke to seven points and the fleet forward managed to fire only nine shots at the nets.

The Terrors connected on 30 of 65 shots from the field and sank 11 of 16 shots from the free throw stripe. Kaukauna sank 23 of 55 floor attempts, and netted 11 of 20 foul shots.

The lead changed hands in the first period and the initial segment ended with Kaukauna ahead, 15-14, on Steve Klister's fielder.

Carl Joosten, a 6-4 sophomore, dropped a fielder to narrow the advantage to 24-20 and his 3-point play a short time later put the Terrors ahead. Joosten's 10-footer from the base line in the first half gave West a 30-28 lead and the Terrors would never trail again.

Moriarty dominated in the third frame as he pulled down seven rebounds and connected on two field goals. Defense was the key to the third stanza as Kaukauna managed only seven points as each team turned the ball over six times.

West committed eight more turnovers in the final canto, but by that stage the reserves were seeing extensive action and the outcome was decided.

Dutchmen Avenge Earlier Loss St. John Defense Baffles Cadets in 50-48 Thriller

BY JIM HARP

LITTLE CHUTE — Outstanding defensive play and all-around hustle earned St. John High School a 50-48 victory over highly-regarded Green Bay Premontre in a Fox Valley Catholic Conference thriller here Friday night.

A top-notch performance in the third period, when the Dutchmen fired in 20 points and limited the Cadets to 13 was instrumental in giving the Chuteurs a lead which they never relinquished the rest of the way in spite of a last minute surge by the Cadets.

With the victory, the Chuteurs climbed to a 4-5 conference record and the loss all but doomed any Premontre title hopes as the Cadets now have a 5-4 mark.

Defense was the name of the game all the way for the Dutchmen who out-battled the taller Cadets throughout the contest. The aggressive St. John quintet kept the Cadets at long range practically all the time and 6-7 Cadet center Terry Young seldom got his hands on the ball. Young was held to one bucket in the first half, but did score 14 points, with eight coming in the final period.

Steve Siebers and Mark Hammen did an outstanding job under the boards for St. John. Both pulled down rebound after rebound despite giving away height advantages to three of the Cadets.

Hammen and Siebers also sparked the third period performance for the Dutchmen as each contributed six points.

The St. John shooting from the floor was as cold as the weather in the first half or the Chuteurs may have had a runaway. While the St. John defense stopped the Cadets from shooting (Green Bay had only 22 shots in the first half) the Dutchmen could not connect.

St. John made just three of 18 shots in the first period and an equally cold four of 21 in the second stanza. This gave them an average of 18 per cent, but the Chuteurs still had a 19-17 advantage at the intermission.

While the Cadets continued to have trouble solving the St. John defense in the third period, the Dutchmen pumped in seven of 13 from the floor along with six free throws to take a 39-30 lead going into the final period.

Two free throws by Joe Wegand at the start of the final quarter gave St. John its biggest lead at 41-30. At the midpoint of the period Mike Casey dropped in a pair from the line for a 47-37 lead, but at this stage the Cadets started to show signs of making a comeback.

Premontre whipped in five quick points to reduce the St. John advantage to five points at 47-52. Mike Loey then worked his way through the Premontre defense for a driving layup, his only points of the period and the lead went to seven with 1:21 left. Siebers then made good on one of two free throws for a 50-20 lead with 52 seconds showing.

Ed Charles lifted the hopes of the Cadet fans when he hit field goals from long range at the 36-second and 21-second mark. St. John controlled the ball until the Cadets picked off a pass and Carter scored from underneath with 3:30 seconds remaining.

The non-runners as the Chuteurs brought the ball up.

The win avenged an earlier 27-point setback suffered by the Chuteurs in a game played at Premontre. Hammen was the top scorer last night with 15 points and Siebers had 12.

St. John had 20 free throws out of 32 tries while the Cadets hit on 10 of 22 from the line.

Cincinnati moved out front, 20-18, after three technical fouls were called on the Bucks. Following an Alcindor layup, the 7-foot-2 Milwaukee center complained about what he thought was a missed call.

The Milwaukee quintet had come into the game riding atop the Midwest Prep Conference standings with a 5-1 record, its only previous loss being to Wayland Academy. The Foxes, meanwhile, were entering with a 3-3 MPC mark.

Decisive Points — The decisive points for the Foxes were free throws by reserve Wayne Bousley. With his club singing to a 57-54 edge with 1:49 remaining, Bousley sank both ends of a bonus situation.

After the Vikes' Dave Guse retailed from the corner to make it 59-56 at the 1:26 mark, the Foxes' Eric Troge missed a long shot and Wisconsin Lutheran came back on the attack.

Valentyn. A jump shot by Don Uelman and Tom Aerts' two free throws, lowering the score to 55-43 with 4:10 remaining.

Jim Crist, who for the second straight game had a good fourth period came to the rescue with a pair of charities, slowing the Kimberly momentum.

Kimberly's John Appleton and the Rockets' Rick Matson traded baskets for a 59-45 score but Van Beek converted on a 3-point play for a 59-48 count with 3:12 left.

Crist's free throw was followed by baskets by Uelman and Aerts for a 60-52 count at the 2:07 mark.

With 1:50 on the clock, Einerson had his force take a time out to talk things over and after 24 seconds of play, Aerts fouled John Pierce and the senior guard converted twice for a 10-point spread.

Bill Uelman hit a rebound played two separate "games" shot for another 8-point margin. The Red but the seconds were ticking. Raiders could only score nine away rapidly and scoring ended in the second half as with another brace of free throws by Pierce at the 6:20 mark. They again made the difference 10 points.

"A 10-point win here. I'm satisfied," Einerson pointed out in post-game remarks.

Bill Schultz, who enjoyed a 7-point first period and made six in the third and fourth, led the victors with 21 points. Rick Tim Benik of Weyerhaeuser with 31, and Duane Meissner of Luxemburg-Casco and Dave Bauer of Durand, both with 30 points apiece.

Neither team could be accused of peppering the backboards since the Rockets only took 43 shots (making 18) while Kimberly attempted 55 (hitting on 22).

Valders its lone loss a week ago — pulled away from Mishicot, 83-65, for a 6-2 Olympian mark.

Elsewhere, Reedsville buried hapless Wrightstown, 95-52, and Hilbert dumped Denmark, 65-53, making it a clean sweep for visiting teams in the circuit.

Ken Larson pumped in 29 points. Lou Rusch contributed 20 and Jim Pivonka tacked on 14 to guide Valders' win. The Vikings pulled away gradually, constructing 14-9, 33-27, and 53-41 quarter leads.

Shoot 50 Per Cent
Jeff Brandes hit 22 markers and Hervey Smith added 18 for the Lions, who shot just 30 per cent from the floor (19 for 63). Valders connected on 50 per cent of its shots in the second half and finished with a 49 per cent mark on 34 buckets in 38 tries.

Freedom shot a torrid 53 per cent on 33 field goals in 62 attempts as it rolled over Mishicot. The Irish had a 26-12 margin at the end of the first period and stretched it to 46-27 by the half.

Four Freedom players hit twin figures with Bob Garvey and Tony Brockman collecting 22 and 21, respectively. Joe Vandenberg followed with 18 and Gary Hooyman meshed 16. The losing Wolves, topped by Ray Berres' 18 points, fell into a tie with Reedsville for third place with 5-3 logs.

Wrightstown, now 0-3 in the conference, never had a chance, as Reedsville's Panthers roared to a 30-6 bulge by the close of the first quarter.

Jeff Barnard headed the romp with 24 points as Reedsville shot 57 per cent from the floor (40 for 70). Dave Verbeeten managed nine points for the Tigers, who could hit only 18 of 70 launches for 26 per cent.

Al Onofrio Gets Devine's Coaching Job

Former Aide at Missouri Elevated To Head Position

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Al Onofrio, regarded as a genius at moulding football defenses, was given the head coaching job at Missouri at a salary of $24,000 a year.

Length of the contract was not announced.

Onofrio, 49, succeeds Dan Devine, who Thursday was named general manager and coach of the National Football League Green Bay Packers.

The appointment of Onofrio Friday came only 24 hours after Devine ended 13 years as boss at Missouri for what he regards as a "fine challenge and fine opportunity" with the Packers.

Onofrio takes over as coach only. Devine also served as athletic director. A decision is expected later on an athletic director.

Onofrio came to the university with Devine from Arizona State University in 1958. He has been an assistant coach for 22 years, 16 under Devine.

Mead Plans Carbonless Paper Brand

The Mead Corp., Dayton, Ohio-based parent of Gilbert Paper Co., Menasha, is entering the market for carbonless copying papers with its own brand — Mead Trans-rite Carbonless.

"The market for this type of paper is expanding rapidly," said James W. McSwiney, president. "Our Mead Papers division's long experience in making this product and its leadership in business forms places them in an excellent position to capitalize on this growth," he added.

Six to eight copies of a typed or handwritten message can be made on Mead Carbonless, company officials said. Carbonless papers are used in continuous forms, sales books, register forms, and unit sets, such as memo forms.

Mead Carbonless will be made at the company's largest mill, in Chillicothe, Ohio, under rights granted to Mead by the National Cash Register Co. Mead has produced carbonless papers at Chillicothe for NCR since 1954, when its first commercial coater was installed to apply micro-encapsulated dyes to the surface of paper. Additional coaters were installed as the business grew, and a major equipment modernization program was completed in 1969.

Mead will offer its carbonless papers in white and colors, said John W. Herbert, president of the Mead Papers division. It will be sold in rolls and sheets, and the company expects to start accepting orders this month. National distribution is planned by spring.

Sale of Land Assignments Barred to Firm

Securities Department Orders Arizona Firm To Offer Repurchase

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Prohibition of further sales of land contract assignments in Green Bay and elsewhere in Wisconsin by Lake Havasu Estates, Inc., of Phoenix, Ariz., was announced today by the state department of securities.

Thomas Nelson, commissioner of the regulatory agency, said that the interstate developer has thus far sold about $50,000 of the Lake Havasu contracts in the state, largely to residents in the Green Bay area.

Nelson also ordered a halt to the sales by E. R. Kauma Associates, Inc., of Duluth, Minn., and Investors Guarantee Co. of Minneapolis, two dealers involved in the selling program. The securities agent licenses of Mrs. Virginia Mafkham and Ernst A. Lamppa, both of Green Bay, who were involved in the illegal sales, were revoked.

Nelson said that the firms and their agents will be directed to make offers of repurchase of the contracts illegally sold.

Nelson said a staff investigation of his agency disclosed that the contracts are investment securities offered and sold without registration or exemption under the state securities law.

He added that the contracts "had been sold without disclosure of all material facts and their continued sale would be unfair and inequitable to investors."

The contracts involved the assignment by Lake Havasu of its interest in unpaid balances of land contracts for subdivided lots in Arizona, with each investor told he would receive for his investment the unpaid balance on the contract plus a specified interest rate.

Havusa agreed to service the contracts without cost and to replace any defaults by substituting others. The securities were sold by Havasu to Kauma and other dealers, who distributed them to the public without the required state registration, the agency explained.

Green Bay Project Suffers Setback

GREEN BAY — The Gregory I downtown renewal project suffered a serious setback Wednesday with the announcement that J. C. Penney Co. will not build in the city.

The Penney store was to have been the major addition to the 38-acre project. The announcement was made by an official of the Knutson Co., a Minneapolis, chain for the downtown area.

Former Seymour Alderman Dies At Green Bay

GREEN BAY — Arnold W. Helling, 65, a Seymour alderman for 12 years, died at his home here Friday.

He owned and operated the H. P. Muehl Furniture Store and Funeral Home in Seymour for 10 years and was a former member of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church Council.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota school of mortuary science, Helling was employed by the funeral home for 20 years. He had also served on the board of directors of the Woodside Lutheran Home in Green Bay.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Seymour.

Roemer May Run For Executive

Ald. Robert Roemer (8th), veteran member of the Appleton City Council and former mayor, said Thursday he will hold a press conference at the Courthouse Monday morning.

He said the purpose will be "to make a statement about my possible candidacy for the office of county executive."

The press conference is scheduled for 10 a.m. in the county clerk's office.

If Roemer becomes a candidate for the newly created job, he would be the ninth to announce intentions to run.

Roemer is at the midpoint of his eighth 2-year term as alderman, and he served 12 years as mayor.

Kaukauna 3rd Ward Aldermanic Race Set

KAUKAUNA — Two candidates have taken out nomination papers for the position of 3rd Ward alderman, including the veteran incumbent George Simon.

Simon, 118 W. Sixth St., an insurance salesman and real estate broker, will be seeking his 10th term in the April election.

Also circulating papers is Kenneth Huss, 493 Reaume Ave., a beaterman at Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. who has run several times for the post without success.

Gift to Golden Agers

The board of directors of the Appleton Golden Age Club was recently presented with a check for $150 from the Kiwanis Club of Northside Appleton. The gift was presented by Walter Winter, chairman of the Kiwanis vocational committee.

The club's redevelopment authority agreed to actively seek another big department chain for the downtown area.

Police & Fire Beat

KIMBERLY — Frank N. Bateman St., took two pair of panty hose, a package of plastic garbage bags and a sweater from the downtown H.C. Prange store last Saturday. Keller authorized the probation after noting the woman has had a history of similar difficulties.

KIMBERLY — Fire fighting crews of Kimberly-Clark mill extinguished a minor fire in a pile of brokes near one of the paper machines about 11 a.m. Thursday.

Restitution for a worthless check was ordered to made Friday after Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller found Peter A. Socha, 21, 208 N. Sidney St., Kimberly, guilty in County Court Branch 2. Socha passed the $10 check at the Nabbefeld Standard Service Station, 911 W. College Ave., on Dec. 19. He pleaded guilty. The note was drawn off the Kimberly State Bank.

Two years in the Green Bay Reformatory, to run concurrently to a term he presently is serving there for auto theft, were imposed Friday on Chauncey Skendore, 23, route 2, DePere, for forgery. He pleaded guilty before Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller.

Skenadore forged the $32 check with the name of a rural Green Bay man, at a Town of Oneida service station last June 8. The check was drawn on the Bayport branch of the Western State Bank in Green Bay.

A jury trial was requested Friday by a 57-year-old Appleton woman who is accused of shoplifting. Lidija H. Zupans, 417 W. Commercial St., made the request through an attorney in front of Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller, after entering an innocent plea. She allegedly took a knit hat, worth $3.48, from K mart last Saturday.

Two years' probation to the State Department of Health and Social Services was directed Friday for an Appleton woman who pleaded guilty of shoplifting, in the court of Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller. Karen Grapengieser, 24, 708

Williamson reportedly shoved a patron in Emma's Bar, W. Wisconsin Ave., the night of Dec. 2, bringing a call for the police. An investigator's coat was torn during a fray which followed when they arrived, as Williamson refused repeated warnings to leave.

Later, after being booked on a charge of disorderly conduct, authorities said, he tore a bunk railing from its mooring in his cell, and did other damage. An agreement was reached to make restitution.

845 Jobs to be Phased Out at Madison Firm

FOND DU LAC (AP) — The Gisholt Machine Division of Giddings and Lewis, Inc., at Madison will be phased out during the next several months, the firm headquartered here said Friday.

The shut down of the Madison facility, which currently employs about 845 persons, will take place because of substantial operating losses, said the announcement by Ralph Kraut, chairman of the board.

Machine tool sales apparently are approaching "a depression level," he said.

Your Problems He Suggests Adopting a Grandparent

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter asking what has happened to the old fashioned grandma who used to be so important in the lives of young children and it started me thinking. I agree with the person who wrote. Grandparents of young children can add a lot to the life of a child. May I make a suggestion?
If children don't have a

grandma or a grandpa in their own family they might try adopting one from the old people's home. Thousands of old folks sit day after day. They never get any company. Weeks pass and they never even receive a card or letter. No one cares about them. These old people would love to have some youngster come to visit — someone they could tell stories to. Old folks enjoy talking — and they have so much to tell. A visit with a make-believe grandpa can be lots of fun. So please, Ann Landers, publish my letter. It could bring so much sunshine into the lives of so many old folks — and young ones, too.

— Sacramento Grandpa
Dear Gramp: Thank you for a beautiful suggestion. Someone, somewhere is going to be happier because you wrote.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This friend of mine, I'll call her Celia, has an odd sense of humor. By that I mean she is always making jokes at someone else's expense. For some reason she does not like my boyfriend, Rollie is a swell guy but he's about an inch shorter than I am and quite thin. This does not bother me at all, but it seems to bother Celia.

Last week Celia asked me if I would go to a movie with her. I told her I had a date with Rollie. She answered, "Oh that little runt. I'll bet I weigh more than he does." This made me made and I said, "O. K., it's a bet." That minute Rollie came by and Celia blurted out, "We were just talking about you. We have a bet on how much you weigh." Rollie looked hurt and

Driver Hospitalized As Car Rolls Over

Patrick J. Shallow, 26, of rural Lena was taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital early this morning when the car he was driving on U. S. 41 swerved off the road and rolled over.

The accident occurred two miles northwest of Little Chute at 2:45 a.m. Shallow was northbound. He was taken by Outagamie County squad car to the hospital with lacerations to his hands, face abrasions and a dislocated little finger.

I am sick about this because he probably thinks I was out to humiliate him. Please tell me what to do. Rollie has avoided me since that day and I feel terrible. — Lonesome for Him

Dear L. F. H.: The next time you see Rollie tell him you are sorry about the incident and you hope he will forget it. Don't go into detail about who said what. Just say it was a bad scene and you are unhappy about it. Between us girls, Celia sounds like a creep. You need some new friends.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in your advice to the 60-year-old woman whose husband was still having affairs long after his wife ace and a low heart returned. West, Ace Bob Hamman, was put to the same test given Morse at the other table. Hamman ducked unflinchingly. However, the declarer, Mickey Finch of Houston, guessed correctly and played the heart queen. Perhaps on the slim evidence that West had bid and East had not.

What would have happened if East had led West's bid suit?

To defeat the contract, East had to make the unusual lead of the six and not the king! On the lead of the king, declarer would have eliminated West's minor suits and then stuck him on lead with a spade. West would then have been forced to lead from the heart king or to concede a ruff and discard.

The Aces played an inter-city exhibition match against Houston prior to the Fall National Tournament in that city in November. The bidding and play, in a private room, was witnessed by 1,200 persons outside on an electronic Bridge-o-rama board.

The Aces beat Houston by 194-115 international match points (IMPs). But not without some uneasy moments.

Today's slam deal was the third hand of the match that got Houston off to an early lead of 14 IMPs.

West, Dan Morse of Houston, led the club seven. Dummy played low and declarer, Ace Bobby Goldman, captured Bobby Nail's 10 with the queen. Two rounds of trumps were drawn, ending in the South hand.

The heart deuce was led to defend dummy and West was tested. If he played the king, the play for the contract would be over. South would be able to discard his spade loser on the heart queen and claim the contract.

West ducked his heart king smoothly and declarer misguessed, playing dummy's 10, which was won by East's jack. Try as he might, declarer could no longer make the hand. He eventually conceded a spade trick and went down one.

East, Ace Billy Eisenberg, decided to lead a trump. North won and drew the other trump. A heart was led to the

First-Degree Murder
Convictions Against
Four Asked by State

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Climaxing seven months of trial, the Sharon Tate murder jury is deliberating after hearing a prosecutor tell them Charles Manson and his three codefendants lived by "a religion of death, blood and murder."

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated for 70 minutes Friday after receiving its charge from the judge. It resumes today.

Manson, 36, although barred from the courtroom for unruly behavior, managed to inject a comment before the jury retired.

"Tell them why we couldn't put on a defense, old man," he shouted from an adjoining room just after the judge finished reading the charge.

In his final summation, Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent T. Bugliosi called out the names of the seven victims who, he said, "from their graves cry out for justice."

He called the August 1969 slayings "perhaps the most inhuman horror-filled hour of savage murder and human slaughter in the recorded annals of crime."

"As the helpless victims begged and screamed out into the night for their lives, their life-blood gushed out of their bodies forming rivers of gore," Bugliosi said.

Earlier, he summarized evidence against the women, Susan Atkins, 22, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 21. The state asked for first-degree murder and conspiracy convictions against all.

Defense attorneys in their summations said the defendants are innocent and other unknown persons did the killings. They said the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, lied in order to gain immunity from prosecution.

In his instructions to the jury, Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older told them that if they determined the defendants committed the murders, Mrs. Kasabian would legally be an accomplice whose testimony must be corroborated.

A conviction cannot come on testimony of an accomplice alone, he said, and such testimony "is to be treated with distrust." However, the instruction said, the evidence required to corroborate an accomplice "may be slight."

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, spent 18 days on the witness stand telling her version of what happened on the two nights in which Miss Tate and four visitors and a wealthy market owner and his wife were slain.

The defense did not call witnesses in the trial, and jurors were instructed that they could not draw any inference of guilt because they chose not to take the stand. Manson testified, but in the absence of the jury, and declined to repeat his remarks for them.

In the event of a first-degree murder conviction, the same jury would fix the penalty at death or life imprisonment. The jury, locked up since testimony began, would remain sequestered for the second phase.

The state has subpoenaed 30 to 40 witnesses for penalty phase testimony. Chief defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald said that if the state presents a lengthy case, the defense will have one of equal length or longer.

He said such a conviction would declare the defendants "guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, but not beyond any doubt at all," and the defense would seek to inject such doubt through testimony.

Brazilian Terrorists Release Bucher

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazilian terrorists today freed Giovanni Enrico Bucher, the Swiss ambassador they kidnapped 10 days ago.

The 57-year-old diplomat returned to his Rio residence two days after the Brazilian government granted his kidnappers demands to fly 70 prisoners to political asylum in Chile.

After receiving confirmation that the prisoners had arrived safely in Santiago, the kidnappers reportedly telephoned the Brazilian Embassy Friday night and told where Bucher could be picked up.

Embassy sources said Swiss was. First Minister William Roth received the call and drove away to get the kidnapped ambassador.

Thank Government

The ambassador told his sister, Anne Marie Maillot, his servants and some embassy officials:

"I thank the Brazilian government for having helped me. I'm very touched by the death of agent Helio."

This was a reference to Helio de Araujo, a guard who died from gunshot wounds he received in the kidnapping.

"I didn't see anything because I was immediately blindfolded and I have no idea where I was," Bucher said. "I thank everybody for everything done for my release."

As the ambassador spoke, Bucher's sister interrupted and advised him not to go into details before a news conference scheduled later today.

Bucher was kidnapped Dec. 7, when his car was ambushed on a quiet residential street. Witnesses to the two-minute operation said seven men and a woman blocked the street with two cars, shot the guard and spirited away the ambassador in another car.

The Brazilian military government was tougher in dealing with Bucher's kidnappers than it had been in other abductions. It turned down their demands to publish a political manifesto and grant free rides on commuter trains during negotiations and agreed to free only political prisoners as ransom. Authorities even turned down three lists of prisoners before an agreement was reached.

The selection of prisoners to be freed stretched into weeks, and agreement was reached only last weekend. There followed another unexplained delay, and there was speculation that police and soldiers were being given one last chance to find the kidnappers' hideout.

Police dragnets were increased, roadblocks were set up, and house-to-house searches intensified. Several suspected members of the Popular Revolutionary Vanguard, the group that kidnapped Bucher, were arrested in Rio and Sao Paulo, and there were rumors that police were giving tough interrogations to learn where the ambassador was being held.

Laird Reviews War

Critical Time for Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, returning from a trip to Southeast Asia, concedes the next few months will be critical for Cambodia but sees nothing to slow the rate of U.S. troop withdrawal.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong. Laird told a news conference on his return Friday night, are trying to test the Cambodian government and people "as they prepare to build their military forces to maintain security in their country."

One reason for Laird's 10-day trip was to assess what has been described as a generally deteriorating situation in Cambodia.

Although the Lon Nol government in Cambodia is facing a critical five to six months, Laird said, he is impressed with progress made by Cambodians in 284,000 men will be met or beat-building their armed forces en masse. Nixon will announce further troop withdrawals in mid-April, from 30,000 troops nine months ago to the present level of the defense chief said.

Speculation Denied

Laird noted results of the U.S. military-aid program are just being felt in Cambodia. But he said he is encouraged by a national determination to defeat the North Vietnamese.

The defense secretary said he is optimistic about the over-all situation in Southeast Asia, despite the tour of Thailand and South Vietnam gave him "strengthened confidence" the United States will be able to end its involvement in Vietnam.

He declined to go into details until after he reports in full to President Nixon Monday.

However, Laird said, Nixon's May 1 deadline for lowering the U.S. troop count in Vietnam in 284,000 men will be met or beat-

Laird denied renewed speculation Gen. Creighton W. Abrams will be replaced soon as a U.S. commander in South Vietnam.

"No changes are contemplated this year as far as Abrams is concerned," Laird said. "The President and I are more than pleased with the excellent leadership this fine, outstanding American is giving in Vietnam."

There were reports earlier Friday that Laird had told friends in Saigon he planned changes in the U.S. military command in Vietnam, leading to speculation about Abrams.

But a Pentagon spokesman said Laird's remarks were aimed at reorganization of the command structure as U.S. forces are withdrawn—not at military leadership.

The notifications to cancel registrations may be appealed by manufacturers, who may then continue to sell their products while appeals are processed. But the 60-day review may lead to tougher and more direct "suspension" orders that cannot be appealed.

Suspension orders bar interstate sale, as do the cancellation notices. A ban on interstate sales ultimately would curtail other sales.

"We hope to lay to rest once and for all the question whether DDT presents an imminent hazard to the public," Ruckelshaus said. "Failing proof of this, EPA must decide whether the public benefit from its continued use outweighs the risks involved."

Ruckelshaus' move follows an order Jan. 6 by the U.S. Court of Appeals directing immediate proceedings by EPA to ban all remaining uses of DDT.

The pesticide already had been restricted from use around homes, aquatic areas and tobacco crops in orders issued a year ago. Some of the orders were delayed by appeals.

"We have decided not to request the Justice Department to challenge the court order," the EPA administrator said. "The question is not whether the court's decisions are right as a matter of law, but rather the public's right to a full and open airing of the controversy surrounding the continued use of DDT and 2,4,5-T."

USDA already has banned some uses of 2,4,5-T. All interested parties will have a chance to air their views on the pesticides, Ruckelshaus said. The EPA invited comment in written form before Feb. 5, and said the arguments will be made public as they are received.

Army Manpower Short by Thousands, Pentagon Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources say the press to maintain combat strength in Vietnam has left the Army with a manpower shortage in the thousands.

Officials blamed two factors Friday for the reduction in force which at one point left a crack airborne division short a full brigade.

First, they say, there were fewer draftees over the last 18 months than anticipated. Instead of the quarter-million predicted for 1970, 163,500 young men were ordered to duty.

It is draftees, not volunteers, who fill the Army's combat arms—infantry, artillery and armor.

Slow Withdrawals

Also aggravating the plans of Pentagon manpower strategists was the decision to slow down Vietnam withdrawals after the Cambodian incursion last May.

The slower rate of withdrawal was only temporary, but lasted long enough that the Army had to replace men ending their 12-month war-zone tours with troops from all commands outside Vietnam.

"As a result, these other units have suffered," one Army source said.

The shortage extended to one of the most elite of Army units, the crack 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C. The unit was alerted for possible duty in Jordan as a rescue force for Americans trapped during the fighting between the government and Palestinian guerrillas last September.

Not Ready

Pentagon officials were surprised to learn the unit—supposed to be ready for movement on short notice—could put together only two of three 4,500-man brigades.

The Army since has taken steps to bolster the strength of the 82nd, but the unit is still rated 2 on a combat readiness scale of 4.

One source was pessimistic about chances for bringing the 82nd back up to full combat readiness and strength, let alone units of lesser renown.

"The ideal is 1 and the 82nd should be at 1," he said. "But the first priority has been the divisions in Vietnam."

Other Divisions

"As for the other divisions, those in the United States and elsewhere, they are hurting more than the 82nd."

In Europe, for example, some mechanized infantry battalions have been operating at less than half strength.

But as Vietnam troop withdrawals continue, officials say, the problem will ease. They say the current average of 13,000 troops withdrawn a month when draft will make up the difference.

Besides that, the Army already is scheduled to shrink from 15 and a third divisions to 13 and two-thirds divisions by early summer.

The death of a girl in a Fond du Lac County accident has brought Wisconsin's 1971 highway toll to 15, compared with 23 on this date a year ago.

Donna Krnig, 17, of rural Eden was injured fatally Friday evening in a collision at the junction of Fond du Lac County highways W and F about seven miles south of Fond du Lac.

San Quentin Prison Lt. Robert H. West testified that Miss Davis is accompanied Jackson on two visits to his older brother, George Jackson to the Aug. 4 and Aug. 5.

Grand Jury Testimony Links Angela to Shootings

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Grand jury testimony links black militant Angela Davis to a teen-ager and the guns he smuggled into a courtroom on an escape try that left four men dead.

The 127 pages of testimony was made public Friday by court order. Sixteen other pages remained sealed temporarily.

Miss Davis, 26-year-old avowed Communist and former UCLA philosophy instructor, was indicted by the Marin County grand jury last Aug. 15 on charges of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy and is jailed at the Civic Center complex where the shooting occurred.

Killed in a rented yellow van

during the Aug. 7 escape attempt were Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, San Quentin prison convicts James McClain and William Arthur Christmas, and 17-year-old Jonathan Jackson, who smuggled the guns into Haley's courtroom.

Peter D. Fleming, a service station attendant, testified before the grand jury that he had helped Jackson and a woman resembling Miss Davis start a yellow rental van with battery trouble in the Civic Center parking lot the day before the shooting.

He said several photographs of Miss Davis looked "a lot like" the woman he saw with Jackson.

"This looks like her," he said at one point. "But I can't remember about the teeth." There is a noticeable space between two of Miss Davis' front teeth.

Testimony identifies Miss Davis as the purchaser of four guns found inside the van.

David Lifsen and Frank Blumenthal, both clerks in the Eagle Loan Office in San Francisco, testified that she bought a 12-gauge shotgun on Aug. 5, two days before the shooting. Lifsen said he recognized Miss Davis at the time from news photos and got her autograph.

Nancy Conrad, a clerk in the Western Surplus Store in Los Angeles, testified that Miss Davis bought an M1 carbine and 200 rounds of ammunition on July 25.

Rulings by Agency On Ecology

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Environmental Protection Agency has announced the start of two actions that would ban DDT use anywhere in the country.

William D. Ruckelshaus, EPA administrator, said Friday notices will go out next week to manufacturers of DDT, canceling federal registrations for use of the pesticide 30 days later.

Also beginning Jan. 13, he said, will be a 60-day review aimed at halting the interstate sale of both DDT and the pesticide 2,4,5-T.

The notifications to cancel registrations may be appealed by manufacturers, who may then continue to sell their products while appeals are processed. But the 60-day review may lead to tougher and more direct "suspension" orders that cannot be appealed.

GREEN BAY — Kaukauna's sanitary landfill hearing was adjourned at 5:45 p.m. Thursday after four mornings, five afternoons and one night of testimony.

Edward Main, hearing examiner for the state Department of Natural Resources, said regulations require a decision to be rendered within 90 days.

It is up to the DNR to decide whether Kaukauna will be permitted to go ahead with plans to use a tract of 68.72 acres, recently annexed to the city, for a sanitary landfill operation.

The hearing resulted from a six-citizen petition under provision of the Wisconsin Water Resources Act. It was initially convened Nov. 18, and was resumed Tuesday morning after recessing Nov. 20.

Two main points were advanced by the petitioners. They claimed that the operation would cause pollution and other environmental damage. They also objected to the filling of a wooded ravine, comprising a large part of the tract, declaring it is a valuable natural resource which should not be obliterated.

Mrs. Lloyd Williams, Appleton, headed the petitioners. Signing with her were her physician husband, Dr. H. J. Harris, Appleton, of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay; Miss Colleen Meyers, Appleton, Girl Scout executive; Prof. Leonard Weis, UWGB, and Prof. James McKee, Oshkosh State University.

Fred Reichel, Kaukauna, headed a group of fellow townsmen who put their support behind the official petitioners. Testimony at Thursday afternoon's session mainly involved Glenn Bishop, an engineer with the DNR's Division of Environmental Protection. He is concerned with the licensing and regulation of solid waste disposal for the state agency.

"In my judgment, the site could be built and operated as a sanitary landfill acceptable within the framework established by the department," Bishop declared.

He was pressed for his personal opinion by Donald R. Murphy, attorney for the DNR.

"I feel somewhat sorry that I don't have more to say about such things. It is probably a shame that an area like the Kaukauna site is going to be used for such a purpose," Bishop remarked.

"Even so, it is pretty important to recognize that land use be predicated on more than one criteria," he added.

Bishop said the proposed site was checked out and found suitable from a technological, environmental and physical standpoint.

The examiner refused to permit testimony about a landfill operation of the Thilmany Paper Co. which adjoins the proposed city site. Bishop stated, however, that steps are being taken to remove objectionable features of the operation. Main, the Green Bay Duck Hunters Association, on Murphy's objection, refused to permit entry of objections by those organizations since Keuler testified that they had not specifically instructed him to represent them.

Airport Committee Agrees to Curtail Assessment of Fees

An effort may be made to either hold in abeyance recently enacted landing fees at the Outagamie County Airport or to sound out Winnebago and Brown counties on enacting similar fees at their airports.

In the meantime, the Outagamie County Board's airport committee informally agreed in a special meeting Friday afternoon not to attempt to assess landing fees until after they met with the executive committee next Wednesday.

Landing fees on itinerant twin-engine and larger aircraft, along with annual registration fees on locally based airplanes, were approved last Tuesday by the county board. The annual registration fee would not be affected by the proposed action.

The meeting was called at the request of Harry Guest, head of Kimberly-Clark Aviation, Inc., who said the landing fees would drive away their business. He said three customers had already told him they would not come to the Outagamie County Airport if landing fees were charged.

Supv. Richard Jahnke, Appleton, who has been a strong advocate of the fees, said the same guy who told us your customers would be glad to pay landing fees for the added safety of the control tower."

Guest admitted he had originally supported the landing fees but said the situation had changed. "The major cost of the control tower is salaries and that will be lifted," he said, referring to Federal Aviation Administration pronouncements that they would take over the control tower operation March 15. He added that the economic situation also has changed. "The paper industry in the Valley is in bad shape," Guest said.

However, Guest said he was still in favor of the annual registration fee for locally based aircraft and said he would support landing fees if Brown and Winnebago counties also had them.

Word Passed

There were reports that fixed base operators at both Green Bay and Oshkosh were "spreading the word" for planes not to land at Outagamie County because there was a landing fee.

Both Brown and Winnebago county airports have landing fees for commercial and charter flights but not for privately owned airplanes.

Guest said he wanted to assure the committee he was not complaining. "The county has been very good to us," he said. But, he added, about 20 per cent of the airplanes affected by the landing fee would be Kimberly-Clark Aviation customers.

Jahnke said he would be the first to admit he had made a mistake if it could be proven that airplanes were not landing at Outagamie County because of the fee.

Strong Support

But, Jahnke said, he has received more telephone calls from people in his district supporting his position than he has received on any subject since he has been on the county board.

Board Returns Canceled COG Fees to County

State Legal Ruling Prompts Return of Funds From Budget

Outagamie County communities will shortly receive checks to reimburse them for taxes they paid for county membership in the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), which never materialized.

The $61,000 will be apportioned back to the communities on the basis of equalized valuation, the same way it was collected.

Returning the monies was approved by the county board Tuesday over the objections of Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, Appleton, who questioned the legality of the action and the authority of the county to make such a refund.

His motion to refer the refunding to the county corporation counsel to seek an attorney general's opinion lost 23-19.

The county had placed the funds in the budget with the intention of picking up the membership fees of county communities in COG with the aim of exerting pressure to promote a merger of COG and the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

Legal Ruling

The attorney general later ruled, after the budget was adopted, that the county could not become a member of COG while it was a member of Northeastern.

In the meantime, some of the COG members did not provide membership fees in their budgets because they expected the county to pick up the cost.

Bubolz contended the only way the funds could legally be returned to the taxpayers was to hold the money in escrow until next year and then use it to reduce the tax levy.

Acting Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath disagreed. He said the original levy was illegal since the attorney general ruled the county could not be a part of COG. If that was illegal, giving it back should not be wrong, Ponath reasoned.

Bubolz said the attorney general's opinion indicated it would have been illegal only if the money actually had been paid for the memberships.

"I'm not attempting to keep the funds from the communities," Bubolz said. "I'm concerned over the legality of the act."

Windfall

In returning the funds, the local communities will actually be receiving a slight windfall. Of the $61,000, only $11,000 was actually added to the county tax levy. The other $50,000 was obtained by reducing the proposed contingency fund for 1971 and did not affect the levy.

However, county officials felt it would be hard to convince local officials of their intention and decided to return the entire amount.

Reimbursement by community:

Hearing Set For 2nd Man In Meat Theft

Milwaukeean Is Implicated in Case At New London

An associate of a former supervisor at a New London meat packing plant, who allegedly exchanged cash and merchandise in return for over 14,000 pounds of meat at reduced, falsified prices, requested a preliminary hearing Friday on a charge of theft.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller set Feb. 15 for the hearing for Dominic Mandella, 55, Milwaukee. Mandella immediately posted bond of $1,500 after appearing in court.

County investigators allege that between June of 1969 and Nov. 2, 1970, Harold Dreier, 44, of 1811 Smith St., New London, former production supervisor at the Quality Packing House, Inc., near New London, altered billing invoices so that Mandella would pay approximately only half of what the meat really cost.

Handled Billing

Dreier, according to authorities, was in charge of billing different customers of the firm for shipments of meat to them. Mandella, authorities said, supposedly supplied meat concerns in the Milwaukee area with the meat he received at falsified prices. Value of the meat shipped to Mandella was $13,960, for 14,250 pounds, according to authorities.

Mandella, investigators believe, gave Dreier small payments of cash, plus merchandise. Included were such items as a high-fidelity set, tape recorder, humidifier, color television set, and pool table, they said.

Mandella is self-employed in a container firm in Milwaukee.

Dreier will be sentenced Jan. 25 for two theft counts lodged against him in connection with purported transactions with Mandella on July 8 and Sept. 3 of last year. He is free after posting $400 bond. Dreier pleaded guilty to the charges in County Court Branch 2 last Friday. Dreier has made restitution of $6,530 for his share of the alleged thefts. He worked at Quality Packing for over 15 years.

Gone Are the Pool Cards

BY BILL KNUTSON

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Go into a tavern — any tavern — in Appleton today and try to find a Super Bowl pool card.

You'll have a better chance of finding a bottle of Gem beer, a spittoon, a free lunch or a pack of Wings.

Appleton detectives seized four pool cards from three taverns Thursday night. They might have seized more had "the word" not traveled so fast after their first stop.

Tavernkeepers can't say the police visits were a total surprise. Chief Earl O. Wolff let it be known a couple of months ago that as far as he was concerned, the days of the pool cards in Appleton were numbered. Ditto, he hinted, for raffles, bingo games, lotteries and any other illegal contests that for many years were "tolerated."

No One's Immune

And, officials warned, the priest was just as apt to be arrested as the tavern operator if violations continued.

"We won't go out looking for business," an official said today. But he said his men no longer will close their eyes or turn their heads when they come face to face with pool cards.

Some Appleton tavern operators were not happy with the pool card crackdown. Some of them even said nasty things about the police.

One said they were "foolish" and another said they were "kind of silly."

Still another said, "Wolff is cutting his own throat," whatever that meant.

"I think it's lousy. What the hell do they expect?" one tavernkeeper remarked. He said he had operated pool cards all year — "right straight through." When the football season ended he had bowling cards and when bowling ended he had baseball cards. He had lots of cards. They all came down Thursday afternoon.

They're an "innocent sport" was the opinion of a tavernkeeper who said pool cards "make people happy." He had a lot of cards, too. Not today. "I've been in business 20 years. I'm not going to blow it this time. I've got one of the better places in town and I intend to keep it that way," he reflected.

"They can have mine," a tavernkeeper laughed. "I've got mimeographed copies anyway."

Won't Seize Money

Police say they have no intention of seizing the money invested in the pool cards they rounded up Thursday. They'll even give the cards back after this Sunday's Super Bowl game so participants can get their money back.

Most tavernkeepers said they were paying out everything paid into the pools. A couple aren't, though, one explained. There are a couple of "booze boards" that pay off in liquor rather than money.

Pool cards are good for business. "They buy at least a glass of beer when they come in to sign up," a tavernkeeper explained. They buy lots of glasses when they come to collect.

What bothered some proprietors is that now some of those glasses of beer are going to be bought at taverns where the pool cards will remain on the back bar. And that, they say, means taverns in every place but Appleton. Other area police agencies have not yet taken a hard line position on pool cards.

Will the pool card drought continue in Appleton?

Police say yes.

Tavernkeepers say maybe.

"I'm going to put mine away for a little while — until it cools off," one said.

"They say they're going to outlaw it. What can you do? I've got to quit," said another.

"It stinks."

Wait For Baseball

"We'll just wait and see what the baseball season brings," an optimistic tavernkeeper ventured.

A few confided that they would move their cards from on top of the bar to under it. And anyone wanting to make an investment better have good references.

A tavernkeeper who lost his pool card to two detectives Thursday wasn't bitter.

They gave him a receipt, didn't take the money and promised to return the card.

"I'd rather have a warning by detectives than a visit by the feds," he said.

Wolff had a suggestion for anyone who doesn't like his pool card crackdown.

"Get the law changed."

Police Warn Bars Of Illegal Lotteries

Wisconsin Ave. a contest constitutes "consideration." Citing numerous inquiries, he says, "and if the received in his department and other elements of prize and apparent continued violations of chance are present, the contest law banning such activities. By the law, Wolff quoted the state is an illegal lottery."

"Violators are subject to state statute, a lottery is defined as 'an enterprise wherein for consideration the participants are given an opportunity of jeopardy if violations continue.'"

Poultry Processing Plant Clintonville Assured of New Industry

CLINTONVILLE — The City specialized building with a 10-foot ceiling. A 15-year lease has been worked out with Converting, Inc., with an option to buy the property after 1976, it was noted.

In addition, GC2 will retain Converting, Inc., a paper converting firm which located here about two and one-half years ago through the efforts of the local organization.

The new industry, a poultry processing plant, will occupy the facilities presently used by Converting, Inc., on River Street, which originally was built by Greater Clintonville.

The shareholders present voted unanimously to sell the property to the poultry firm and to construct a new plant in the city's industrial park for lease to the paper firm.

Cost of $95,000

The present plant will be sold for $95,000 to Myrle A. Zimmerman of Winnebago.

The new company wants to occupy the plant and be in operation by March 1. Emil Kuehl, GC2 president, explained. The firm expects to employ 40 persons at the start of operations.

Bids have been obtained for the new building for Converting, Inc., which will be 100 by 122 feet with a 16-foot clearance and 20-foot center, so it could be adapted for other businesses, he pointed out.

Increase in Electric Rates At Clintonville Is Requested

CLINTONVILLE — The common council, in special session Wednesday night, granted the Clintonville Water and Light commission permission to apply to the Wisconsin Public Service Commission for an emergency rate increase in electric rates of 17 per cent to become effective on Feb. 8, 1971, or as soon as possible after this date.

The Water and Light management and commission noted that the last time rates were increased in the city was 1943.

The council was told that the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company applied to the Federal Power commission last Sept. 1, to increase the wholesale electric rate to the city of Clintonville at an increase of 12.6 per cent to become effective Nov. 1, 1970.

The Federal Power commission requested the Wisconsin Power company to The order explained that if the final decision is an increase of less than 12.6 per cent, difference will be refunded plus interest at the Chicago prime rate after Feb. 8.

Profit Small

The Clintonville Electric utility expects a net profit of 1.33 per cent in 1970. To protect its interest (the Wisconsin Public Service commission allows six per cent return on its investment) the utility is asking for 17 per cent increase in its rates. If the rate is lower, it will refund to its retail customers the difference plus interest at the Chicago prime rate," according to the local commission.

In 1943, the Clintonville Water and Electric utility paid to the city of Clintonville taxes totaling $8,446. In 1960, the taxes paid amounted to $23,448, and in 1970, the amount was $38,505.

Top-Rated Neenah Tips Kimberly; Terrors Victimize Ghosts, 71-57

Rockets Build UP 19-Point Lead, Then Stave Off Last Ditch Rally by Papermakers

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
KIMBERLY — Kimberly High School melted down Neenah's 19-point fourth period lead to eight with 2:07 left to play but the state's no. 1 ranked quintet kept its cool and emerged with a 64-54 Fox Valley Association verdict Friday night.

In registering their 11th straight victory, the high-flying

Rockets boosted their FVA record to 6-0 and increased their lead to two full games over the Papermakers and Appleton West. They play at Appleton East tonight.

A combination of a fine first half, in which they built up a good cushion, and excellent free throw shooting were two big factors tipping the scales in Neenah's direction.

The victors banged home 28 sitters in 36 chances, including 13 of 15 in the first half and eight of 10 in the last quarter. Kimberly had a much poorer percentage, falling below the .500 level with only 10 successes in 23 tries. The Papermakers racked up a 22-18 margin in field goals.

Foul Trouble

Before the game, Kimberly coach Jack Wippich remarked about Neenah's inside strength and his concern was justified as the Rockets claimed a 40-31 board edge and Kimberly's big men ran into foul trouble in competing for the rebounds.

Don Uelman, Mike Van Beek and Jim Rooyakkers all picked up three fouls in the first half. Rooyakkers fouled out with 6:23 remaining in the game while Van Beek played most of the second half with four.

Coach Ron Emerson's forces, helped by an 8-point spurt in the second period, held a 33-21 margin at the intermission and added two more points to their advantage in taking a 50-36 lead into the final eight minutes.

Ringling up the first five points of the last quarter, their lead shot up to 55-36 after two minutes of play.

But as Emerson said after the game, "We built up a big lead and they (Kimberly) didn't quit. They were aggressive and we threw the ball away a lot."

Seven Turnovers

The mistakes (The Rockets were tagged with seven turnovers in the quarter) gave the hosts ball possession enough times so they were able to dent the big lead.

Kimberly, after going scoreless for almost two minutes, broke the ice on a free throw by Van Beek. The Papermakers missed four charities in a row before putting together a skein of six points on a tip-in by Tim

Milhaupt Scores 33 As Patriots Cruise Past Indians, 73-53

Post-Crescent Sports Editor

An impromptu "Nick Milhaupt night" was observed Friday in the Appleton East gym. Oshkosh flipped in three of its first four shots, enroute to a 6-2 lead. East, unable to warm up to its task, sank only one of its first seven floor attempts and didn't gain its first lead (9-8) until 4:09 had elapsed. The second quarter saw nature of the competition continued, and the first quarter ended all even, 17-17.

Gains Last Tie

At the start of the second quarter, Milhaupt put in a rebound, but OHS' Dave Mathe gave his team its last tie with a 2-point shot from medium range. A close-in goal by Werner, with 6:55 left in the second quarter, gave the Patriots a 21-19 edge, and they were never caught again.

Milhaupt added a 3-point play but Plier's long goal narrowed the gap to 24-21. East then fired in eight straight points — four by Milhaupt and two each by Kohl and Haas — and the host was off to the races, at 32-21. The half ended with East in command by the same 11-point spread (40-29).

Both teams were cold in the third quarter (East made four of 13 while OHS sank four of 17), and the Patriots added only one point to the lead, which stood at 50-38. East gradually lengthened its lead in the final period despite a liberal employment of reserves.

The 6-7 Haas fired for 15 points and blocked a number of OHS field goal attempts. Kohl contributed nine points and Don Werner had eight, in addition to quarterbacking the East attack.

Three Indians reached double figures, Craig Whitney managed 16 points, but the total is seven below his FVA average. John Plier, a promising sophomore long-shot launcher, scored 12 points and John Netzer had 10.

Ron Hepler, with a 14.8 average, was limited to five points by East's effective zone defense.

Oshkosh, which owns a 1-5 FVA record and is 5-7, over-all, experienced shooting woes both from the field and the charity stripe. The Indians sank 19 of 63 from the floor, for 30.2 per cent. From the foul line, OHS sank only 15 of 34.

Sinks 27 of 77

East also failed to establish any accuracy records, sinking 27 of 77 (35 per cent) from the floor and 19 of 33 from the foul line.

The game featured one of the season's longest parades to the free throw line, as officials whistled 52 fouls — 26 on each circuit.

Reitzner's 21 Points Spark West

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KAUKAUNA — Tim Moriarty and Ike Chestnut spearheaded Appleton West's strong board game, and Rich Reitzner's deadly shooting from long range exercised the Kaukauna Ghosts, 71-57, Friday in Fox Valley Association play.

Kaukauna, 2-1, took a good lead early in the second quarter, but after Terror Coach Dick Emanuel took time and discussed new strategy, Appleton West settled down and moved from a 23-16 deficit to a 34-23 advantage. The win hiked West's FVA record to 4-2.

Grabs 17 Rebounds

Moriarty, 6-5 West pivot man, hauled in 17 rebounds, while the 6-3 Chestnut pulled nine caroms off the glass. The Terrors out-rebounded their smaller opponents, 43-19.

The story on the boards was the telling difference as Kaukauna was unable to cope with the Terrors' height.

Reitzner balanced the attack with an outside shooting exhibition which contributed 21 points. The 1970 all-star but half of his 20 shots from long distance.

Rick Luebben hit 13 and Moriarty 11 for the winners. Al Borchardt topped the Ghosts with 11 points, and Karl Mueller added 10.

Reitzner also did an excellent job defensively, as he limited Kaukauna's high-scoring Leon Franke to seven points and the fleet forward managed to fire only nine shots at the nets.

The Terrors connected on 30 of 65 shots from the field and sank 11 of 16 shots from the free throw stripe. Kaukauna sank 23 of 55 floor attempts, and netted 11 of 20 foul shots.

The lead changed hands in the first period and the initial segment ended with Kaukauna ahead, 15-11, on Steve Klier's fielder.

Ties the Score

Moriarty tied the score with a gifter to open the second stanza scoring, but the Ghosts tawled eight of the ensuing nine points before West started its comeback.

Carl Joosten, a 6-4 sophomore, dropped a fielder to narrow the advantage to 24-29 and his 3-point play a short time later put the Terrors ahead. Joosten's 10-footer from the base line in the first half gave West a 30-28 lead and the Terrors would never trail again.

Moriarty dominated in the third frame as he pulled down seven rebounds and connected on two field goals. Defense was the key to the third stanza as Kaukauna managed only seven points as each team turned the ball over six times.

West committed eight more turnovers in the final canto, but by that stage the reserves were seeing extensive action and the outcome was decided.

Dutchmen Avenge Earlier Loss

St. John Defense Baffles Cadets in 50-48 Thriller

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LITTLE CHUTE — Outstanding defensive play and all-around hustle earned St. John High School a 50-48 victory over Fugly-regarded Green Bay Premontre in a Fox Valley Catholic Conference thriller here Friday night.

A top-notch performance in the third period, when the Dutchmen fired in 20 points and limited the Cadets to 13 was instrumental in giving the Chuteers a lead which they never relinquished the rest of the way in spite of a last minute surge by the Cadets.

With the victory, the Chuteers climbed to a 4-5 conference record and the loss all but doomed any Premontre title hopes as the Cadets now have a 5-4 mark.

Defense was the name of the game all the way for the Dutchmen who out-battled the taller Cadets throughout the contest. The aggressive St. John quarter kept the Cadets at long range practically all the time and 6-7 Cadet center Terry Young seldom got his hands on the ball. Young was held to one bucket in the first half, but did score 14 points, with eight coming in the final period.

Steve Siebers and Mark Hammen did an outstanding job under the boards for St. John. Both pulled down rebound after rebound despite giving away Chuteers in a game played at Little Chute.

Hammen and Siebers also sparked the third period performance for the Dutchmen as each contributed six points.

The St. John shooting from the floor was as cold as the weather in the first half or the Chuteers may have had a runaway. While the St. John defense stopped the Cadets from shooting, Green Bay had only 22 shots in the first half; the Dutchmen could not connect.

St. John made just three of 18 shots in the first period and an equally cold four of 21 in the second stanza. This gave them an average of 18 per cent, but the Chuteers still had a 15-17 advantage at the intermission.

When the Cadets continued to have trouble solving the St. John defense in the third period, the Dutchmen pumped in seven of 13 from the floor along with six free throws to take a 30-20 lead going into the final period.

Two free throws by Joe Wegand at the start of the final quarter gave St. John's 2-6 lead at 41-20. At the mid-point of the period Mike Casey dropped in a pair from two feet awayland Academy. The Foxes, for a 47-37 lead, but at this meanwhile, were entering with stage the Cadets started to show signs of making a comeback.

Premontre snapped in five quick points to reduce the St. John advantage to five points at 47-42. Mike Loy then worked his way through the Premontre offense for a driving layup, his only points of the period and the lead went to seven with 1:21 left. Siebers then made good on one of two free throws for a 50-42 lead with 52 seconds showing.

Ed Casey led the hopes of the Cadets when he hit field goals from long range at the 38-second and 21-second mark. St. John controlled the ball until the Cadets played off a pass area. Young scored from underneath with three seconds remaining. Time ran out as the Chuteers brought the ball up.

The win avenged an earlier 27-point setback suffered by the wide on his outside jumper and

Alcindor's 35 Leads Bucks Past Royals

Dandridge Adds 29 as Milwaukee Wins, 135-116

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lew Alcindor came to play Friday night, which meant the Cincinnati Royals suffered another defeat at the hands of the Milwaukee Bucks.

"If Lew comes to play, we can just go home, it's all over," moaned Cincinnati Coach Bob Cousy.

Cousy's Royals were soundly defeated by the Bucks, 135-116, in a National Basketball Association game. Alcindor, the league's top scorer in his sophomore season, finished with 35 points, 16 rebounds and five assists.

"Toyed With Us"

"Alcindor just toyed with us," Cousy lamented.

The Royals' mentor could have added Bob Dandridge and three former Cincinnati players. —Jon McGlocklin, Oscar Robertson and Bob Boozer—to the list. Dandridge tallied 29 points, McGlocklin 16, Robertson 14 and Boozer 13.

Cincinnati moved out front, 20-13, after three technical fouls were called on the Bucks. Following an Alcindor layup, the 7-foot-2 Milwaukee center complained about what he thought was a missed call.

Hustling harassing Fox Valley Lutheran summed Wisconsin Lutheran with its press in the first half, then held off a late Viking bid in the second half for a 60-38 upset of the league's leaders at the FVL gym Friday night.

The Milwaukee quintet had come into the game riding atop the Midwest Prep Conference standings with a 5-1 record, its previous loss being to a 60-38 upset of the league's leaders at the FVL gym Friday night.

The outcome recalled a similar contest at the Foxes' gym last season when Milwaukee Lutheran rolled into Appleton in first-place with a 7-2 record and FVL was stumbling along at 1-9. Coach Gerhard Kaness' cagers dumped the Knights in that one, 50-29.

The decisive points for the Foxes were free throws by reserve Wayne Bousley. With his club slinging to a 57-54 edge with 1:40 remaining, Bousley sank both ends of a bonus situation.

After the Vikes' Dave Guse rebounded from the corner to make it 59-56 at the 1:26 mark, the Foxes' Eric Troge missed a layup and Wisconsin Lutheran came back on the attack.

Conservationists Going to Court to Try to Save River

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservationists, who say a river is under construction since the dying, went to court today, asking a halt to construction of a $155.2 million cross-Florida barge canal.

The suit in U.S. District Court here marks the first attempt to reverse progress on a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers project of mid-course.

Environmental Defense Fund Inc. of New York filed the suit over a year ago, saying completion of the 107-mile canal—now about one-third finished—would kill the wild Ocklawaha River and much of the ecology around it.

The suit alleges the canal would prevent migratory fish from reaching the river, cause pollution and the growth of noxious weeds, negatively affect ground water levels and diminish the long-range value of the Ocala National Forest as a national resource.

Further Studies
The Fund wants a preliminary injunction to halt construction until further studies can be made of the canal, and a full hearing when a permanent injunction would be sought.

Opposition to the canal has crystallized as a rallying point for conservationists nationwide who view the issue as a test of the Nixon administration's commitment to the environment.

For now, the Justice Department is to argue that the suit should be dismissed on the grounds that the government is immune to prosecution.

The Fund bases its case largely on the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, requiring every agency building a project that could affect the environment to submit a detailed statement to the Council on Environmental Quality.

To date, the Army engineers have filed no statement, though the law says a project cannot go ahead before the environmental statement is considered. Fund attorneys contend the engineers must submit a statement even though their project has been under construction since the mid-1960s, before the law was enacted. The Fund also argues the engineers have never given sufficient study and weight to the environmental aspects of the canal project.

The non-profit Fund, which has lawyers, scientists and non-professional volunteer members, is asking the court to order:

—A five-foot drawdown in the level of Rodman Lake reservoir, 10 miles east of Ocala, to save trees. The engineers have already said they would lower the level two feet.

Underground Level
—A delay in the clearing for construction of the Eureka pool.

—No further excavations that would have any effect on the underground water level in north central Florida.

The canal would run southeast from Mayport, near Jacksonville, on the Atlantic Ocean, southwest through the scenic Ocklawaha River valley, and then west to Yankeetown on the Gulf of Mexico.

The canal would reduce by 600 miles the present around-Florida shipping route. The waterway's backers contend its economic benefits would far overshadow any possible drawbacks or damage to the environment.

Interior Department experts and the Army engineers have had a series of conferences since June on ways to modify the present construction plans and lessen any environmental damage, particularly in the Ocklawaha River area.

Majority on Campus Oppose Disruptive Demonstrations

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The majority of college teachers and students oppose campus violence and disruptive demonstrations, the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education reported today.

Releasing preliminary findings from a 1969 survey of 160,000 persons, the commission chairman, Clark Kerr, said people on campuses "tend to be in strong agreement that disruptions by activists are inimical to academic freedom and the educational process" and are inclined to support policies for preventing violence and punishing the violent.

Dr. Martin Trow, public affairs professor of the University of California at Berkeley, who directed the survey, said more than 80 per cent of the faculty members questioned agree that "campus disruptions by militant students are a threat to academic freedom."

Expert Disrupters
He said 79 per cent of the faculty members, 72 per cent of the graduate students, and 62 per cent of the undergraduates agree that "students who disrupt the functioning of a college should be expelled or suspended."

The report also said:
—There is wide agreement among students and faculty that there is a need for reform in American society. But about one-third of the teachers and graduate students and one-half of the undergraduates expressed doubt that it can be achieved through "traditional American politics."
—There is general satisfaction with colleges by students and faculty, but:

—There is significant agreement that improvement is needed, most notably for education to be more relevant to contemporary life and problems. Student and faculty majorities agreed that higher education would be improved if students were required to spend a year in community service in the United States or abroad.
—There is a generation gap among faculties, with significant differences in attitudes held by younger and older teachers, especially in regard to faculty strikes.

President at GOP Center Dedication

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon joined in the dedication today of a new $15 million Dwight D. Eisenhower National Republican Center on Capitol Hill.

After the ribbon cutting by former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower, Mr. and Mrs. Nixon planned a reception for the GOP National Committee.

Although the four-story brick building was unveiled last August, official dedication was put off until the national committee was in Washington for its January meeting to pick a replacement for current chairman Rogers Morton.

The new GOP headquarters building is part of a three-building complex being constructed by the Capitol Hill Associates, a company launched by Republican stockholders.

The building, in addition to housing committee headquarters, contains the Young Republicans Federation, Republican Governors Association, National Federation of Republican Women, GOP National Finance Committee and two divisions of the Republican Congressional Committee.

Industrial Production Level Rises Slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrial production rose in December for the first time in five months but still remains 6.1 per cent below the July 1969 high, says the Federal Reserve Board.

The 1.4 per cent monthly increase reported Thursday was attributed primarily to resumption of production at General Motors and related auto supply industries after last fall's strike.

It was the first measurable monthly increase since July 1970 and matched the last recorded high in December 1969, bringing production to 163.9 per cent of the 1957-59 average.

—In the past much campus conflict has pitted faculty and students together against administration, but now students seek to extend their power into faculty-controlled areas such as promotion, admissions and course content. Hence, "It is likely that the future conflict on the campuses will be between the students and the faculty."

Middle Categories
Trow said that when asked to place themselves within a five-segment political spectrum from "left" to "strongly" conservative, nine out of 10 students and faculty chose the middle three categories: "liberal," "middle-of-the-road," and "moderate conservative."

The survey was conducted among more than 60,000 teachers, 30,000 graduate students, and 70,000 undergraduates in 300 institutions from large public and private universities to junior colleges. None was named. The full report is to be published after this year.

Ruling on Obscene Mail Affects Post Office Little

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court ruling knocking down two seldom-used postal obscenity laws is expected to have little real effect on the U.S. Postal Service's push against smut.

All Thursday's court decision does, says one official, "is to take the Postal Service out of the business of determining what is obscene."

Left intact are laws prohibiting the mailing of obscene matter and protecting the public against unwanted, sexually oriented advertisements.

Ruling the practice smacked of censorship, the court said the Postal Service could not intercept and return orders addressed to dealers in what postal officials had determined was obscene matter.

Used Only Rarely

The laws struck down by the court were invoked only twice in the last eight years—both times to bring the test cases decided by the court Thursday, said David A. Nelson, general counsel of the Postal Service.

"There has been a substantial question as to the validity of this statute for several years," he said. But he added:

"The decision does not change the fact that it is a criminal offense to mail obscene matter."

Noting that 40 alleged dealers in smut had been indicted in the past six months alone, Nelson declared: "The Postal Service will continue to recommend prosecution whenever the criminal postal obscenity statutes are violated."

Under the criminal laws, a dealer can be sentenced to five years in prison and fined $5,000 for sending obscene matter through the mails.

Declared Obscene

Under the two statutes declared unconstitutional by the court, the Postal Service could declare that material being sent through the mail by a certain individual or firm was obscene. Postmasters then were able to halt mail addressed to the individual or firm and return it to the sender.

"If the court had upheld the statute it would have given us an additional means of limiting the use of the mails by commercial dealers in obscenity," Nelson said. "But the court's ruling was on purely procedural grounds and does not, in any sense, legalize the mailings of these materials."

Still operative is the 1967 law allowing a postal patron to get his name taken off the mailing list of a specific dealer in pornography whose advertisements he finds offensive.

The court ruling also does not affect a 1970 law, due to become effective in February, requiring senders of sexually oriented advertisements to take off their mailing lists the names of all persons who register with the Postal Service.

Jury to Start Tate Trial Deliberations

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Sharon Tate murder trial is set to begin the crucial moment when the jury will be asked for a verdict, and the prosecutor has launched a last dramatic appeal for conviction of hippie-type clan leader Charles Manson.

"Charlie is a phony and a con-man," Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi said at the end of his second day of summation Thursday.

"He's a vicious, cold-blooded murderer."

Bugliosi said he would end his arguments sometime today. The jury then will receive the judge's instructions and could begin deliberations late today or early Saturday.

7-Month Trial

To its climax, the seven-month-old trial has been peppered with weird twists. The latest came Thursday when a blue-eyed, buxom blonde, who called herself an "apprentice witch," arose and started yelling during the prosecutor's summation.

"That's not true!" said Julius Shapiro, 19, of Chicago. "I have proof that the prosecution has coerced the key witnesses."

As she was pulled from the courtroom by bailiffs she continued screaming. "The prosecution has bribed and coerced and threatened key witnesses and I have proof!"

Clad in jeans and a plaid jacket, the long-haired Miss Shapiro was handcuffed and brought back later for a brief hearing at which the judge found her in contempt of court and sentenced her to five days in jail. She has been a spectator at much of the trial and says she is a student of "Morlock the Warlock," a Hollywood occultist.

Bugliosi methodically listed items of evidence against each defendant and snarled, "We're talking about savages here, ladies and gentlemen, not human beings."

He said Manson was "a man of a thousand faces" who could fool people into believing he was a peace-loving hippie. Then Bugliosi waved at the jury color photographs of the bloody corpses of two victims.

Early in the day, Manson's attorney, Irving Kanarek, was held in contempt of court for interrupting Bugliosi's arguments.

The judge delayed sentencing. Kanarek already has twice been jailed briefly for interrupting witnesses.

Dent's calculation President Nixon must radically revise his Southern strategy and make a serious bid for the growing black vote in South Carolina and other Deep South states to keep the party there from premature death.

It was precisely with this in mind that Dent, without directly consulting Mr. Nixon, intervened in the bitter succession fight for South Carolina party chairman (the post Dent himself held before signing on at the White House two years ago).

Dent journeyed to Columbia, S. C., last Saturday to make a hard-hitting pitch to replace outgoing right-wing party chairman Ray Harris with a successor who would build a moderate party "encompassing the needs and aspirations of all, but not racist — suburban vote, the people of our state."

Trans-South political code language, that Dent appeal meant one thing: reshape the party so that blacks and other citizens can join, or perish.

Thurmond's Man
Considering Dent's role since 1969 as Sen. Strom Thurmond's man in the White House fighting for conservative racial policies, his posture at the state committee meeting last weekend is a political shocker.

Dent lost at Columbia when the man he wanted, Cordes G. Anderson, businessman, was beaten 2-to-1 by Richard Kenneth Powell. Seabrook's defeat, despite support from Mr. Nixon's top Southern aide and from chief South Carolina fund-raiser Hal Byrd (protégé of the Republican financier and textile magnate Roger Milliken) shows the new gap between Dent and the party Dent himself — as Thurmond's right-hand man — helped build in the mid 1960s.

In sum, two years in Washington have opened Dent's eyes to the calamity that confronts his own party back home if it fails to adjust to the political revolution of the last few years — huge black registration, massive school desegregation, the deflowering of racist politics.

With the silent approval but without the vital public support of Strom Thurmond, Dent pushed the 49-member state executive committee to install Seabrook as state chairman for one major reason: racial moderate Seabrook had been elected trustee of the public school board with both white and black votes. In contrast, Powell had led the anti-black "bloc vote" attack last November on two Negro candidates from Richland County for the state legislature. Both were elected.

Accented Race Issue
More important, Powell was the choice of outgoing Chairman Harris, a key strategist in accenting the race issue in Rep. Albert Watson's losing 1970 campaign for governor. A clear early favorite, Watson lost to colorless Democratic Lt. Gov. John West largely because of voter hostility to overuse of the race issue.

Dent and Thurmond can supply dozens of examples of South Carolina conservatives' from the establishment world of business and the suburbs who were outraged by the pungent anti-racist Republican campaigns outgoing right-wing party last fall.

They believe the new balance of power in South Carolina moderate party "encompassing the needs and aspirations of all, but not racist — suburban vote, the people of our state."

Since Dent and his allies feel these voters regard Harris and code language, that Dent appeal meant one thing: reshape the party so that blacks and other citizens can join, or perish.

Thus, Thurmond now fears that the party he built threatens to become an albatross around his own neck when he seeks reelection next year — probably against popular outgoing Democratic Gov. Robert McNair.

Thurmond stayed out of the party fight in Columbia was his fear that playing the part of Republican boss might damage him in the eyes of this key suburban vote.

This time, Dent failed to win over his state committee, packing it with small businessmen and farmers picked by him and Thurmond years ago. But the wheels he set in motion won't stop turning. Dent's defeat may be pyrrhic, carrying the seed of change in the Republican party's Southern strategy.
